Entered as second-class matter, Feb. 10, 1905, at the post office at Hood River, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

THE CHILDREN'S FAIR
 Loaves of bread that were light, flaky and a golden brown, jelly that was transparent and tempting, sewing which gave promise of able seamstresses, and vegetables and fruits that showed an intelligent interest in agriculture and horticulture, convinced the grown-ups in attendance at the children's industrial fair Saturday that the idea, put into effect this year for the first time, is an excellent one.

Through the friendly rivalry aroused by the competition, many children whose vacations might otherwise have been aimlessly spent have profited by their experience. The boys have taken an intelligent interest in agricultural matters, while the girls have had an incentive for learning something of household duties.

That the first annual fair for Hood River county was a decided success was shown by the fact that there were entries in all but one class, and in several there were as much as a dozen. All of the exhibits were of a kind calculated to interest the children in practical matters of the farm and home, and an annual industrial fair of this kind should be especially important on account of its influence in keeping both girls and boys on the farm. The success of the fair should insure its becoming an annual event, with increased interest every year.

THE TRUTH ABOUT POLITICS
 At no time is it more important to get political news and to get it "straight" than during a Presidential campaign such as the present one, and at no other time does such a responsibility rest upon the metropolitan newspapers, which, on account of their superior facilities, are depended upon for reliable political information.

In Oregon, owing largely to the comparatively few cities, papers published in the largest cities, and especially in Portland, cover an immense field and upon them thousands of voters depend. It is a significant fact that some Oregon newspapers, and among them some of the most influential, insist upon adding to the political confusion of the present day by distorting news stories to fit their own partisan views and in an effort, apparently, to pull the wool over the eyes of their readers.

Such a policy is not only an imposition upon the readers of a newspaper, but it can result in but one thing—loss of confidence in the truthfulness of the paper. That such an unpatriotic and, indeed, almost criminal policy is being discarded by the more progressive newspapers is indicated by the recent announcement by the New York Sun as follows:

"The Sun yesterday printed Colonel Roosevelt's speech entire, notwithstanding its great length and notwithstanding our own strong opposition to the doctrines put forth.

"This we did because, in our view, the American voter should have the facts and all the facts of a political campaign. In our opinion the day of partisan news columns has gone by. There was a time in the history of our politics when a Republican wished to hear only a partisan biased version of what his sworn enemies, the Democrats, were doing, and vice versa. With the encouraging growth of independence on the part of the individual voter that demand has largely ceased. It should cease altogether.

"The Sun plans to print the facts, and all the facts, on the coming campaign without bias and without prejudice. It will hold fast to its own views and will present them as forcibly as it can in its editorial columns. But we intend that the American citizen, without regard to his party or convictions, will find in our news columns a political record of fact as complete and fair as human nature can make it."

It is time for the Oregon newspapers, regardless of their political affiliations, to recognize the moral responsibility which rests upon them in presenting the political news of the country.

Between now and election there is an even more important duty than to read the Bible, according to Rev. Hargreaves, who says that our immediate exertions should be concentrated upon a study of the measures to be voted on at the November elections. Nor is the task a small one, as the pamphlets now being distributed to citizens contain 250 pages and about fifty measures.

Articles with special application to local horticultural problems will be contributed to the News during the next few weeks by Professor Lawrence, county pathologist, and should prove of great interest to local orchardists. The first articles appear in this week's issue.

PROGRESSIVES NOT TO OPPOSE SINNOTT

That N. J. Sinnott, Republican candidate for Congress in this district, will not be opposed by a Progressive candidate is indicated by announcements made by the Bull Moose leaders of the state who assembled in Salem yesterday.

Fearing that the Eastern Oregon Progressives might suspect a job, the leaders have abandoned the plan to nominate candidates for Congress in the Second and Third Districts and only the First District will receive attention.

Originally it was intended to call mass meetings for the three districts and make three nominations. The question was raised, however, how the Bull Moosers east of the Cascades would regard a call to make a nomination at Salem. Eastern Oregon politicians have always been finicky about what the politicians of Western Oregon do and they might sense something crooked in a mass meeting for the sage brush country being held in Salem. Having considered the pros and cons pretty thoroughly, the state committee concluded that the safest plan was to arrange for a nomination at Salem for the First District only.

