

An oasis in Ocean Park

Barbe-Queen offers authentic Polynesian food

BY ALYSSA EVANS

The Long Beach Peninsula is a go-to for many who enjoy the Pacific Northwest, including its outdoor recreation opportunities and locally crafted seafood. But for those who drive north to Ocean Park, Washington, Polynesian cuisine awaits.

Partners Allen Jung and Queen Katsuta are co-owners of Barbe-Queen, a restaurant that specializes in Polynesian barbecue, American dishes and Asian cuisine. The restaurant is known for its barbecue dishes, including Polynesian short ribs and island-glazed chicken. The menu also features delicious dishes like chop suey, clam chowder and yakisoba, among others.
