THE HOOD RIVER NEWS, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 16, 1910

(CONTINUED FROM LAST WEEK) CHAPTER XVIII.

MEASURE FOR MEASURE. TILENCE invested the Villa Ariadne, yet a warm and mellow light illumined many a window or marked short pathways on the blackness of the lawn. A solitary saddle horse rattled his bit, pawed restively and tossed his head worriedly from side to side, as if prescience had touched him with foretelling.

On the other side of the wall, lurking in the dark niches, was a tall, lean, gray haired old man, who watched and listened and waited. He was watching and listening and waiting for the horse. Seven years! It was a long time. He had not hunted for this man. He was breaking no promise. Their paths had recrossed. It was destiny.

The leaving of the guests had been hurried and noisy. In truth, it resembled a disorderly retreat more than anything else. The denouement was evidently sufficient. They had no desire to witness the anticlimax, howmight be. His highness the Principi di Monte Bianca, Enriço by name, strode up and down the floor, his spurs tinkling and his saber rattling harshly. Occasionally he glanced at the room. He laughed silently, Oh, he would enjoy himself tonight. He vould extract every 'drop of pleasure from this unexpected moment. Had she been mad, he wondered, to give have been impossible. At last he came to a stand in front of La Signorina. who was white and weary.

"So," he said, "after five years I find you, my beautiful wife! What a devil of a time you have given meacross oceans and continents! A hundred times I have passed you without knowing it till too late. And here, at

$100 Reward $100

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh Hall's Catarrh,Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh be ing a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's a constitutional treatment. Hall-Catarrh Cure is taken internally, act ing directly upon the blood and mu cous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundations of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing The proprietors have se Its work. much faith in its curative powerthat they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address the very moment when I believed it girls marrying these blamed foreignloving arms of your adoring husband! O'Mally. "Why did you do it?" I do not understand!"

man had no empty corners. "Say what after the continental fashion." you will and be gone."

will not add to his private purse the riches of Colonel Grosvenor and the Principi di Monte Bianca, your father and mine-old fools! To tell the truth, I am badly in need of money, and, head of Bacchus, your appeatance here is life to me, my dear Sonia. Life! I am a rich man. But," with a sudden scowl, "what position in my household does this gentleman occupy?" indicating Hillard and smiling evilly "So it is all true, then?" Hillard exclaimed. "You are his wife!" "Well?" cried the prince impatient-"I inquire again, what position does he hold?"

"This villa is mine," she answered, her tone giving hint to the volcano burning in her heart. "However the estates may be partitioned, this will be mine. I command you to leave it at once. I loathe you.'

The prince laughed. She was simply a sack of gold. But this was his hour of triumph, and he proposed to make the most of it.

"I could have let the carabinieri take you to prison." he said urbanely. "A night in a damp cell would have chastened your spirit."

"Is it possible?" returned Hillard. "Your highness has but to say the word and I will undertake the pleasever interesting and instructive it ure of relieving you of this man's presence.

> "Be still," she said. "Will you go?" to the prince.

"Presently. First I wish to add that your dear friend is both thick skulled group on the opposite side of the and cowardly. I offered to slap his face a few nights ago, but he discreetly declined."

"I am calm," replied Hillard, gently releasing his arm from her grasp. He approached the prince, smiling, but him this longed for opportunity? A there were murder and despair in month longer and this scene would his heart. "Had I known you that night one of us would not be here now

"It is not too late," suggested the prince. "Come, are you in love with my wife?"

"Yes."

The bluntness of this assertion rather staggered the prince. "You admit it, then?" his throat swelling with rage. "There is no reason to deny it."

"She is your"-But the word died with a cough.

Hillard, a wild joy in his heart, caught the prince by the throat and jammed him back against the rose satin panel. Hillard seized his sword arm and pinned it to the panel above his head. Again and again the prince made desperate attempts to free himself. He was soon falling in a bad way. He gasped, his lips grew blue and the whites of his eyes bloodshot. This man was killing him! And so he was, for Hillard, realizing that he had lost everything in the world worth living for, was mad for killing.

La Signorina was first to recover. She sprang toward the combatants and grasped Hillard's hand, the one ass all over, you fling yourself into the ers," growled the tender hearted "I am almost Italian, Mr. O'Mally.

"Be brief," she replied, the chill of had no choice in the matter. The afsnows in her voice. Her hate for this fair was prearranged by our parents. When Hillard and La Signorina were

"I shall telegraph the attorneys in at length alone he asked, "When shall Rome to partition the estates, my f see you again?" heart!" he mocked her. "The king "Who knows? Some day, perhaps, when time has softened the sharp edges of this moment. Tomorrow I shall write, or very soon." "You will send for me?" with eager ness and hope "Why not? There is nothing wrong in our friendship, and I prize it.

