Marion MacRae telegraphs me from Chicago that her Eastern trip is just the greatest possible success. Every one eager to know about Hood River. Her lectures and informal talks are producing keen inquiry, unbounded enthusiasm and sales, real old bona-fide bank-cashier-smile producing sales. To fill the demand for all classes of property that she is creating and to take care of that, that always, more or less insistently, keeps knocking at our door, it will be necessary for us to very largely increase our listings. If you are disposed to sell send us a description of your orchard or fruit land, the price and the terms. C. W. Parker, Managing Director, Marion MacRae Realty Company, Elliot Block, Tel. 289K.

Hood River Student Plants Orchard

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Jan. 10, 1910—Carl F. Galligan of Hood River has already started in his career as a horticulturist by planning, planting and superintending the new orchard of Virgil E. Waters a local real estate dealer. The orchard consisted of twenty acres and involved many difficulties. Mr. Galligan, who is only twenty-one years old, has an extensive knowledge along horticultural lines and his future success in this branch of agriculture is inevitable. He is a conscientious student, well liked by his fellow classmates, and has already had a great deal of practical experience both at the college and at his home in Hood River. Mr. Galligan is a member of the Delta Theta Sigma, an honorary agricultural fraternity, and an active worker in the literary and debating societies.

Annual Meeting of Riverside Church.

The Congregational people met Friday noon at the parsonage to attend to the business of the annual meeting. Dinner was served at noon. The reports for the most part were encouraging and indicate a steady healthful growth of the church and served to show that churches today are influencing the life of the community in every department of enterprise, civic and religious. The Sunday School has grown 30 per cent, the average attendance was 94 a Sunday, including five Sundays, when other public services reduced the attendance greatly. The Bible school is partly graded and the teaching equipment good. The Ladies' Aid report was a happy surprise and gives a goodly sum in the treasury. The pastor reported fourteen baptisms and 34 members received during the year and pastoral work increasing. A. C. Buck, treasurer, reported salary of pastor paid in full and $21.00 in the treasury. A. W. Onthank was elected deacon to serve with the former deacon. The trustees are: E. E. Guff, C. D. Thompson, F. H. Morlan, Truman Butler and P. M. Morse, Lee Kingsley, re-elected clerk.

The members of Riverside Congregational church extend fraternal greetings to all and thanks for the prompt and effective support given in the work of the Master.
