THINKS THAT CRITICISM WAS AN EXAGGERATION

Editor, The News: While the criticism of the young woman who passed over the school grounds on horseback a week ago, as stated in a communication in your last week's issue, was possibly just to a certain extent, we have found that it was an exaggeration or misapprehension on the part of the informant. We are all liable to mistakes, but the public and severe manner in which the criticism was made was uncalled for and does not appeal to the writer as fair or becoming.
 By the way, the young lady did not go across the seeded lawn as indicated in the statement, but along the path. CITIZEN.
