BUSINESSMEN SEE THE UPPER VALLEY

ment of the establishment, which is operated by electricity, converts thousands of feet of logs into lumber every day. The yards, power house, planer and other features of the plant were examined by the crowd, many of whom had no previous idea of the extensiveness of the plant.

The run from Dee to town was made in good time, the train passing through the valley just as the sun was commencing to sink behind the hills, casting a beautiful coloring over the landscape and completing a day that was replete with interest and pleasure. When the train arrived at the station, the crowd gave a cheer for Mr. Early and the railroad for its entertainment.

Gems In Verse

A SUMMER GIRL.
SHE wears a saucy hat,
And her feet go pit-a-pat
As she walks,
And the sweetest music slips
From her saucy lips
When she talks.

She fascinates the street
With her garters trim and neat,
Made of kid,
For they twinkle as they pass
Like the rilllets in the grass,
Halfway hid.

Her skin is soft and white,
Like magnolia buds at night
On the bough;
But, for fear she'd be too fair,
There's a freckle here and there
On her brow.

Dimples play at hide and seek
On her apple blossom cheek,
And her chin,
Shyly beckoning to you:
"Don't you think it's time to woo?
Pray begin."

Then her winsome, witching eyes
Flash like bits of summer skies
O'er her fan,
As if to say: "We've met,
You may go now and forget--
If you can."
—Red and Black.

YOU CAN TRY.
EVERY day that comes to you
You can try
Something worth the while to do.
You can try.
Only give the plan a trial.
Test it with a hopeful smile.
Something that is worth the while
You can try.
Even though the day be dark
You can try.
For at least one credit mark
You can try.
At misfortune never rail,
Though you often fall and fall,
Rise again and trim your sail--
You can try.
—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

THE THERMOMETER.
POOR old thermometer,
Hangin' in the sun,
Never gettin' any rest;
A-lus on the run!
Have to keep in trainin'
For a promenade
From somethin' less than zero
To a hundred in the shade!
You're one of those companions
Who think it's up to you
To tell us without flinchin'
Just what you think is true.
Poor old thermometer!
Your candor ne'er unbends.
We praise your sense of duty,
But you haven't any friends.
—Washington Star.

RECESSIONAL FOR SUMMER.

SUMMER is ended; the daffodil dies;
The rose is turned to dust and mold
Hark! How the solemn trumpet cries,
Heralding winter's time and cold!
Dreams of the summer lingering yet
Bring deep regret, bring deep regret.

THE thrush has flown to fairer skies,
The wrinkled hills are gray and old.
The poppy, with her flaming dyes,
Has resigned and lost her royal hold.
Dreams of the summer lingering yet
Bring deep regret, bring deep regret.

A FAR the bloom hung Maytime lies,
And June's sweet story has been told.
The visions of the summer rise
On moor, on fen and somber wold.
Dreams of the summer lingering yet
Bring deep regret, bring deep regret.

THE violet has closed her eyes,
The penury wind in sadness sighs
As wide the gates of fall unfold.
Dreams of the summer lingering yet
Bring deep regret, bring deep regret.

THE summer fades in sober guise,
Her passing bell is faintly tolled
In hidden dells by butterflies,
And autumn reigns in cloth and gold.
Dreams of the summer lingering yet
Bring deep regret, bring deep regret.
—Chicago Chronicle.

THE SEASONS.
SPRING'S a maid that knows no lover,
Fearless eyed and fancy free,
Snowy blossoms droop above her;
Flowery grasses kiss her knee.

SUMMER wears a crown of roses,
For the maid becomes a bride,
On her cheeks are glowing posies,
In her eyes a world of pride.

AUTUMN is a good wife jolly,
Mellow as her gathered fruit,
Twinkling eyes that laugh at folly,
Ruddy cheeks and lips to boot.

WINTER is a queen of sorrows
Throned aloft, austere white,
Gazing down the lovely morrows
To the inevitable night.
—Fall Mail Gazette.

EVER A SONG SOMEWHERE.
THERE is ever a song somewhere,
My dear--
There is ever a something sings along--
There's the song of the lark when the skies are clear.

And the song of the thrush when
the skies are gray,
The sunshine showers across the grain,
And the bluebird trills in the orchard tree.

And in and out when the eaves drip rain
The swallows are twittering ceaselessly.

There is ever a song somewhere, my dear,
Be the skies above or dark or fair,
There is ever a song that our hearts may
hear.

There is ever a song somewhere, my dear,
There is ever a song somewhere!

There is ever a song somewhere, my dear,
In the midnight black or the midday
blue.

The robin pipes when the sun is here,
And the cricket chirrups the whole night through.

The buds may blow, and the fruit may grow,
And the autumn leaves drop crisp and
sere;
But, whether the sun or the rain or the snow,
There is ever a song somewhere, my dear.

There is ever a song somewhere, my dear,
Be the skies above or dark or fair,
There is ever a song that our hearts may
hear.

There is ever a song somewhere, my dear;
There is ever a song somewhere!
—James Whitcomb Riley.

CAESARISM.
"UPON what meat doth this our Cassar feed
That he has grown so great?"
No matter what it was, its price
Was not the present rate.

For Caesar, though ambitious, would
Have thought that price was money,
And rather than grow great he would
Have stuck to macaroni.
—W. J. Lampton.
