Pacific County Fair offers full days of late summer fun

Fair marks more than a century

Marking over 100 years in Raymond, Washington, the Pacific County Fair is slated to return this month, offering coastal residents and visitors a fun way to enjoy the late summer days.

The fair, which runs on Wednesday through Saturday, will return to the Pacific County Fairgrounds. With a carnival, animal shows and live performances scheduled, it's the sort of event to spend a full day at, with a bounty of entertainment, activities and food offerings stretching throughout the week.

"We're trying to get people to relax, spend some time, watch things happen and just enjoy themselves," Bill Monohon, the fair's manager, said of the event.

Monohon has four full days packed with entertainment ranging from comedians,
