LIVE WIRE BIBLE CLASS RESUMES AFTER REST

"The Live Wire Bible class" has had a rest in its social gatherings, the people being busy with their spring work. On Wednesday evening last it met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robbins in full force, their being fifty present. This was a most delightful affair. Everybody was wide awake and went in for a jolly good time. We get what we go after, and all present went after a good time, and they came out victors. One feature of the evening was the singing, by the crowd, of some of the old southern melodies. These went well and were greatly enjoyed. There were other forms of amusement and then the lunch. This was good enough for the Waldorf Astoria, New York, and if you had seen the people get away with it, you would have thought so. Mr. and Mrs. Robbins entertained grandly, and near morning the "live wires" went home feeling jolly fine.

On Wednesday evening next they are to be entertained at the parsonage, by Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Peart.

The Live Wire class was organized the second Sunday in December last with ten charter members, and now has an enrollment of over sixty. The class is prosperous. The Rev. Isaac Peart is the teacher.

NEW PLAN ADOPTED TO TEACH STUDENTS TO SPOUT

To teach the young men in the public speaking classes to think clearly and rapidly in an emergency, a new plan has been adopted at the Oregon Agricultural College by P. J. Batkin, instructor in oratory and debate.

Monday morning he had on his desk a number of slips of paper bearing such subjects as "Socialism," "The Support of Student Activities," and "The Value of Debating Work." Each student had to come forward, draw a slip, and give a speech before the class without any previous preparation.

Some excellent speeches resulted, and much amusement was created by C. C. Thompson, an agricultural course senior from Hood River, who gave a humorous address on "Hard Work", a subject upon which he claimed to be better qualified to speak than any other member of the class.

Rev. and Mrs. T. S. Handsaker visited with friends at The Dalles last Thursday and Friday.
