Fay awarded AAUW scholarship

This year, the American Association of University Women Astoria Branch has awarded Rowan Fay a $3,000 scholarship.

She is a sophomore at Oregon State University working toward undergraduate degrees in ecological engineering and sustainability. Her GPA is 3.84.

Last summer, Fay volunteered for Operation Wallacea, an international conservation organization that conducts research that can be used to pass legislation that protects natural resources.

This summer, she has an internship at Shenandoah National Park in Virginia, working with the National Park Service and the Ecological Society of America to study the effects of climate change on populations of cold-water trout. Her research on this topic will be presented at the Ecological Society's annual conference in August.

Fay has also worked with the Willamette Watershed Council on a stream restoration project. She wants to work in the field of water restoration at the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation or the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.
