LONG LOST FORTUNE MAY BE DISCOVERED

Rivalling in interest the wildest flights of the novelists' fancies of hidden treasure buried on the shores of the Spanish main by the swash-buckling pirates of old, a tale of treasure buried 58 years ago in Jackson county has just come to light.

J. M. Howard, pioneer prospector, after a weary search of six years, has located the rotting cabin on the banks of a wild mountain stream, which is said to have been the home of the men burying a vast treasure looted from the Adams Express Company vault when it failed in San Francisco in the early 50's. Now he needs but to find one Charles H. Owens of Michigan, who came to Medford six years ago and started Mr. Howard on his long search for the hidden cabin which he has just found.

It was six years ago that Mr. Owens first appeared on the scene in Medford. Enlisting the aid of Mr. Howard, who knows every canyon and hidden vale in Southern Oregon, he started search for an old cabin said to be located on the banks of a mountain stream near a series of beautiful falls. Mr. Howard knew of no such cabin, but undertook the search. Continuing unsuccessful, Owens quit work, but in quitting he minutely described the cabin and its surroundings, and left. He stated that he had been given a description of the place by one of the men who had assisted in building it and in the burying of a vast treasure.

Owens, on giving up the search for the cabin, left for Portland, his present whereabouts being unknown. Chagrined by the fact that the mountains he knew so well had hidden at least one spot from him, Howard continued the search. A few days ago he stumbled onto it. Almost hidden by the growth of a half century it lay rotting in exactly the position described, by the side of the mountain streams pouring over a series of cascades. The six years' search was at an end.

Mr. Howard is confident that in the neighborhood of the cabin is buried a treasure which, when found, will make him independent for life.

NEWS NOTES FROM AROUND THE STATE

One of the largest fees ever awarded to an Oregon attorney was the $30,000 allowed Colonel James H. Raley of Pendleton a couple of days ago by an order of Federal Judge C. E. Wolverton for his services as attorney for the defunct Oregon Land & Water Company, which operated at Irrigon.

Portland was visited by a record-breaking electrical storm the last of the week, which startled the natives. More thunder and lightning were uncoiled than has ever been seen and heard in Portland at one time before. Thousands and thousands of citizens had never experienced anything like it since they struck Oregon, and any number of the younger generation enjoyed it as an entire novelty.

It is lawful for a person to manufacture wine in a dry county providing he does not sell his product in dry territory, so says an opinion from the attorney general's office. Robert C. Flske, 406 East Ninth street, north, Portland, is the man who raised the question. He says he wants to establish a winery in Douglas county, which is dry under the provisions of the local option law.

State Engineer Lewis characterizes the Des Chutes river as the most wonderful stream in the world, after a trip through its entire drainage basin. He says the possibilities for irrigation are tremendous and the future development of water power no less so. He estimates nearly 900,000 horsepower can be generated in this stream by 16 dam sites already located. An enormous increase can be made by harnessing tributary streams.

The Elks are making great preparations for the reunion to be held at Portland July 8-13. An elaborate decoration scheme is being worked out, the main streets being dressed in the national colors and in the royal purple of Elksdom. Many thousands of visitors from all over the country will visit Portland that week and the Portland lodge has made preparations to care for all who come.

Independence Day will be celebrated very widely in Oregon this year. Perhaps the generally fine crop outlook throughout the state has had the effect of making the people unusually keen to enjoy a notable holiday. Anyway, many places will hold big celebrations. Albany will celebrate the coming of the Oregon Electric as well as the glorious Fourth and is making big preparations. Ashland will have a barbecue. Bend will celebrate for three days, and many other points, Hood River included, are making big plans for the day.

Nurserymen of the whole country will come to Portland next summer for the annual convention. They met in Boston during the past week and gladly accepted Portland's invitation presented by the commercial bodies and backed by the governor and mayor.

WHITE SALMON

(From the Enterprise)

A. J. Hessler and family of Seattle have arrived in White Salmon and will take up their residence on the place recently bought at the MacInnes-Bragg sale.

Jack Ackley has received a second hand six-ton motor truck from Portland and contemplates freighting either for the dam builders or on a route in Central Oregon.

Sidney Boddingtonhouse has completed the four-year course in horticulture at the Oregon Agricultural College at Corvallis and is now in White Salmon, where he will assist in the development of the Boddingtonhouse lands.

Miss Williams, who recently graduated from Vassar College and returned to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Williams of this place, was a visitor in Hood River a couple of days last week.

A former White Salmon visitor, now in Sioux City, writes that he is not surprised that there was some disappointment in the berry returns, for Sioux City and all that part of the country was flooded with Missouri berries at low prices.

Bryan R. Dorr, president of the Major Creek Lumber Co., which was organized in New York City last winter with a capitalization of $250,000, is about to start a crew of carpenters at work on the construction of a lumber flume from the Major Creek mill site to the railway on the Columbia River. It will be about seven miles long and cost several thousand dollars.

Would you hitch four horses to a single buggy?

Of course not—and it's just as wasteful to use a four-cylinder automobile when the single-cylinder Brush Runabout will do your work.

And it will do your work. A Brush Runabout will cover three times the area possible with your horse and buggy—in the same time—and do it at less expense.

The Brush Runabout $450
A guaranteed, efficient automobile

Fully Equipped. L.O.B. Detroit

A four-cylinder car consumes two or three times the gasoline and oil used by a single-cylinder Brush—and the cost of maintaining and operating the four-cylinder car is six to eight times as much.

The Brush costs only one cent a mile to operate. The winner of an Economy Contest drove his Brush 100 miles at a total cost of 39 cents—another ran 48.4 miles on one gallon of gasoline. As one of many instances of its wonderful durability, a Brush owner states after 10 months' usage that he has driven his car 10,000 miles, with no expense for repairs of any kind.

The advantages of the single-cylinder—economy, efficiency and simplicity—have long been recognized in Europe, where they make single-cylinder cars costing five to eight times as much as the Brush.

The Brush is a real automobile, as highly developed on a smaller plan as expensive large cars. Each car is equipped with shock-absorbing devices under the Truitt-Hartford patents, top, storm front, gas lamps, generator, tools, etc.

Come in and see this car. Let us show you how it will save you time and money and increase your business.
