EDUCATION AT THE O. A. C. MADE EASY

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Ore.—Tuition at the Oregon Agricultural College is free, and the only other fees required, except for music students, are given in the new catalogue, an edition of 8,000 copies of which is just off the state press, as follows:

The annual registration fee is $5; diploma fee on graduation, $5; fee for binding graduation thesis, $1; student incidental fee, $2 a semester (twice a year); and, in case of attendance on the winter short course, $1. Small fees are charged in the laboratories to cover the cost of material used in experiments, and a deposit is required to cover possible breakages of equipment.

None of the courses are expensive, and a large proportion of the students earn the whole or part of money for their college education. Books and instruments cost from $10 to $25 a year. The military uniform, required of all men entering, which includes a serviceable suit, cap, shoes, leggings and gloves, costs $19.50. The girls' gymnasium costume costs $3.50 and the domestic science uniform $5.

A student loan fund for the aid of ambitious boys and girls has been established by gifts from Senator R. A. Booth of Eugene, Mrs. Clara A. Waldo of Portland, who is one of the regents of the college, the Philadelphia and Feronian literary societies, the Portland Chapter of A. P. E. O. and the Ashby Pierce fund. A prize fund for women has also been provided by Mrs. Waldo.

The catalogue gives a list of accredited schools, including 110 Oregon high schools and six academies, from which students may enter without examination.

LATE APPLES ARE SENT TO ALASKA

Toppensh, Wash.—Realizing $1000 for the growers, the Richey & Gilbert Company made the first shipment of winter apples for the Yakima valley to Alaska this year, a solid carload of four varieties being sent by express to Alaska, transferred to a steamer from there to Fairbanks and Dawson. The order was filled from several orchards, as few apples had sufficient color to warrant such early shipment. The shipment was composed of Splintzenbergs, Winter Bananas, McIntosh Reds, and a few other kinds from the Walden & Sons, E. O. Keck, E. T. Angell, J. P. Fox and H. M. Gilbert orchards, all excepting the latter being in the Zillah district.
