The second act a low river front saloon near the Boston docks; the third at Naglone's boarding house, and the fourth act the Boston and Maine Railroad Station in Boston. As can be imagined many opportunities are offered for scenic display and to say that they have been taken advantage of is putting it mildly. The company is a large one, and contains many artists of repute, principle among whom is Frank O. Ireson, who will be seen in the title role. Specialties and a quartette are introduced and a first class audience may be looked for.
