GLACIER PHARMACY

Hood River :: :: Oregon

ly selected the coveted piano, while Uncle Josh wrote out the check, pleasantly, too, for he knew the price was extremely reasonable.

"Now," cried the old gentleman, "now for a picture of this crowd in good old country fashion; we'll go to the photograph gallery; my friend R. M. Dunham, has a good one, on Third street. His pictures are wonderful in fidelity and finish. I want one full-size photo for my study, and some small ones for my friends. Dunham has the soul of a true artist; all his work is a labor of love, in which he will not fall short of perfection, and he is famous for successful enlarging. I want to give you a life-size representation of 'yours truly.'" (Uncle Josh's picture may be seen at Dunham's studio any time the reader desires to call.)

"Oh, me! Oh, my!" ejaculated Polly, as they halted before a show window, "what a perfectly lovely Oxford." "Yes," says Uncle Josh, "the Paris Fair's stock can't be equalled in style and extent in this section. Go in, look it over and get acquainted." It might have been Polly not to have extended that invitation had not Uncle Josh known what wise economy it is to trade at the Paris Fair, for Polly found goods and prices so seductive that she purchased an outfit from an Oxford to a handsome walking boot, Charley invested in gents' fine shoes, while Uncle Josh indulged in a stout farm boot, with rubbers for the crowd. No one needing footwear can resist the styles and prices offered by the Paris Fair.

"I declare, Uncle," exclaimed Charley, "there goes a handsome harness. I must have one like that for the girl." "Get it right down here at Frank Salficky's. This is the boss horse millinery firm of this section, to my notion. He uses only first class material and gives personal supervision to the minutest detail of manufacture. There is nothing in harness but can be had of him, heavy and light, single and double, plain and fancy, work and buggy harness. You can get 'em there, besides every other kind of turf goods, imaginable, and the finest lot of laprobes, whips and blankets you ever laid your eyes upon." After a visit to Salficky's Charley said he thought "if a man couldn't get satisfied it would be his own fault," and he expressed himself pleased with the fine harness Uncle Josh bargained for.

At this point, somewhat to the confusion of Charley, the old man indulged in a half serious criticism of his personal appearance. "You are decidedly off style for a townsman," said he, "and we'd better go see the Paris Fair about some new duds." After Charles had fitted himself in a Hart, Schaffner & Marx suit, from the piles of fashionable garments that cover the tables of this extensively stocked establishment, Uncle Josh declared: "Now you look like a newly married man." Before leaving, having found goods and prices irresistible, Charles also invested in a complete outfit of gents' furnishings from the latest style hat to a half dozen Manhattan shirts. The Paris Fair is not to be undersold in the state.

"Holy smoke, Charley, where in the name of creation did you get that snipe? That's about the worst weed that ever came in contact with my olfactory nerves," laughingly remarked Uncle Josh. "Step in here to this cigar store and get a 'Santaelas,' then you'll have a gentleman's smoke. The Santaelas is a cracker-jack; contains all the qualities of a
