THE RESTLESS MODERN WOMAN

(By Edward Bok, Editor of Ladies Home Journal)
 For a number of years there has grown up in America a dangerous type of woman, a woman who, misunderstanding the modern currents of thought, has believed that her work in the world lay outside of the home, or who for some reason or other has developed a positive aversion to motherhood.

This aversion to motherhood, this unwillingness to be a woman in the highest sense of the word, leaves the woman unsatisfied. So, for what she cannot find a natural outlet in her home, she goes outside, looks around for what is going on, and plunges into the first excitement she meets. It may be bridge; it may be vivisection; it may be woman's clubs; it may be woman's suffrage.

In Chicago they had the cry, "No ballot, no babies." Another suffragist simply said that "it was far more important for a woman to be a woman than to be a mother." No matter how they phrase it, there is always the same undercurrent; the same basic aversion to motherhood.

And this whole tendency toward an aversion to motherhood on the part of one element of restless American womanhood has brought about a corresponding keenness on the part of another and larger element of American womanhood toward a close study of the conditions of childhood in America.

"Woman suffrage is an excitement of the restless few; the question of the child is a great operating movement, being born of the many. That is the great ethical question we are facing; the future of the child, and in comparison with it, so far as the real interest and deep anxiety of the American woman as a sex is concerned, the question of woman suffrage fades into absolute insignificance."

Another of the enjoyable good-time dances will be held Friday evening at Pine Grove grange hall, which floor is second to none in the country. All are respectfully invited to attend. Dancing to commence at 9; supper at 11:30. Music by Newman's celebrated orchestra.

In blasting rock on State street Sunday afternoon, an overcharge of dynamite threw large boulders of rock and stone a distance of 300 feet, some of the large stones crashing through the side of a near-by barn, splintering the walls. It was a lucky escape from death to several bystanders. The report brought a large number of cityites to the scene where the blasting took place.

The members of the Music Club are congratulating themselves upon the outlook for a prosperous and interesting year's work as outlined by the calendar committee. The club has recently adopted by laws and constitution and also resumed chorus work with Mrs. Sletten as director. The club will meet this afternoon at the residence of Mrs. C. K. Marshall and as it is guest day each member is privileged to bring a guest. Light refreshments will be served.—Continued.
