Land stewards course offered

Oregon State University's Forestry and Natural Resources Extension is offering an online land stewards course Jan. 25 to April 5.

Tuition for the course is $150 and is open until Jan. 21.

The expert-led course is intended for people interested in learning how to improve their land.

Topics covered include creating a management plan; forest and woodland management; wildfire preparedness; wildlife habitat; stream ecosystems; healthy soils; pasture management; rural water-system management; rural economics and enterprise; and how to find resources and get help.

To register and for more information, go to: extension.oregonstate.edu/land-steward, or contact lead instructor Rachel Werling, land steward coordinator, at rachel.werling@oregonstate.edu or 541-776-7371, ext. 211.

Hoffman Center holds monthly writing program

MANZANITA — The Hoffman Center for the Arts' Community Writes monthly writing program is seeking submissions from North Coast writers.

Entries may be poetry, fiction, non-fiction or memoir. There is a $5 fee per submission.

Submissions will be published on a rolling basis to the Hoffman Center's website, hoffmanarts.org.

Submissions should not exceed 800 words, and should include an image, if possible.

The writing must be inspired by the prompt designated for each month. The title does not need to include the prompt topic.

The prompts are: January – rain; February – presidents; March – wind; April – the cruelest month; May – lust; June – bursting out; July – I love a parade; August – wilting; September – renewal; October – spooked; November – thankful; December – celebrations.

For submission guidelines and information, go to: hoffmanarts.org/writing/community-writes/
