The Automobile Hog

An article on automobile driving, taken from the Bend Bulletin, apparently copied from an eastern publication, fits the local situation, in some instances, so well that we reproduce it. The writer says:

"New discoveries and inventions bring into existence new terms. The automobile added a long list to the dictionary, and continues to add them. Though not used as much as some of these new terms, the phrase 'automobile hog' has a large place in the auto category, for this species of animal is frequently seen driving a motor car.

"If you have never noticed one of these freaks of an age of rush and recklessness, take a look at the next driver of an auto you see and perhaps you may get an introduction. The main characteristic of this animal is the same as that of the swine that ends from a trough. He is selfish and greedy. He does not care for the rights of others, he being the self-constituted center of this little universe. The whole road was made for him alone, and when he travels it everybody and everything else must get afar off or take the consequences. Mr. A. H. is not bound by any 'rules of the road.' He goes at the highest speed the engine will take him. If there are turns in the road, he never blows his horn on approaching them, for what right has anyone else, he says to himself, to be traveling along the road that is his exclusively? If he meets a woman driving a team of skittish ponies to town to buy a few of the necessities of life, Mr. A. H. may stop his car if there be danger that the horses become frightened and plunge into and damage it. Otherwise, he rushes past like a wild locomotive, in a cloud of dust, leaving the driver of the horses to control them and escape with her life as best she can. What right has the farmer's wife to dare use the highway that the government built exclusively for the use of Mr. A. H.?"

"By these characteristics, and others, you will know the 'Automobile Hog.'
"Not only does he bring suffering to those who travel afoot or by buggy or wagon, but to those of his fellow drivers who are public-spirited and careful men and have respect for the rights of mankind. He is responsible for the fact that, in the minds of some people, all drivers of autos are placed in the same class, which is entirely unjust."

A Doubtful Opportunity
A letter to J. H. Fredrick from Wm. McMurray, general passenger agent of the O-W. R. & N., states that a large syndicate in Chicago is endeavoring to locate 100,000 acres in one tract, if possible, which can be purchased for less than $10 per acre. The syndicate proposes to divide it into eighty-acre tracts, break up five acres, build a house on it, furnish two horses and a wagon, and one cow, and then sell same on the installment plan. The letter says that the parties have looked over land in Michigan and Wisconsin, but claim it does not suit them. It is not probable that they will find any in Oregon to suit them at that price, either. Eastern and Central Oregon might have something on the bargain shelf, but we doubt it.

Rev. T. S. Handsaker, who was recently taken ill with typhoid fever, was taken to Walla Walla, his former home, about ten days ago. News received here is that he is very much improved.

Hats Off to Miss Columbia
My tale is of a railroad boss, Named Thomas J. O'Brien, And of Columbia's teacher fair, Who proved a heroine.
Now Tom was herding scrappy Japs, Along Columbia's border, And when he said, "To work, ye bastards," They moved not at his order.
"What! no ye won't, then take yer Bedad, I think ye'll trabble." Instead they gathered close around, And all began to gabble.
They batted him with shovel blades, With tampers knocked him silly, While some took out their carving knives, And mucchee wished to killee.

He boited for Columbia school, The teacher nestly hides him, Then turns to face the angry Japs, Her temper swiftly rising.
She seized the halliards at her feet, And sent Old Glory skyling, It flutters 'round the topmost peak, And out its folds are flying.
Then, ax in hand, "Now stop," she said, "Or here begins the slaughter, For there Columbia's banner floats, And I'm Columbia's daughter."
They stop abashed, look wildly 'round, Their teeth with rage are gnashing, Columbia calmly holds her ground, Her eyes the while are flashing.
O'Brien through a window glides, (The Japs still think him hiding) And up the bench he quickly slides, And gets to Rutlinton siding.
And here he reached a telephone, And sent this brief narration: "The fight is on, I'm second best, Columbia holds the station."
A speeding auto cuts the dust, With fighters quite a number, The Japs are caught, the game is up, Hats off to Miss Columbia.

MOSIER

Guy Wilson of Portland spent several days here the fore part of the week.
Mrs. John Langtry is here spending a fortnight with her mother, Mrs. Sellinger.
Dr. C. A. Macrum and wife left Friday for Portland, where they will spend the winter.
Mrs. Robt. Ross and daughter Betty are spending a few days in Portland this week.
Mrs. E. N. Stroup and son Bennie came up from Portland on business, returning Thursday.
Arnold Wyss of Bakenoven arrived Tuesday morning and is visiting his brother Gerald and family.
Mrs. Lou Graham returned from the Valley Wednesday, where she had been visiting her daughter.
Lee Evans, Sr., went to Blalock the first of last week to hunt. Friday his son Fred received several nice geese.

A large donkey engine was taken out to the Sandberg place Saturday, where C. Masters has the contract for clearing 120 acres for a Portland firm.
Mrs. F. H. Allington of Kelso, Wn., and daughter, Mrs. Blackburn of Wisconsin, spent several days visiting their son and brother, F. A. Allington, and family. They left Friday for Kelso, Wn.
Those attending the district convention of the Christian church held in The Dalles the latter part of the week were Rev. Sickafosse and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Stewart and Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Carroll.
Wednesday morning it was hard to tell what belonged to who, as the Halloween pranks were much in evidence. Some had more while others had less than their share of property. No great damage was done and as each fellow was getting his property home again he could not help thinking of the time when he was a boy.
The ghost party given Halloween by the Commercial Club was a success. There were big ghosts and little ghosts and wee ghosts and one big black ghost who told the other ghosts what to do. In fact he seemed to be the boss ghost. The grand march was announced and partners chosen for supper. Doughnuts and pumpkin pie were served, with delicious coffee made by Mrs. J. N. Mosler and donated by Guy Phillips, traveling salesman for Closset & Devers. The Mosler Quartet sang several songs which were much appreciated.

EXPERIMENTING WITH NEW PAPER APPLE PACKING BOX

A new apple packing box made of heavy paste board is being experimented with by apple shippers here. The boxes are being investigated by the Davidson Fruit Company. It is claimed that they can be manufactured slightly cheaper than the wooden box and also have the advantage of less weight. When packed they make a more fancy package. The only difficulty is whether they will stand up in shipment and this feature will be tested out.
