SENT FOR COFFIN RETURNS DRUNK

Husum, Wash., Jan. 21.—"Indian George," a resident here during the '80s, but now a rich land owner on the Yakima reservation, is visiting a son here for a few days.

George tells of the funeral of a Kileklat chief that took place here in the year 1881, when a small Indian village graced the gentle slope a short distance east of here. The chief who died was beloved by the whole Kileklat tribe, and the obsequies were to be carried out on a grand scale.

At that time a ready-made coffin did not take part in the Indian burials, but a collection was taken up and an Indian sent over to Goldendale to procure a handsome casket. Friends and relatives of the old chief were present from all sections to take part in the last rites, and death songs were chanted day and night.

The day the Indian was to arrive from the county seat with the coffin hundreds of mourners had congregated and were engaged in the solemnities of the occasion when the returning outfit was observed coming over the top of a hill. Suddenly the driver was seen to straighten up in his seat and with a regulation yell whip his horses down the steep incline towards the excited mourners and when in their midst the wagon struck a stump. The driver picked himself up some twenty feet away and an empty whisky bottle fell out of his pocket. The coffin was picked up in small pieces and patched together for the burial next day.

Indian George relates this story without a smile.—Husum Cor.

Notice of Valley Christian Church.

The adult bible class met at the parsonage on Wednesday evening for its first social event. Though the weather was exceedingly unfavorable, a goodly number were present.

Mrs. J. E. Boyce gave a fine reading. Mr. C. D. Thompson performed a mathematical stunt, and the Rev. Isaac Peart, pastor of the church, who has made a study of Physiognomy, which is the science of the face, handed out to the persons present, a little information about themselves. Bacon says—"Physiognomy discovereth the disposition of the mind by the lineaments of the face" and Mr. Peart says that "a man's self is in his face." A most elaborate lunch was served. The evening was greatly enjoyed.

On Wednesday evening, January 25th, the class meets at the home of the honored president and his good wife, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Pengb, and the week following at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Boyce. Mr. Boyce is superintendent of the bible school and vice-president of the class. He and his wife will show the class a good time. It is in them to do so.

The Ladies' Aid met on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Cauler. Sixteen ladies and eight men were present. Each man is to furnish some article for the annual sale made by his own hand.

Mr. and Mrs. Cauler entertained splendidly. They know how. "An excellent lunch and a most delightful time" was the verdict of all present.

The next Aid meets at the home of Prof. Anhogon and wife, February 2. On Sunday afternoon three persons were baptized.

THE CHORIS IS DOING SOME GOOD SINGING.

Mrs. E. W. Sweany organized the boys into a new movement bible class.

DIED

BENJAMIN F. SHOEMAKER
Benjamin F. Shoemaker, a resident of Hood River for 24 years, died at his residence in this city Saturday morning after a long and painful illness. Mr. Shoemaker had been confined to his home since September and his death was not unexpected.

The deceased was born in Will county, Illinois, January 19, 1847. In 1878 he came to Salem, Ore., where he resided for three years and then removed to Pendleton, Ore., where he engaged in the implement business in partnership with his brother, J. H. Shoemaker. In 1887 he came to Hood River and engaged in agricultural pursuits on a large tract of land in the Barrett district. About four years ago he sold his holdings and bought property in town and had since retired from active life.

In addition to his wife Mr. Shoemaker is survived by three sons, Fred, Howard and Kent. Also by his brother, J. H. Shoemaker, who lives at Hood River. His son Fred, who was in Texas at the time his father's condition became critical, came on and was here at the time of his death.

The funeral, which was very largely attended, was held at his late residence on the heights Sunday afternoon, the services being conducted by Rev. H. A. MacDonald of the Unitarian church. Interment was in Idlewild cemetery. The pall bearers were C. H. Stranahan, J. J. Gibbons, G. R. Castner, Joseph Dobson, S. F. Blythe and J. L. Blount.

WHITE SALMON

(From the Enterprise)
The Colburn hotel has been rushed with business of late, frequently having over forty to dinner.

Dick Kreps, the stage driver, says the road between this place and Husum was never in worse condition. There is no fear of anyone disputing him.

Surveyors of the state highway passed through the main street of Blingen and on to the mouth of the White Salmon, which stream they will have to bridge at an elevation 150 feet higher than the railway. The survey, however, is not final, being for the purpose of getting at the approximate cost of the project.

White Salmon's first heavy fall of snow occurred on Tuesday afternoon and evening, about two feet of it on the level, which was made sloppy and soggy by a rain the next morning. Several sleighing parties were out Tuesday evening. It rained again on the following day, and now the sun is out and reducing the snow to rain water.

