

ELECTRIC RAILROAD PROSPECTS BETTER

A. S. Hall, a Portland electrical expert, accompanied by J. H. Wilcox, president of the Hood River Light & Power Co., who is promoting the electric railroad in the valley, visited here recently and made a tour of inspection. It is stated by Mr. Wilcox that active work will be commenced by the company soon.

The company has secured an option on the power site of the Hood River company, considered one of the best in the valley and is negotiating for other interests here.

The local company is also pushing matters, having filed contracts for several more pieces of right of way during the past week, one with R. R. Imbler in the lower valley and the other on the place of Adam Gassman in the Mount Hood district.

No Prayer Needed.
The story is told of the Rev. James Patterson of Philadelphia that he once declared in a circle of his brethren he thought ministers ought to be humble and poor, like their Master. "I have often prayed," said he, "that I might be kept humble. I never prayed that I might be poor. I could trust my church for that!"

An Anecdote of Macready.
One of the most amusing anecdotes of Macready's petulance of temper relates to a revival of "Henry VIII." under the management of Maddox at the Princess' theater, in London. The part of Cardinal Campelus was assigned to a brother of Mr. George Augustus Sala, whose stage name was Wynn, for whom Macready had an inveterate dislike. The tragedian had implored the manager to see that Campelus was furnished with a costume which should not seem entirely ridiculous beside the splendid robes he himself wore as Wolsey, but Maddox, of course, disregarded the injunction.

At the dress rehearsal Macready, enthroned in a chair of state, had the various characters to pass before him. He bore all calmly until, clad in scarlet robes bordered by silver tissue paper and wearing an enormous red hat, Wynn approached. Then, clutching both arms of his chair and closing his eyes, the great tragedian gasped out, "Mother Shipton, by heaven!"

Something In the Wind

Now, why not blow yourself off to an annual subscription to this paper?

A BAD EXAMPLE

But the citizen who takes no interest in his home town sets a worse example.

Perhaps if he read this newspaper regularly he would see what an interesting town this is.

Right now would be a good time for him to subscribe.

Put Off

Unpleasant consequences usually follow a put-off. Of course you intend to subscribe for this paper for the coming year. Why put off till tomorrow that which you can just as easily do today?

A BLIND MAN

Has some excuse for not reading his home paper. Then there are others—those who are so blind that they won't see.

Love Letters By Wire
The Western Union has just put into effect a reduction in night rates that allows a message of fifty words to be sent at night for the same amount that ten can be sent in during the day. To be explicit, the rate on a ten word message to New York during the day is $1. At night between the hours of 8 and 12 p. m. fifty words can be sent for a dollar, and ten additional words for one-fifth this amount. The same rate apply to sections covered by the lines in the United States. It is stated that the new rate has caused an enormous increase in the company's business, some of which is the transmission of love letters which go clicking over the wires.
