

DRUGS

After the Doctor--
THE DRUGGIST

The doctor's work is only half what has to be done for the patient. And if the druggist be lacking in ability and care the prescription might as well have never been written. But we make a special study of each case and our own medical knowledge is thorough enough to be of great use to us in those sometimes occurring cases when the doctor, in his haste, makes a slight error.

REPORT FAVORABLE TO LOST LAKE ROAD

Although Portlanders have prevailed upon Senator Chamberlain to take up with the U. S. Forestry Department the matter of enjoining the construction of the road through the Bull Run Reserve which would connect Multnomah county with the Upper Hood River Valley, a report by D. D. Clarke, engineer of the Portland water department, sustains the assertion made here that Portland's water supply is not threatened by construction of the road.

Although the present supply from Bull Run is not sufficient for Portland's needs during the height of the dry season Mr. Clarke advises a dam and a reservoir. This, he says, would be sufficient for all needs and it would at no time be necessary to draw upon the supply from the glacial stream along which the proposed road would be built. This is sometimes necessary at the present time. The report says in part:

Before the completion of the second conduit the daily flow of Bull Run water was 22,500,000 gallons and the reserve supply of the four reservoirs in the city was 67,000,000 gallons. The second conduit is twice as large as the first, having a daily capacity of 45,000,000 gallons, while the two new reservoirs hold 125,000,000 gallons. The total gravity flow of water into Portland, then, is 667,000,000 gallons, while there is storage accommodation for 192,000,000 gallons.

This supply, it is estimated, will meet the needs of a city of nearly 70,000 people. The available flow of Bull Run, however, is somewhat less during the hottest period of the year than the maximum capacity of the conduits to Portland. As the city grows and the consumption of water approaches this maximum flow, it is proposed to maintain the supply by providing storage reservoirs in the Bull Run Reserve. D. D. Clarke, engineer of the water department, has estimated that a storage capacity of 800,000,000 to 1,000,000,000 that can be provided without great expense in natural reservoir sites along Bull Run will keep the supply up to full capacity of the conduits during the dry season. As the average run-off from the Bull Run watershed is from six and eight times the flow during the low water period there will be no difficulty in filling any storage reservoirs that may be provided.

Bourne Sees No Danger
United States Senator Bourne is the only member of the Oregon delegation at Washington who seems to feel that it would not impair the water supply of Portland to permit the construction of a road into the reserve. In a letter to the Portland water board, he expressed himself as of the opinion that it would be all right, but he said he would like to hear from the department of officials there on the subject.

City Attorney Grant, who is in Washington on official business, wrote the board to the effect that there need be no fear that the Oregon delegation would tolerate any legislation looking to the building of a proposed road into the reserve. He said all were opposed to it. The mayor and members of the water board are opposing the new road.

MILTON APPLE GROWERS MEET

Union Manager Expects Average of 60c Box on Apples

The members of the Milton Fruit Growers' Union have received in cash and material $61,027.53 as advance for the total amount of apples shipped this season, an average of 44½¢ a box, according to the report of Manager N. W. Mumford read before the annual gathering of the members at Milton a few days ago. He said he expects the growers to receive an average of 60¢ a box on their apples when the final returns are all in. The union now has 65 cars of apples in storage.

According to the report the union received during the season $260,748.52 from the sale of fruit. Of this amount the growers received in cash $159,559.52. A total of $69,598.46 was spent for materials and supplies, $3,281.22 was spent for improvements and fixtures while the salaries paid amounted to $23,292.83. This leaves a balance of $5,106.76 on hand.

The union spent approximately $40,719.04 for commissions.

The Union handled a total of 196,416 boxes of apples during the season.

Notice to Pensioners
Under a recent ruling of the United States Pension Department two witnesses are required to the endorsement on a pension check and the witnesses are required to certify that they have seen the pension certificate and that the number on the check corresponds to the number on the certificate.