M. Marlin, of Portland, arrived in the valley the first of the week with a crew of nine men for the purpose of logging off forty acres of his land a mile and a half northwest of Husum. The logs will be piled and afterward sawed for lumber or burned. Grubbing will be done in the spring and the entire tract set to trees.

Miss Parks, who arrived from Kansas City about ten days ago, fell into the basement of the Atwood home at Bristol Tuesday and received a bad cut on the head. It was about five inches long and so torn that a hand could be placed under the scalp. Naturally the wound is a painful one, but making satisfactory progress in healing.

Following the petition for annexation of Blingen to White Salmon, a counter remonstrance petition has been circulated, and, according to a dispatch from that place to the dailies, it has the names of "ninety-ninths of the property holders." It seems that a majority of the people want consolidation, but on a property basis the majority is the other way.

The probability is that White Salmon will have one National Bank, if not two. The Gillett Bros. Private Bank and the White Salmon Valley Bank have both made application. The latter got their application in first for a charter, consequently will be the first National Bank of White Salmon. Both institutions have done a satisfactory business the past year, and 1911 will give them a still higher percentage of growth.

G. A. Meloy and John Parry, formerly in business at Hood River, but now of Moro, have purchased the general store business of Smith & Smith and have been busy the past two or three days with inventory. Mr. Meloy has been engaged at what ranching for the past twenty-five years with success, while Mr. Parry, a younger man, has had mercantile experience. The senior member of Smith & Smith is well along in years and retires from further business, while Frank, his son, is undecided as to the future. The Smiths came from Missouri to Hood River over ten years ago and from there came to White Salmon and opened up a store.

FRANKTON

S. B. Egbert called on old friends in our midst Thursday.

Miss Mae Davenport visited her old-time friends, the Misses Absten, recently.

Mrs. Allie Collins was the guest of Mrs. R. S. Cohoon last Saturday and Sunday.

R. S. Cohoon has been quite ill for the past week, but is now able to be around again.

Mrs. George Stokely, of Wyth, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Nobel, last week.

Robert Tazwell was a Portland visitor a number of days last week. Miss Helen Absten stayed with Mrs. Tazwell during Mr. Tazwell's absence.

J. R. Phillips is taking advantage of the snow and having the logs which were cut on the old Boorman place hauled to his mill. He plans on doing a good business this spring.

PARKDALE

Mr. Rawson was a passenger on Saturday's train for Hood River.

Miss Lizzie Mohr expects to return home because of the illness of her mother.

Miss Josephine Brune of Portland and Miss E. J. Campbell of Guelph, Ontario, are guests of Mrs. Chas. Rawson.

Mr. Klingdon was a passenger on Tuesday's train for the lower Hood River Valley. He had been visiting friends at Parkdale.

T. H. Sherrard, supervisor of the national forests for Oregon, is to speak before the Upper Hood River Valley Progressive Association at Parkdale January 30th at 7:30 p. m. on the subject, "Relation of the National Forest to the Upper Valley."

Canby Relief Corps Installation

The open installation of the officers elect of Canby Relief Corps No. 16 was quite an interesting event. There was a joint installation, the members of the G. A. R. meeting with us. It would touch the hardest heart to see these old veterans march up and take their vow of allegiance to the organization which is the outcome of the noble and sacrificing work they did in 1861 and '65 to preserve the nation and save old glory from trailing in the dust.

The Relief Corps is auxiliary to the organization of the G. A. R. and stands ready to comfort the old soldier or his widow, if need be, and make their declining years comfortable and happy, by their sympathy, and appreciation of their doing and daring, not for money received, but for the love of home and country.

The officers of the Relief Corps are as follows: President, Mrs. Abbie J. Baker; senior vice-president, Mrs. Kennel Ganger; junior vice-president, Mrs. Mary Hamblet; secretary, Mrs. Kathryn Gill; treasurer, Mrs. Lucy Harbison; chaplain, Mrs. M. H. Nickelsen; conductress, Mrs. Nettie Moses; guard, Mrs. Mary E. Savage; assistant guard, Mrs. J. Williams; patriotic instructor, Mrs. Luetta Parkins; press correspondent, Mrs. Clara Homewood; color bearers, Lydia Sumner, Mrs. Belle Howe, Mrs. May Fernald, Mrs. Clara Carutcheal; pianist, Miss Blanche Ford.

Meetings of the Relief Corps are held on the second and fourth Saturday of each month.

CLARA HOMEWOOD,
Press Correspondent.