N. J. Sinnott, the Republican nominee in the Second District has been a Progressive Republican for years and is satisfactory to the members of the new party, so nothing would be gained by the Bull Moosers nominating anyone against him.

As for the state mass meeting, it will have to nominate the five Presidential electors. In July the five were nominated, but subsequently it developed that the nominations were worthless as the party had not been legally organized. By means of petitions filed at Salem, the party is now a concrete affair, entitled on the ballot to the same recognition as the other parties. Therefore, it now devolves upon the Progressives to hold a regular mass meeting and nominate the candidates for electors over again.

Colonel Roosevelt positively refused Wednesday to give any advice regarding the pining of state and local tickets in the field. He was solicited for his opinion by several members of the committee but he invariably side stepped. He replied that this was a matter that he left entirely to the local leaders and that he would be satisfied with their decision.

WHITE SALMON TO BUILD STOREHOUSE

At a special meeting of the stockholders of the White Salmon Fruit Growers' Union the last of the week, it was voted to construct a warehouse and common fruit storage building 60x100 feet, with two stories for the front half of the building. Erection will begin at once in order to meet the fall trade and crop.

Apples of high grade will yield well this fall from the comparatively few orchards in bearing. About 9000 acres are now in young trees in the White Salmon district and 1000 acres more on the Underwood side.

NEWSPAPER COMMENT ON THE BULL MOOSE

Judging from the following clippings it would seem that the complaint made by T. R. to the effect that the newspapers were not giving him due publicity, was unfounded:

Astute business men are beginning to insist that their advertisements be put next to pure Roosevelt matter.—Columbia State.

We shall have to put an extra "o" in Moses. The Colonel says his fight began on Mt. Sinai.—Columbia State.

Our contemporaries are talking about "The Bull Moose Hymn." The Bull Moose Hymn, we imagine, is Theodore Roosevelt.—Charleston News and Courier.

An anxious correspondent wishes to know whether the plural for bull moose is "bull mooses" or "bull moose." There is no plural for bull moose. There is but one bull moose. (Chicago Record-Herald.)

Colonel Roosevelt says that his fight began on Mount Sinai. He probably refers to the occasion on which Moses smashed all ten commandments in an angry moment.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Colonel Roosevelt is called by an admirer "a man with a profound belief in God." He also had a profound belief in Taft when Taft was not his opponent for office.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

If Father Noah had known that T. R. was going to stand at Armageddon he would not have let the bull moose into the ark.—Houston Chronicle.

SUFFRAGISTS WILL HOLD RALLY HERE

Equal rights will be preached at a meeting to be held under the auspices of the suffragists in this city on Monday, September 30. Mrs. Sarah B. F. Ebrgott of Portland, state organizer for the Equal Suffrage League, came to Hood River last week and arranged details of the meeting with members of the local organization. Either Dr. Dyott of the Congregational Church in Portland or Dr. Chapman of the Oregonian will deliver an address at that time and Mrs. Ebrgott will also uphold the cause of the weaker sex in a speech. Mrs. Ebrgott stopped off here while en route to Baker City and Huntington, after visiting which cities she expects to attend the Pendleton Round up, where suffragist meetings are to be held. Mrs. Ebrgott said that Dr. Anna H. Shaw, National President of the Equal Suffrage League, who is to pay Oregon a visit soon, may arrange to stop here while on her way to Portland.

Middle Fork Irrigating Company
 Parkdale, Ore., Aug. 30, 1912.
 The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Middle Fork Irrigating Company will be held at the Me Isaacs hall, Parkdale, on Saturday, September 14th, at 2 p. m., for the election of five directors. At this meeting the annual report to the stockholders will be made. A water right contract will be placed before the stockholders for their consideration. There will also be considered the question of using the funds obtained from the sale of additional stock authorized last year, for construction work throughout the company's entire system, instead of holding these funds for future enlargement of the ditches above the Ditch Camp. And for such other business as may properly come before the meeting. J. DOUGLAS GORDON, Secretary.
