Donna Kathleen Wright Portland

June 15, 1949 — April 21, 2022

this world on April 21, 2022.

Born in Wichita, Kansas, on June 15, 1949, Donna attended Wichita State University, and was awarded a teaching credential.

She taught language arts in Kansas City for several years and then moved to the Pacific Northwest in 1985, after accepting a position at Knappa, and then later Clatskanie High School.

She was known for her love of literature and support for the school community. Donna was also active in theater productions at the Astoria Street Opry Company, several literature circles, and often led senior citizen book discussion groups.

Friends and family remember her enthusiasm for bird watching and camping in natural areas. Never one to complain about rising early for the best viewing, Donna urged us on in the cold predawn hours, and Donna Kathleen Wright passed from had the ability to slow down, and make patient and joyful observations.

She traveled to many wildlife areas, but her favorite was Yellowstone National Park, where she often took summer classes at the Yellowstone Institute.

Donna is survived by her sister, Elizabeth Wright; and niece, Angela Gygi.

Elizabeth recounts a telling incident from Donna's childhood. While riding with her dad, Earle, at age 4 in his propane delivery truck, he noticed that Donna's shoes were too small. He untied them, and then threw them out the window.

Driving to the next town, he bought her a new pair. While resuming his deliveries, Donna untied her new shoes and gleefully threw them out the window.

While recent years were a struggle, we remember her gift for joyous abandon and contagious enthusiasm. We thank her for the joy she brought to our lives.

Elite teams take part in Seaside invite

By GARY HENLEY The Astorian

Some of the best in Oregon high school boys golf was on display Monday at the Astoria Golf & Country Club, where Seaside was the host team in the nine-school Seaside Invitational.

Individually, one of the top golfers at the 6A level was medalist, as Clackamas senior Alex Lasko fired a three-under par 69 in the not-so-ideal conditions, with rain showers over much of the front nine.

McNary's Colby Sullivan carded a one-under par 71, with two Valley Catholic golfers at 73.

McNary, a 6A school, took the team title with a 305, ahead of Valley Catholic (324), Clackamas (328), Oregon Episcopal (352), Madras (377), Seaside's blue team (389), North Marion (396), Astoria (417), Seaside red (451) and Estacada (473).

Seaside senior Carson Kawasoe - who was medalist in all five of his first events this spring — was sixth individually, with an 80.

'Carson's perfect season ended today, but if the streak was to be broken, it was better to happen today than next week," Seaside coach Jim Poetsch said, as districts approach. "Our other Carson, Bates, broke into the 90s today, and he should keep getting lower as his career progresses."

Besides Bates, "it was a pretty rough day out there for our blue team, which has been our varsity most of the season," said Poetsch, who had two squads competing. "Again, better to happen now when only our egos are on the line.'

Also scoring for the Gulls was Ever Sibony and Carter Perrigo, each with a 105; and Riley Wunderlich (111).

Judd Field led Astoria with a 94, followed by Dietrich Allen (103), Tayden Cole (108) and Jack Phillips (112).

Astoria was missing its top golfer, Ian McHone, along with Jase Junes.
