The Evolution of Booster Bill

IX.—How Many Bill Blues Have We?

Old Bill Blue's knocking was so bad He knocked out everything he had. Then he grew wise and muttered "Stung!" So "Booster Bill" a new song sung.

How many Bill Blues have we here Who knock and try the town to queer? If you are one, then, like Bill, pray To see the error of your way.

For he who runs his own place down Injures himself more than the town, And who to lift up does his best Lifts up his fortune with the rest. This is the golden law: WE GET What we give out. Time pays the debt. If you shed sunshine it will fill Your own life. Be a "Booster Bill."

HEILBRONNER BLOCK HAS NEW FEATURES

The new Heilbronner building has been thrown open for occupancy and now constitutes a structure inside and out that is one of the best and most convenient business blocks in the state outside of Portland.

The store rooms on the ground floor have been fitted with large show windows, wide entrances and several of them with fireproof vaults. Application has been made to rent several of these for office purposes but it is the desire of the owners of the building, if possible, to have them taken for retail stores.

The second floor contains sixteen offices, all of which are ensuited but so arranged that they can be rented individually. The offices are all handsomely finished in Oregon fir and lighted with large windows with ball bearings. At each end of the hall a drinking fountain has been placed. Toilets for both women and men are supplied and a detail that was particularly looked after is the heating of the building which has the best apparatus of this kind that it was possible to supply. An umbrella rack has also been placed on each floor.

The big hall on the top floor is now finished. It has a floor space of 865.50 feet, with a platform at the north end large enough to accommodate twenty-five people and can be used for entertainments. Curtains will be hung from a molding on the ceiling at both sides of the platform, making dressing rooms when needed. The owners of the building are in communication with Professor Christensen, the well known dancing master of Portland, and it is expected that he will start a dancing class here during the winter, both afternoon and evening. The afternoon to be devoted to children and the evening to adults. It is possible also that dances will be given at intervals during the winter season under his auspices.

MASONIC ORDERS INSTALL OFFICERS

An affair of much interest in Masonic circles took place Monday evening when Hood River Commandery No. 12, Knights Templar, held its installation of officers and also Hood River Council. Thirteen members of The Dailes Commandery were present at the ceremony which was preceded by a turkey dinner served by the ladies at 6 o'clock.

The installation was a public one for the knights and their ladies and was largely attended. The new officers of the commandery are: Eminent Commander, C. K. Marshall; Generalissimo, R. W. Pratt; Captain General, G. R. Castner; Senior Warden, H. H. Bailey; Junior Warden, A. D. Moe; Prelate, W. L. Clarke; Treasurer, John Otten; Recorder, P. S. Davidson; Standard Bearer, D. McDonald; Sword Bearer, H. L. Dumble; Warder, Truman Butler; Captain of the Guard, C. H. Jenkins; Sentinel, G. A. VanAnda.

The Blue Lodge and Chapter installed their officers Tuesday night when a supper was served to the members of these orders. The Eastern Star will install its officers this evening.

HOOD RIVER GETS PRIZE FOR FREAK

Hood River added another prize to its long list this year by taking first honors for the greatest freak apple at the Portland apple show. The apple was exhibited by A. I. Mason, and is described as a triplet New-town pippin, consisting of a large apple in the center and two small ones growing out of its sides. The prize was one dollar and Mr. Mason received a check from the State Horticultural Society for this amount Tuesday.

Character Lessons to Train Youth

By JAMES TERRY WHITE. (Copyright, 1910, by the Character Development League.)

VII.—Usefulness.

JAMES T. WHITE.

EVERY one in the world is bound to the world of men and women, outwardly by obedience and inwardly by love and sympathy, and growing out of this is another obligation fully as important, which is usefulness. The first demand of usefulness is to do one's work in the world, whatever it is, in the best manner possible; otherwise the great work of society and of the world cannot go on. Every one has his part. Each is as necessary as a cogwheel in machinery. The great interrogation point of this country is, "What can you do?" Knowledge must be converted into faculty. A college course is not an education; it is only the beginning of an education. The college is primarily a discipline, a mental gymnasium; but, other things being equal, a college man as a business man will outmatch one who has not received that mental training. President Charles F. Thwing says a college education stands for investment of power. The ability to think clearly, largely, truly, and the power to will promptly, firmly and with a large intelligence represent an enormous return from a college education.

