IDENTIFIED.
The Bank Teller Was Silenced and Paid the Money.

A lady with a severe and determined looking face and in whose eyes there was a gleam of triumph entered a bank and presented a check to the paying teller.
"I'm very sorry to trouble you, madam," said the bank teller politely, "but you'll have to be identified." He pushed the check across the marble slab toward her as he spoke.
"Identified?" repeated the lady. "What does that mean? Isn't the check good?"
The bank man did not smile, for this was the thirty-seventh lady who had asked this question that day.
"I have no doubt it is," he said, "but I don't know you. Do you know anybody in the bank?"
"Why, I'm Mrs. Weatherley!" exclaimed the lady. "Didn't you see my

"I'll show you who I am." name on the check? See, here it is." The teller shook his head wearily. "You must be identified," he insisted. "You must bring somebody who knows you." The lady drew herself up.
"That check," she said with dignity, "was given me by my husband. There's his name on it. Do you know him?"
"I do," said the teller, "but I don't know you."
"Then," said the lady, "I'll show you who I am. My husband is a tall man with reddish hair. His face is smooth shaven. He has a mole on one cheek and looks something like a gorilla, some people say, but I don't think so. When he talks he twists his mouth to one side, and one of his front teeth is missing. He wears a No. 15 collar, a No. 6 shoe and won't keep his coat buttoned. He's the hardest man to get money out of you ever saw. It took me three days to get this check." The banker waved his hand.
"I guess it's all right," he said. "Put your name right there—no, on the back, not the face."—Galveston News.

Local Pulpit Utterance
Our fathers did not worship an abstract and far away, but a personal and ever present Deity. Even the heathen symbolize him and bring him nigh in their idols so that "he is not far from each one, for in him we live and move and have our being," as Paul declared to the Athenians. The apostolic injunction to "draw nigh unto God" does not involve a question of space, but of moral likeness. No philosophy of ours can by any means bring him nearer, we live in him. Our ideas can not make him more real; he is all that he is independent of our ideas of him. He is real, the one and only absolute being in the universe, the infinite, all-present Spirit, and himself in helpful relations to all his children.
T. B. FORD.
