under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Dry and Wet

The fight of the Anti-Saloon League and the opponents of the liquor business to pass a state wide prohibition amendment in Oregon and a county unit local option law in Washington, are proving an important phase of the political situation in these two Northwestern states, although in neither state are the anti-saloon people meeting with the same enthusiasm that they did when local option laws under the township and precinct unit plan were passed. Both states now have local option, and there are many "dry" districts in each, both town and county elections resulting in many cases favorably to the Anti-Saloon League. The people of Oregon, however, are a little slow to enthuse over prohibition, believing that if some cities want to remain "wet" they have a right to do so, as long as the "dry" communities can please themselves. In Washington the question is not up to the voters direct, but to the legislature, and the Anti-Saloon League is working hard to elect its friends to office. The Republican convention failed to mention local option or the "county unit" in its platform, and it is not thought likely that the Democrats will. In the Democratic conventions in Nebraska and Minnesota, "county unit" planks were voted down, even the eloquence of William J. Bryan failing to carry the day for the "dry" in his own state. Probably the Anti-Saloon workers will have to make their fight without the support of either party, but they are not discouraged and will do their best in any case.

Made in Washington Day

Saturday, August 27, will be "Made in Washington" Day, and will be celebrated by various commercial organizations as a date for the exploitation of home made products, and wide publicity will be given to the appeal to the public for the support of home industries and the consumption of Washington products in preference to outside goods. In this connection, the recent Republican state convention adopted two resolutions, as follows: "That in the new erection of public buildings in this state by the Federal government, that the representatives and senators in Congress from this state are requested and urged to use every honorable effort to have specified and used in all such public buildings materials from this state where readily available, whether from forest, mine, quarry, mill, factory or foundry." "That if in its wisdom the legislature of this state should see fit to authorize the erection and appropriation for any state buildings, that it would help home industry by providing that all material used in the erection of such buildings be from the state of Washington, where readily available. We have the materials; we have the mechanics, whose skill is equal to the best."

Making Prosperity

S. J. Ellison, general passenger agent of the Great Northern, who is on a tour of the Northwest, is another railroad official who testifies to the excellent record of tourist and homeseeker travel of the present season in the Northwest. Mr. Ellison says that the travel to the Northwestern states in 1910 is far ahead of that in 1909, which was considered a big year, and compares favorably with the traffic of 1908, which was greatly stimulated by the A.-Y.-P. Exposition. He says that the large sums spent in the east by the railroads to advertise the Northwest are not being wasted, but that the railroads believe they are accomplishing much in settling up the unoccupied lands, and making more business for the railroads and more prosperity for the country.

Washington Judges

Renominating the five supreme court judges whose terms expire next year, and adopting a platform which strongly endorses the administration of President Taft and contains a number of important planks, the Washington Republican convention met at Tacoma August 2 and 3 and quickly and harmoniously disposed of its work. The judges renominated were F. Gose, Frank H. Rudkin, E. N. Parker, George E. Morris and Mark A. Fullerton. The platform, besides endorsing the Taft administration, recommends the election of a United States senator from Western Washington.

NORTH WEST NOTES

Portland's Harvest Festival, September 5-10, will have no end of amusement features and quantities of blooded livestock on view, together with stirring races by the best trotting, pacing and running stock to be had, but perhaps the most interesting feature on the grounds to many who will attend, will be the demonstration of tuberculin tests for dairy cows to be given by Dr. W. H. Lytle, state veterinarian. Animals with tuberculosis will be given the tests and their value explained in a lecture. The animals will be slaughtered and the evidence of tubercular conditions shown and discussed. This is expected to be a great attraction for a large number of dairymen and others interested.

Estimates of Oregon's hop crop for the year place the figure at 90,000 bales. The quality of the yield is reported to be excellent and it is expected a good price will be paid for the crop if picked clean. Special efforts to secure clean picking will be made by growers.

A dairy farmer of Washington county makes the statement that he has cleared $13 net on each of his nine cows every month, making a snug income from that source alone of $1044 in the past nine months. This is an industry that is capable of almost illimitable expansion in this state.

President Stevens, of the Oregon Trunk Line, the Hill road up the Deschutes, announces that his company will build south to a connection with the Pacific & Eastern, reaching out from Medford. This will give the Hill system a main trunk line down through Central Oregon, from which will spring lateral branches into nearby productive territory.

Eight big ocean steamers and one sailing vessel were in the Willamette river on August 9, loading Oregon products for ports across the sea, in addition to the usual number of coasting vessels, one of the most formidable fleets to assemble in a Pacific Northwest port for months. The combined cargoes amount to 23,000,000 feet of Oregon fir, together with miscellaneous freight, and destinations include Hong Kong, New Zealand, Manila, Shanghai, Australia and other oriental ports.

A splendid advertisement of the advantages of the Pacific Northwest is the decision of Jasper Wilson, son of James Wilson, secretary of agriculture, to engage in fruit growing in the Pacific Northwest. He will develop only 20 acres at present, considering this ample to keep him fully occupied. That a man who has all the professions open to him should choose horticulture in the Northwest as the best opportunity, is highly significant and is a splendid endorsement of this section of the country.

That field peas should be grown on the big acreage of summer fallow in Eastern Oregon each year is the opinion of experts. There is profit in the practice, while the fertility of the soil is increased and weeds kept down. H. Grebe, a wheat grower of Condon, finds he makes more off his peas, acre for acre, than from his wheat, and wheat sown on the same land the following year produces one-third more than land merely summer fallowed and allowed to lie idle. Hogs grow fat on the peas, adding enormously to the wealth of the grain growing sections of the Northwest.

Join State Auto Association

Charles P. McCann of Hood River has notified Lawrence Therkelsen, secretary of the Oregon State Automobile Association, that he has secured 11 new members for the state association. The new members are Leslie Butler, C. F. Gilbert, W. T. Sieddon, G. Y. Edwards Jr., J. H. Heilbronner, Devlin & Firebaugh, C. R. Bone, Charles Hall, P. S. Davidson and J. C. Minnaker. L. R. Ruthenford has been appointed by the state association vice president for Columbia county.

Mr. McCann announces, that he will take up the matter of road signs soon with the proper authorities in Hood River county, and will appoint a committee to work on the proposition. The local automobile association of Medford is working on the proposition of constructing a good road through Central Oregon.

Injured in Logging Camp

John Lazear, an employee of the Oregon Lumber Company, was seriously injured in one of the logging camps of the company, Thursday, by having a tree fall on him. Lazear had his thigh and shoulder crushed. The injured man was brought to Hood River Thursday evening and placed in the Cottage Hospital.

Form Suffrage Clubs

A club of more than fifty men and women living in Blaine, Washington, who were formerly residents in Iceland, where women vote, have formed two equal suffrage clubs, and the two have been united to work for the suffrage amendment that will be voted on in Washington at the November election.