A confidential man became jealous of a new clerk to whom his employer had just given a raise in salary, exceeding his own. He went to his employer and said, "Are you not satisfied with my work and my faithful-ness?"

"Oh, yes," was the reply. "Why, then, do you give this new man more salary than to me?" Instead of replying to the question the grain dealer said: "Do you see that load of grain going by? Run out and see to whom it is going."

The confidential man returned and said it was going to Wilson's place. "Run out and find out what they got for the grain," He returned and said $5 cents per bushel. "Run out and find out if Wilson wants any more." He returned and said, "Yes, he wants another carload."

At this moment the new clerk came in, and the grain merchant repeated to him his first instruction: "Run out and see where that load of grain is going." In a few minutes the new clerk returned and said, "The grain is going to Wilson's; they are paying 85 cents per bushel and want another carload." The merchant, turning to the confidential man, said: "You have your answer. It took you three trips to find out what this man learned in one." The new clerk had wit enough to know that the merchant did not care about where the grain was going, but if there was a probability of supplying some of the demand and upon what terms.

For children, the preparation for usefulness in the world is to be ready to help in household duties, to lift the burden from the tired mother, to give attention to what is needed to be done in the daily round of life and volunteer to help before being asked. Be alive to every need and quick to help! Get into the habit of doing things for others. Make it a rule with yourself to have "nimble fingers, heart and hand that work together, feet that run on willing errands."

Marshall Field's instructions to his employees is an admirable summary of usefulness: "Do the right thing at the right time and in the right way; do some things better than they have ever been done before; work from reason rather than from rule; know both sides of a question; be enthusiastic; work for the love of work; 'do it now'; anticipate requirements; master circumstances; eliminate errors—in short, strive toward all those ideals which, if they really were carried out, would make this world a place where competition would be useless."

Practice—Let each child go home with the determination to do something today—to help mother.

Literature.

If time be heavy on your hands. Are there no beggars at your gates Nor any poor about your lands? Oh, teach the orphan boy to read Or teach the orphan girl to sew.—Tennyson. Be ashamed to die until you have won some victory for humanity.—Horace Mann. When a man dies they who survive him ask what property he has left behind. The angel who bends over the dying man asks what good deeds he has sent before him.—Koran. Whatever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might.—Ecclesiastes. The world desires to know what a man can do, not what he knows.—Booker T. Washington. Heaven will never arraign him for what he thinks, but for what he does.—Goldsmith.

TEACHERS WILL GIVE PATRONS RECEPTION

The school teachers of Hood River have arranged for a reception to the patrons and friends of the school, to be given at the Commercial Club Thursday, January 5, and a cordial invitation is extended to all to attend. A pleasing feature is that the entertainment will be largely furnished by the pupils of the high school and the upper grades. A genuine social good time is anticipated. Another feature of the occasion will be that the refreshments which will be served will be prepared and served by the pupils in the domestic science department of the high school. One of the motives in giving this reception is to endeavor to interest the patrons of the schools more strongly in the work that the faculty and teachers of the schools are doing for the children at Hood River, and gain the support of residents here generally. It is claimed that, apart from seeing that the pupils get to the schoolhouse, parents take little interest in cooperating with the teachers and do not give them the support that they feel they ought to have. It is hoped by the teachers that the affair will be largely attended and that patrons will make it a point to meet and discuss educational work with their hostesses.

RANCHERS COMPLAIN OF CITY STREETS

Several ranchers who were in town Tuesday were wrothy at the condition of State street from the west end of the East side bridge to Front street, and state that unless it is made passable they will do their trading outside the city. One irate farmer said that he had attempted to bring a load of produce to the city Saturday and that his wagon mired so deep in the mud that he had to get assistance to pull the vehicle and horse out. Another said that early in the season he was able to haul 150 boxes of apples over this particular piece of street, but that now it is so bad that the best he can do is to get 90 boxes over it with a heavy team.

M. E. Sunday School Exercises

The M. E. church Sunday school entertainment was held Saturday evening in the K. of P. hall. A large number of pupils were present to participate in the exercises which were concluded by the distribution of candy and fruit.