In order to facilitate cashing these pension checks, we will be glad to have pensioners who care to do so leave their certificates with us for safe keeping and our tellers can then sign as witnesses when the checks are cashed.

OVERHEARD ON THE TELEPHONE LINE

Parcels post has gone into effect and as telephone lines are sometimes bound to get crossed, the following conversation which gives a little insight into the workings of the new institution was overheard in Hood River a day or two ago:

Ting a ling!
Number, please.
"Gimme Blank's Meat Market."
"Hello!"
"Hello! Is this Blank's Meat Market?"
"It sure is. What can we do for you?"
"Now listen. This is Mrs Backto-the-land on Star route. You know we came from Chicago last summer. Say Mr. Blank, please send out a five-pound porterhouse, two pounds of bologna, some sauerkraut—What's that? Are we Dutch? Why we were rocked in the same cradle with a bottle of lager, a fat cabbage and pretzels—Hello, are you still there? Well you might add a small sized salmon, a pound of lard, a box of honey and a fat chicken. Send them out tomorrow morning. The postage will be about 15 cents and just charge that in with the bill."

"All right, Mrs. Backto. Is there anything else?"

"Nothing more this morning, Mr. Blank."

Ting a ling!

"Number, please."

"Hello, Central, is this Central?"

"Of course this is Central. What did you think it was—the circumference?"

"Who do you want?"

"Hello! Who is this?"

"This is Corntassle's ranch. What do you want?"

"This is Mrs. Gasserby, Mr. Corntassle. This is your farm, is it?"

"Yes."

"Well, we want one small spring pullet, a good hard cabbage, a peck of potatoes, a peck of rutabagoes, some carrots, a gallon of buttermilk, and, oh yes, nearly forgot it, a dozen of this year's eggs. Have you got them fresh?"

"Yes, Mrs. Gasserby, they're fresh. Don't you hear the hens cackling? Listen. That's them."

"All right, Mr. Corntassle, send my order down by mail this afternoon. The postage will be 12 or 15 cents. And just put a special delivery stamp on so the postmaster will have to bring them right down for we are expecting company for supper. Good bye."

Don't Be a Habit Man

Do you know what a habit man is? He is a man who does a thing today because he did the same thing yesterday. Repeating is easier than thinking—so Mr. Habit Man repeats.

His name is legion. We find him everywhere.

There he is now—that bookkeeper. He has been holding the same job for the last ten years. He has been putting the same figures in the same books all that time. His horizon ends at the top of the page. That is the reason the other fellow who is five years his junior and has been with the firm only two years is now the secretary at twice the bookkeeper's pay. The younger man thought. He grew. He found better ways of doing things. He became worth more to the firm and they paid him more. Just a simple commercial transaction, that's all.

A Habit Man is a machine. A machine, you know, does not improve with age. It usually wears out. So does the Habit Man.

Repetition is rust. Doing the same thing in the same way day after day wears a rut that finally penetrates down to the very depths of stagnation.

Cudgel that brain of yours or it will surely lapse into a lifetime sleep.

Think! Dig! Make every day a day of improvement. No man is doomed save the Habit Man. And no chains of habit can bind tight enough to hold the man who would break them with red-blooded thinking effort.

Don't be a Habit Man.

WHITE SALMON

(From the Enterprise)

While at the table in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Baker, in Seattle, W. W. Day, father of the Day brothers of this place dropped dead from heart failure. Homer Day and brother, Wm. H. Day of Portland, attended the funeral at Seattle, the body being cremated, which was the way Mr. Day had requested for the disposal of his remains.

Mr. Day was 78 years old, a widower, and the following children survive him Homer G. and Herbert W. of White Salmon; William of Portland; Rev. Ernest E. of Minneapolis, and Mrs. Baker of Seattle.

The Enterprise is informed by Mr. Warner of Laurel that the price at which his farm was turned in on the deal with Ira Williams of Hood River was $90 an acre instead of $65 as first reported.