Promise. "I promise. Goodby! For a little while I have lived in paradise. Wherever I may be, at the world's end, you have but to call me. In a month, in a year, a decade, I shall come. Goodby!" Without looking at her again he rushed away.

She remained standing there as mo tionless as a statue. He had not asked her if she loved him, and that was well. But there was not at that moment in all the length and breadth of Italy a lonelier woman than her highness the Principessa di Monte Bianca. Meanwhile the prince, raging, mounted his horse. Eh, well! This time tomorrow night the American should pay dearly for it all.

And the woman-he could never understand her. But for her fool's conscience he would not have been riding the beggar's horse today. She was now too self rellant, too intelligent. She was her father over again, soldier and diplomat.

He was riding past the confines of the villa when a man darted out suddenly from the shadows and seized the bridle. "At last, my prince!"

"Glovanni?" Instinctively the prince reached for his saber, knowing that he had need of it, but the scabbard was empty. He cursed the folly which had made him lose it. Oddly enough, his thought ran swiftly back to the little casa in the Sabine hills. Bah! Full of courage, knowing that one or the other would not leave this spot alive, he struck his horse, with purpose this time, to run his man down. But Glovanni did not lose his hold. Hate and the nearness of revenge made him strong.

"No, no!" he laughed. "She is dead, my prince. And I-I was not going to seek you. I was going to let hell claim you in its own time. But you rode by me tonight. This is the end."

The prince unbooked his scabbard and swung it aloft. But Giovanni was fully prepared. He released the bridle, his arm went back, and his knife spun through the air. Yet in that instant in which Giovanni's arm was poised for the cast the prince lifted his horse on its haunches. The knife gashed the animal deeply in the neck. Still on its haunches, it backed, wild with the unaccustomed pain. The lip of the road, at this spot rotten and unprotected, gave way. The prince tried to urge the horse forward. The hind quarters sank, and the prince tried in vain to slip from the saddle. There came a crash, a cry, and horse Giovanni trembled, and the sweat on his body grew cold. For several min-F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O. Sold buried in the prince's throat, and utes he waited, dreading, but there by all druggists, 75c. Take Hall's pulled. She was not strong enough.

Our Red Apple Specials

籡嫾픛絾嫾淢嫾嫾嫾嫾嫾嫾嫾嫾嫾嫾湠湠湠嫾嫾嫾嫾嫾嫾嫾嫾嫾嫾

15 acres, 2 miles out on the West side, 300 Newtowns 3-years old, 200 peach trees 1 year old, new packing house. For a quick sale this property can be bought for about half its value on reasonable terms; see us in regard to full particulars.

30 acres only 2 miles from town, highly improved, 334 acres bearing apples, 2 acres bearing cherries, 15 acres 2 to 3 year old apples, 1 acre asparagus, 3 acres garden; good 7-room house, bath, electric lights, hot and cold water, barn and other buildings; team, wagon, buggy, harness, tools, etc. Price only $35,000 easily worth $45,000. TERMS.

117 acres, 3 miles from P.O., 2000 apple trees, mostly Spitz and Newtowns from 2 to 12 yrs. old, 250 pear trees, 125 cherry, 100 walnut and 100 peach trees; $300 sprayer, span of horses, wagon, chickens, tools, etc. Four room house and good barn. Price only $40,000 for a short time. TERMS.

The concierge says that there has been foul play-tracks in the dust, a strange cut in the neck of the horse and a scabbard minus its saber. Now, what the devil shall I do with the blamed sword?" Dead! Hillard sat down on the edge of the bed. Dead! Then she was free, free! "What shall I do with the sword?" demanded Merrihew a second time.

sure?" and rider went pounding down the bed was untouched.

gorge eyes," replied Hillard.

pulled. She was not strong enough. Family Pills for constipation."

RAILWAY MAIL CLEKS WANTED

The Government Pays Railway Mail Clerks $800 to $1,200 and other em-ployes up to $2,500 annually.

Uncle Sam will hold spring exam-Inations throughout the country for Railway Mail Clerks, Custom House Clerks, Stenographers, Bookkeepers, Departmental Clerks and other Gov-ernment Positions. Thousauds of appointments will be made. Any man or woman over 18, in City or Country can get instruction and free information by writing at once to the Bureau of Instruction, 1558 Hamlin Building, Rochester, N. Y.

For That Terrible Itching

Eczema, tetter and salt rheum keep their victims in perpetual torment The application of Chamberiain's Salve will instantly allay this itching and many cases have been cured by its use. For sale by all good dealers.*

Taft Transfer Co.

Draying...

