TRINIDAD'S CURIOUS LAKE.

Its Mass of Asphalt With its Islands and its Eddies.

The asphalt lake at Trinidad occupies a depression of about 114 acres and is probably the center of an extinct volcano. It is a lake in most senses of the word, for there are well defined shores and islands scattered through it at intervals, and the surface is in constant motion. There are also movements which may be ascribed to currents and eddies. The center of the lake is about a foot higher than the edges, this relation being maintained, although the lake as a whole has been lowered by the constant removal of material from it.

The depth of the deposit is not accurately known, but the lake fills up quickly when the surface is removed. The surface is not level, but is composed of irregular tumescence masses of various sizes. As the spaces between are always full of water, these masses are prevented from coalescing. The softer part of the lake constantly evolves gas, which consists largely of carbon dioxide and sulphureted hydrogen, and the pitch, which is honey-combed with gas cavities, continues to exhibit this action for some time after its removal from the lake.

The asphalt from Trinidad in its fresh state can be picked up and molded without softening the hands. The substance is pulled apart on the surface with picks, and the pieces are carted away to the ships. In the bay of Cardenas, Cuba, asphalt is drawn up from the bed of the sea through eight or nine feet of water.—Harper's Weekly. "Young man, get a piece of land" for sale by the owner at bargain price and liberal terms and time. Eight acres good garden truck and orchard land three miles out. Attorney E. H. Hartwig, Smith Block, Hood River, Oregon. 361f
