SAYS STATE FAIR WAS BIG SUCCESS

A. J. Brunquist, who has been representing Better Fruit at the state fair, returned from Salem Saturday evening. He reports that although it was too early for the best in the line of a fruit display, yet it was a great fair. The horticultural exhibits this year were more elaborate than ever and provided a striking demonstration of the fact that every section of our state, although differing in soil, topography and climate, with intelligent and up to date methods is capable of enormous yields and good profits.

The attendance at the fair was good considering the fact that it rained nearly every day. Over 1200 people were camped out in the tent city which is a growing feature of the state fair. Racing events were good but as the track was heavy records were not broken.

Better Fruit received gratifying words of appreciation for the work it is doing, both from subscribers and advertisers. Mr. Brunquist left Monday night to attend the Washington state fair at Walla Walla.

PETITION GOVERNOR FOR EXTRA SESSION

Petitions asking Governor West to call an extra session of the legislature to enact good roads legislation, particularly the county bonding act, have been circulated extensively in the city and valley during the past few days and have been widely signed.

The petition is in favor of calling the legislature together for this purpose rather than calling a special election which many believe would entail on the state a much greater expense and be slower in its operation, and also possibly place on the statute books legislation which would have many disagreeable features.

It is now said that members of the legislature have found their failure to pass the needed legislation at the last session so unpopular that they will, if called in extra session, enact the laws the people want. It is also intimated that Gov. West has been forced to see that in vetoing the county bonding act he left the matter in a very unsatisfactory condition and is now anxious to see measures passed that will permit immediate progress in improved highways rather than delay it for another year or two.
