OBLIGING CRABS.

Present Their Claws to Fishers Who Shake Hands With Them.

Visitors in Seville see women carrying baskets full of crabs' claws. The claws are cooked, and people nibble at them more for fun than sustenance, just as Russians nibble sunflower seeds. What becomes of the rest of this crustacean, especially if he is a crawfish, of his tail?

As a matter of fact the crawfish has no part in the business. The claws are taken from a salt water crab which lives along the shores of Morocco, Spain and Portugal. Each little crab, with its one little mate, has a cave for a home, and, adopting the eastern estimate of the other sex, he usually keeps his wife shut inside the cave, meanwhile staying about the threshold himself and making a brave show with his big claws.

When the tide runs out the crab fishers prowl along the beach looking for crab holes. Either the crab is stalking up and down seeking what he may devour and thus showing whether he has fine claws or he is still at home, and the size of his doorway indicates the size of the householder. In one case the fisherman cuts off his retreat by blocking his front door with mud; in the other case he digs him out. Anyway, he deprives him of his pincers and sets him at liberty to grow some more.

Right here appears the quaintest feature of the whole affair, for the pincers are not torn away from the crab at all. Instead he presents them to the fisherman, perhaps even with his compliments. It is a fact easily demonstrable that the crab can detach his claw by muscular effort, thus making no hemorrhage, but leaving the stump in such condition that a new claw is soon grown. The fisherman simply takes the crab by the hand, whereupon it lets go, leaves the claw with them and romps off home without it.—Chicago Record-Herald.

AFFECTATION.

Affectation has been said to ruin a face quicker than smallpox. Its effect on character is even worse. We always suffer for wishing to appear other than we are, whether it be richer or greater or more learned. The mask soon becomes an instrument of torture.

PARKROSE

The most successful subdivision ever put on sale in the city of Portland "solves the high cost of living."

Parkrose is located just beyond Rose City Park, on the Sandy River Boulevard. The soil is the finest and for years has been producing delicious fruits and vegetables. It is situated on a gentle slope extending north from the O-W. R. & N. toward the Columbia River, possessing great scenic advantages.

Parkrose is a Sure, Safe Investment

It is in the direct path of the most rapidly growing section of the City of Portland. Stop for a moment and realize what this will mean in future values, especially when you can secure a whole acre in Parkrose for actually less than the price of a good city lot--and on very easy terms.

Prices $1100 to $1250 per acre; 10 per cent cash and 2 per cent per month with interest at 6 per cent.

Rose City Park cars will run to center of Parkrose.

Water will be piped to all tracts in Parkrose.
