

LOOK AT THE MAP

YOU HAVE SEEN IT. The map of Hood River Valley is in all sorts of publicity literature. And right there, in the very centre of it, within the city, is Paradise Farm. Look at the map, and see.

In the past ten years the population of Hood River Valley has jumped from hundreds to thousands. And there probably is no region in the United States—excepting, it may be, Los Angeles County, California—where the character of the later arrivals is so high, and their wealth so secure.

Most regions require two generations from the forest to the finished farm—from a state of nature to macadam roads, modern plumbing and the electric light. Hood River Valley has already leaped that gulf. Everything that an enlightened civilization has declared necessary, these people have—from Cloud Cap Inn to the Columbia river.

The advance in property values in the next five years will be tremendously rapid, because the start is so substantial, and the natural conditions are so nearly perfect. Hood River will be bigger than The Dalles. Property here will be as desirable as in the suburbs of Portland.

That is why an acre lot in Paradise Farm is a good investment. It is in the very centre of an uncommon growth, both as to population and as to wealth. The Farm has never before been offered in small tracts; but beginning with June first, and continuing until all south of Adams street is sold, you may buy a one-acre lot there, within the city of Hood River, of prime soil, free of stump or stone, in view of both Mount Adams and Mount Hood, with the majestic Columbia and the beautiful Washington shore before you. And you may buy it for one-fourth down and the balance at the end of five years.

Don't you think an acre on that slope, anywhere from Belmont Road to Adams street, will be worth while in five years?

This is not a bid for the Eastern Investor. It is more especially an offer to the people of Hood River, who may have let some opportunities go by—but who have this best of opportunities right now within their grasp.

ORANGE MEN MAY HANDLE APPLES

Orange men may sell apples of the Walla Walla Valley. The California Fruit Exchange is to handle the North Yakima fruit this year, according to a tentative agreement reached in Sacramento last week. The condition is said to be a lack of enough fruit to make the double industry pay. Hence it is stated that these men will endeavor to persuade Walla Walla, Hood River, Lewiston, Clarkston, and Kennewick also to sell their fruit through the California Exchange.

The California Fruit Exchange has agents all over the United States and Europe, and it is believed they can sell apples at the same time at little added expense. The organization is well organized, especially in European markets.

Whether Walla Walla will join the scheme is undecided.

SEA CAPTAIN BUYS CASHMERE ORCHARD

With his recent purchase of an orchard in the Vale of Cashmere, Captain Robert J. Graham is finally retiring from an active career as captain of one of the fastest ocean going sailing vessels in the world, the Erskine M. Phelps. Captain Graham retired from the command of that vessel last June. When he bought the orchard property, he finally renounced the sea and put temptation behind him.

Thirty-seven years on the bounding wave make the record of Captain Graham. The last twelve years of that time were passed in charge of the Erskine M. Phelps.

Where Space Means Money

The Santian News remarks: A great many people, organizations and institutions seem to think that newspaper space should be free to them. All newspapers are willing to do their share and more of boosting. But there is a limit. Space is the newspaper man's source of bread and butter. It is just as reasonable to ask the merchant to give his goods or the farmer to give his products. It costs money to run a newspaper, just as it does the store or farm.

Death of Otis Savage

Otis Savage, a resident of The Dalles, and the son of Judge O. S. Savage, died Wednesday morning at the residence of Frank Egan, on Fifth street. The deceased was 41 years of age. Funeral services were held at the Crandall undertaking parlors Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. B. A. Warren.

Mr. Savage at one time resided at Hood River, being proprietor of a cafe here. His death was caused by tuberculosis.

SAYS HOOD RIVER WILL BE BOYCOTTED

Claiming that the Japanese are a dangerous menace to Hood River, a letter bearing the Portland post mark was received by a Hood River fruit grower last week. The letter also says that unless Hood River growers stop employing Japanese labor that its fruit will be boycotted. As its contents are interesting we give it verbatim:

Mr. Hood River fruit Co. Dear Sir: I will write a few lines to you letting you fruit men no that you fruit men in Hood River is Doing yourselves a grate injustice in allowing the Japs to by land & sitting out fruit. I will tell you I will Remind you of the Japs in California. the Japs went to work and Bought all the land they could and in time they Put fruit on the Market. then the americans Begin to Holler. then they went to Roosevelt to oust the Japs and he told them to take their Medicine. So it will be with you fruit men in the future. Now if hood River fruit Men Don't stop hired Japs to Picken fruit and Doin your work your fruit will be Boy Cotted and you had Better Sit Up and take Notice. You will Be the worst Set of Boy Cot fruit Men on the Coast. are you aware there are thousands of americans has families out of work.

SIT UP AND TAKE NOTICE

Traction Engine for Road Making
The W. G. Aldred Company, which has the contract for two miles of macadam road on the east side, has gone into the road making business on a large scale. Thursday it received a big traction engine and five dump cars, with a capacity of over two yards of rock each; also a road roller and sprinkling cart. With the use of the engine it will be possible to haul over 12 yards of crushed rock or gravel at a load.

Oil Stops Salmon Run

A large tank of crude oil was lost recently in the Columbia River between Umatilla and Celilo, by the O. W. R. & N. company and it is said by a prominent cannery man that the oil floating along the water has temporarily driven back the run of salmon. Very few fish have been caught in the wheels and nets during the past four days.

Hood River Berries May 14

Joseph W. Morton lays claim to the distinction of having the earliest strawberries at Hood River, grown on his fine ranch at Ruthton. Mr. Morton had ripe berries for his Sunday dinner May 14th. On Thursday he exhibited one of the finest crates of early berries brought to Hood River this year.

Double Tracking Rapidly

The double tracking work on the O-W, R. & N. is progressing rapidly, east of Biggs. Two work trains have been put on at Arlington to cut away the sand bank at mile post 146, the sand being used to fill in a bridge at Heppner Junction. A steam shovel is also on the work.

Huge Cucumber

The root of a wild cucumber, weighing 40 pounds, is attracting considerable attention at the rooms of The Dalles Business Men's Association, to which organization it was presented by Dr. Avery, who found the peculiar specimen at his Chenoweth Creek ranch.

Pine Grove Pupils Pass

The eighth grade examination class of Pine Grove, composed of Misses Anna L. Krussow and Clara M. Thomsen and Clifford A. Wells, successfully passed their examination and are now ready to enter their first year in high school.

Eagle to Scream at Stevenson

The eagle is going to scream in Stevenson on the Fourth of July. The fire boys have taken charge of the matter and have gone to work with a vim. They are circulating a petition for funds and expect to raise at least $200.