Wood Yard

HAY, FLOUR and FEED

For Sale

*****

C.F. SUMNER

Lavatories

Toilets

Sinks

PLUMBING

Sewer and Brain

TILE

Office Phone 29

Regidence 232-M

is killing him!" she cried wildly. The two finally succeeded in separating the men, and none too soon. A They were both dead. moment more and the prince had been dead man. La Signorina turned upon Hillard.

"And you would have done this thing before my very eyes!"

love you better than anything else in two carabinieri, doubtless attracted by God's world, and this man means that the untoward sounds. Giovanni stole I shall lose you."

The prince lurched toward Hillard, but fortunately Merrihew heard the slithering sound of the saber as it left its scabbard. Merrihew with a desperate lunge stopped the blow. He flung the saber at O'Mally's feet.

"You speak English," said Merrihew in an ugly temper. "You may send your orderly to the Hotel Italie tomorrow morning, and your saber will be given to him. We can get along without you nicely."

The prince tore at his mustaches. Meddlers! To return to Elorence without his saber was dishonor. He cursed them all roundly and turned to La Signorina.

"I am in the way here," he cried. "But listen. You shall remain my wife so long as both of us live. I had intended arranging your freedom once the estate and moneys were divided, but not now. You shall read my wife till the end of the book, for unless I meet you halfway the marriage contract cannot be broken. In the old days it was your conscience. The still small voice seems no longer to trouble you," turning suggestively to Hillard. "You are stopping at the Hotel Italie?" "I am. You will find me there," returned Hillard, with good understand-

"Good! Your highness, tomorrow night I shall have the extreme pleasure of running your lover through the throat." He picked up his cap and took his princely presence out of their immediate vicinity.

"It will do my soul good to stand before that scoundrel," said Hillard, stretching out his hands and closing them with crushing force. La Signorina laid a protesting hand on his arm.

"I love you," he murmured as he bent to kiss her hand. "And it is not dishonorable for you to hear me say

"I forbid you to say that!" But the longing of the world was in her eyes as she looked down at his head. "This is what comet of American was no further sound. He searched "Merrihew! O'Mally! Quick! He mechanically for his knife, recovered it and then crept down the abrupt side of the gorge till he found them.

> "Holy Father, thou hast waited seven years too long!" Giovanni crossed himself.

He gazed up at the ledge where the tragedy had begun. The cloud passed "I was mad," he panted, shamed. "I and revealed the shining muskets of over the stream and disappeared into the blackness beyond.

This man was killing him!

It was Merrihew who woke the sleeping cabby, pushed Hillard into a scat O'Mally with his harmless drolleries. and gave the final orders which were And no letter! to take them out of the Villa Ariadue forever. He was genuinely moved over for news of Glovanni. But to all apthe visible misery of his friend. When pearances Giovanni had vanished, as they arrived at the white hotel in the Borgognissanti Merrihew was glad.

At 9 in the morning Hillard heard a fist banging on the panels of the door. "Open, Jack! Hurry!" cried Merrihew outside.

Hillard opened the door. "What's the trouble, Dan?" he asked. Merrihew whispered, "Dead!" "Who?" Hillard's heart contracted. "The prince. They found him and

'But won't she need you up there?" Merrihew was obviously troubled. "If she needs me she'll send for me. I shall remain here and wait. She is free. Thank God!" "Didn't Giovanni tell us that he had friends in Flesole, near Florence, and that he was going to visit them?" asked Merrihew.

"That's very foolish."

"Glovanni! I had forgotten. But what had my old valet against the prince?"

"Giovanni had a daughter," said Merrihew. "His knife left a scar on the man. The prince carried a long scar on his cheek."

Hillard began dressing in his day clothes, stopping at times and frowning at the walls.

At night the last of the American Comic Opera company straggled into the hotel. O'Mally, verbose as ever, did all the talking.

"You wouldn't know her," he said, referring to La Signorina, for they would always call her that. "When she heard of that duffer's death I swear that she believed you had a hand in it. But when she heard that the accident had occurred before you left the villa she just collapsed. The police were hunting for the missing saber. Of course we knew nothing about it," with a wink at Merrihew. When the others were gone Hillard asked Kitty if she had any news.

"She said that she would write you and for you to remain here till you received the letter."

"Was that all?" "Yes. Have you seen anything of that wretched man Worth, who is the cause of all this trouble?" "No, nor do 1 care to."

Kitty and Merrihew went out together.

They were gone to America, and Hillard was alone. He missed them all sorely - Merrihew with his cheery laugh, Kitty with her bright eyes and Daily he searched the newspapers indeed he had, forever out of Hillard's sight and knowledge.

The letter came one week after the departure of his friends. It was postmarked Venice. And the riddle was solved.

[TO BE CONTINUED]

Next Week Winds Up This Story