BOILED WATER CAMPAIGN OPENS

Dr. Jeremiah Jesse Edgington has started the boil-the-water campaign for the season. We are a little surprised at this as we understood this learned disciple of Esculapius reported that the cold weather last winter put every mother's son of a colion bacilli out of business. The press of the state will no doubt take pleasure in alluding to Dr. Edgington's advice. Furthermore, visitors to the rose festival who may stop off at Hood River will be duly thankful for the tip and hurry away. There's nothing like looking on life through blue goggles and adopting the slogan, "Cheer up the worst is yet to come." Of course those who have acquired a taste for boiled water must have it the same as they would limburger cheese, caviare and pigs feet. Others, however, whose tastes are not quite so epicurean will content themselves with water direct from the tap. No doubt the good housewives of Hood River will be tickled to death to comply with Professor Edgington's manifesto as it will give them something to do in the long hours of the summer afternoon, when they can keep the tea kettles sizzling and the temperature of the kitchen like a furnace in order that their liege lords and the children can delightfully sip their boiled water, and rejoice at their immunity from the dreaded colion bacilli bug-boo. In order to assist the long suffering we would suggest the purchase of a fireless cooker. This could be placed in the parlor where it would be handy for visitors.

E. L. Smith for Governor
Four years ago Hon. E. L. Smith of Hood River was importuned and petitioned by thousands of people to allow his name to be used as a candidate for governor, but he absolutely refused to entertain the proposition. He was also as strenuously beseeched to run for congress, but refused those entreaties also. He could have been easily elected to either office he chose, but he persisted that he would consider no nomination save for senator, and it will be remembered that he was defeated for that nomination, mainly for the reason that he was sick in bed all through the canvass.

It is now publicly said that Mr. Smith will consent to have his name brought before the coming republican assembly for the nomination, and we hope this is true—though we doubt it.

Mr. Smith would make an ideal governor, and under the direction of his estimable wife we would again have an executive mansion at the capitol something like the days of the incumbency of Governor Moody, who, it is said, came nearer being the ideal executive host and Mrs. Moody the perfect hostess, than any officials we have ever sent to Salem.

Four years ago Mrs. Smith told the writer that she would not consent to have Mr. Smith run for the office because they were not wealthy enough to entertain in the style which she thought the executive should maintain, and she cited Governor Moody's incumbency as setting the high water mark, a mark which she would like to emulate if they had the means and Mr. Smith were fortunate enough to be elected.

But perhaps Mr. Smith's bank account has so grown since then that Mrs. Smith has been shown by E. L. that he could go the Moody pace, and she has consented to have him become a candidate. We hope this is true.—The Dalles Optimist.

A $6,300 Dray Team
The team of stallions now being used by the Transfer & Livery Co. as a dray team are believed to be the highest priced horses used for that purpose in the state. The value of the team is $6,300. Both of the horses are registered and imported stock, one of them being a Percheron and the other a Belgian. The team is the heaviest in the valley and can be seen daily working around town, and has attracted much attention.

Fined for Unlawful Fishing
Edward McGee, a Portland resident was arrested at Cascade Locks Sunday and brought to Hood River by Game Warden L. J. Fritz for catching undersized trout. After a hearing before Justice Buck he was fined $25. Not having the money with him he was locked up in the Hotel Oregon until Monday morning when funds arrived from Portland. When arrested McGee had a basket full of undersized fish.

Evangelistic Meeting
Rev. Joseph Baker and wife, the gospel singers, will be at the Alliance chapel June 7 to 12, each evening at 8 o'clock and Sunday morning, afternoon and evening. Every man, woman and child should hear Mr. and Mrs. Baker sing. They also preach the gospel with intelligence and power. All are invited. C. E. Perry, pastor.
