ORCHARD PROBLEMS ARE DISCUSSED

Many problems of vital interest to orchardists were discussed at the apple growers' convention held last week in connection with the National Apple Show at Spokane, which was attended by several local horticulturists.

Prof. R. Edward Trumble, of Wenatchee, discussed spraying for codling moth.

He said that his remarks were chiefly based on experience in the Wenatchee valley. After several years' persistent spraying the Wenatchee growers he said, had practically banished the codling moth from the valley, there not being more than one per cent of wormy apples. Every year had been an improvement. Two years ago 80 per cent were wormy. This year no one had claimed a reward of one dollar for each wormy apple.

Pointers on Spraying

In spraying, he declared, care must be taken to fill the calyx cups. In some seasons the first spraying can be done at the same time. In other seasons different varieties blossom at different periods and should be separately treated, and two or three sprayings will be necessary.

Discussing the various forms of arsenic spray Professor Trumble was on the whole in favor of arsenic lead spray as opposed to arsenite, though the latter was good in certain cases. For one thing arsenite did not stick to the apples so well as arsenic lead. Arsenite was, however, useful in dealing with other large worms, cut worms and the larger caterpillars.

How much spraying should be done was impossible to say as localities varied so largely. If 80 per cent was killed on a ten-acre tract 1,500,000 might result from the first brood of worms. Even one worm might multiply so greatly as to seriously injure an orchard. In some valleys there were no worms and their increase depended largely on climatic conditions.

Asked as to whether the law did not forbid spraying trees while in flower on account of injury done to bees and other beneficial insects, Professor Trumble said that although there was such a law in many states there was no such law in Washington. In the Wenatchee valley they kept the bees confined during the flowering period.

Advices Two-Year-Olds

Professor Trumble, speaking from the experience of supervising hundreds of thousands of trees, advocated the planting of two-year-old trees.

C. J. Lewis, a large grower of Oregon, was in entire disagreement, saying his experience was that two-year-old trees grown in nurseries were deformed, and that much better results were to be obtained from one-year "whips." He was proud of his orchards raised from one-year trees, and would be ashamed to show his orchards raised from two-year trees, he said.

GOOD PROGRAM FOR HORTICULTURISTS

President A. P. Bateham of the Oregon Horticultural Society has issued the program for the three-day session in Portland beginning today.

The society will meet at East Morrison and East First streets. President Bateham today will announce the subject for discussion to be "Nut Growing in the Northwest," by Prof. V. H. Gardner of Oregon Agricultural College. "The Loganberry" will be the subject of C. I. Lewis of the Agricultural College. At noon the Horticultural Society will attend the Ad Club's luncheon at the Multnomah Hotel, when the subject will be "Advertising the Apple." In the afternoon Prof. P. J. O'Gara will discuss "Control of Orchard Pests by Organization," and H. M. Gilbert of North Yakima will speak on "Commercial Prospects for Soft Fruits in the Northwest."

Tomorrow morning C. E. Whistler of Medford is to speak on "Standardizing of Grade, Pack and Packages for Apples," and in the afternoon officers will be elected. In the evening the annual banquet of the society will be held at the Multnomah Hotel.

On Friday Waldo G. Paine, traffic manager of the Spokane & Inland Empire Railroad, will speak on "Business Organization for Farmers and Fruit-growers," and the afternoon will be given to "Variety Adaptation of Apples," the first paper on which will be given by Prof. W. S. Thornber, director of the Lewiston-Clarkston School of Horticulture.

HOOD RIVER P. O. DOES BIG BUSINESS

In citing the postoffice vacancies which Senators Chamberlain and Lane will fill, a Washington correspondent gives figures which show that only six other postoffices in the state pay their postmasters larger salaries than Hood River, the salaries being based upon the amount of business passing through the office. Portland pays $6000, Medford $2800, Salem $3200, Eugene $2900, Baker and Astoria $2700 and Hood River $2600.

Albany, although a much larger city, pays the same as Hood River. So also does Pendleton. Ashland pays $2500 and Corvallis, Grants Pass, Oregon City, LaGrande and Roseburg pay $2500. The Dalles pays $2600, the same as Hood River.

As Postmaster Lucas was appointed for a four-year term, his tenure of office does not expire until 1915.

Superabundance

"Why don't you men have pockets in your hats as the ladies are doing?"
"Because," replied Mr. Growcher, "when I get through paying for my wife's hat I haven't any use for pockets anywhere."
