THE HUMAN DRUG STORE.

There is a man you likely know. His name is Mr. Dope. He has so many ailments That you'd think there was no hope.

His liver and his kidneys And his stomach and his heart He thinks are so diseased That they soon will fall apart.

It's a cancer; it's a tumor; Oh, it must be Bright's disease! Sure, it's tuberculosis! Every time he has to sneeze.

His appendix—maybe that's it; Apoplexy—it's a-comin'. So he runs off to the drug store, Keeps the doctor's phone a-hummin'.

Morning, he takes digitals; Noon, a dose of calomel; Then at night some castor oil, Aconite and nux and bell.

Goodness, what an awful dose fend! Human drug store walkin' round! Stomach must be perforated. Wonder that he's above ground.

Cut it, Dope! Go get a wood saw, Lay some hickory on the buck, Make that saw go like blue blazes And you'll have much better luck.

Throw that dope on to the junk pile, Chase away your visions drear, Eat plain grub and breathe pure ozone And adjure highballs and beer.

C. M. BARNITZ.

THE DROPPING BOARD ESSENTIAL.

For the sake of sanitation and the saving of labor and valuable hen fertilizer the dropping board under the roost is a necessity to every well regulated henhouse.

It's only where John Bughouse is on the job that hen manure is allowed to pile up on the floor and hens roost over the festering mass. There it rots, freezes and thaws, poisons the air and affords breeding place for vermin and microbes. The hens walk in it, lay in it, dust in it, drag it here and there, scratch it out over the floor. It is mixed with their feed. The result is disease among the flock, and the valuable fertilizer is wasted.

Such a filthy place is unpleasant for those who attend the flock and unfit to produce sweet eggs and pure meat.

The dropping board under the roost is so easily constructed that little time and skill are required. It occupies only the floor room required for the props and may be so arranged as to be quickly removed. Thus the droppings may be easily and quickly scraped off and stored and land plaster or dry earth be thrown on the boards to absorb all moisture and kill all bad smells.

DON'TS.

Don't envy others. The same people may be envying your soft snap. If you're content to do your best, kind providence will do the rest and you and yours will be well blessed.

Don't use an old staid corncrib, the rat pantry and fat hen confectionery.

Don't let fruit rot under the trees that hogs and chickens will thrive on.

Don't paint a galvanized roof until the weather makes it rough enough to hold the paint.

Don't fail to sow a crop in that poultry yard where the ground's foul. Winter rye for winter pecking.

Don't bury the hatchet in that rooster's head. Use a good sticking knife and bleed him right.

Don't expect to make extra gains unless you take extra pains.

Don't go back to the soil with the idea that agriculture is a snap and the same as it was fifty years ago. Such a hallucination spells ruination.

Don't preach conservation of our natural resources and allow your jaw power to run to waste.

Don't consider building a rooster the same as building a box. Some block-heads do that and fall flat.

Don't buy the preacher because he dotes on chicken. Remember he is a prime poultry promoter and makes a market for your tough antediluvians.

Don't get crazy over silver cups. It's nice to win a prize or so, and silver cups have a pretty glow, but it's money makes the fast mare go.

USEFUL VERSUS ORNAMENTAL.

A wheatfield seems not pretty as a garden Where flowers sweetest fragrance round us spread, But if our harvests were a failure We couldn't make flowers into bread.

Red clover seems not glorious as the rose-bud That decorates milady's golden head, But roses wouldn't do to feed old Bossey To make good milk and butter for our breed.

A sheep seems not so nice as that pet poodle That has a maid to bathe him every day, But folks would hardly butcher dogs for mutton Nor wear dog hair to keep the cold away.

That black coal doesn't sparkle like the diamonds That dazzle so they almost take your breath.

But if we had to heat ourselves with diamonds We'd surely in a short time freeze to death.

The farmer doesn't strut like that soft dudelet Who swings up Broadway like a home-made god, But if for bread we looked to that fool dandy We'd soon be starved to death beneath the sod.

My friend, it's right to love the ornamental, But don't forget the useful is the best. Don't fool like butterflies among the flowers; But, like the bee, bear honey from the quest.

C. M. BARNITZ.

KURIOS FROM KORRESPONDENTS

Q. Has a soil which contains much iron any effect on fowls, and in what manner? A. The iron has about the same effect on a fowl's constitution as on man's. It increases vigor, but at the same time affects the plumage, making white and white markings brassy and even light red, while it intensifies the color of black, red and buff birds.

Q. Every winter my birds get a swelling of the head and eyes, and nearly always some of them lose an eye through this sickness. What is this disease? A. Roup. Clean out nostrils and cleft of mouth with feather dipped in cold oil, and spray fowl's mouth, head and eyes with following mixture: Boracic acid, one-quarter ounce; zinc sulphate, one dram; warm water, one pint. Keep fowls in dry, clean place free from drafts.

Q. Do you consider a dry season, like we have had in the east, good turkey weather? A. Drought is not good for turkey raising, because the insects, worms and vegetation from which razing turkeys get their building food mostly die off. Normal weather is best.

Q. Please give me a reliable dip for lice on fowls. A. We advise no one to dip fowls for lice. It is difficult to soak the liquid to the skin, makes the flock look hazy and is seldom effectual, but nearly always detrimental. Use Persian insect powder on your chickens and the older birds: One pint gasoline, one-half pint crude carbolic acid, four pounds plaster of paris. Mix the gasoline and acid, pour into plaster and mix thoroughly. Then screen through a fly screen on to a newspaper and let stand for two hours. Place in air tight can and dust into fowls' feathers to skin. We have kept this powder two years without loss of strength.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

Just as soon as her poulters are large enough Mother Turkey is inclined to take to the trees at night. This is wild turkey instinct. It means protection from the fox and skunk, clean sleeping quarters and plenty of pure fresh air, so necessary for growth and hardness.

Some persons are good at raising poultry, but have little business tact when it comes to buying feed and selling their product. This accounts for many failures, and the only salvation for a man in such a predicament is to marry a woman who can manage the concern, and many do.

Wild turkey eggs are very fertile and hatch well in incubators. David Kehm of Cedarville, Pa., placed fifty-six in an incubator, and fifty-six poulters were hatched. Wild turkey poulters must be watched closely. They inherit the love of the wild and elope when least expected.

When Miss Caroline McGill arose to lecture on woman suffrage at the Be-loit (O.) poultry and pet stock show the ganders hissed and the geese cackled so loud that the lecturer could not proceed until the rubbernecks were ejected.

In the poultry business it is the survival of the fittest, as in everything else. A plant can't succeed where the foundation stock is inferior, and no fellow can succeed who, lacking brains, grit and gumption, has made a fizzle of everything else.

The poultryman should carry insurance on his stock, buildings and equipment. At a fire at Charlottesville, Va., there was not a cent of insurance on 3,000 pigeons and 200 bushels of wheat that were destroyed.

Warm drinking water is an emetic for humans, and, of course, not fit to drink. Warm water for fowls in winter and summer is unnatural and not relished and especially in summer causes indigestion. Keep the water shaded, cool and clean and cut out corn in the hot season to prevent trouble.

Tuberculosis starts often in flocks at the molting season, when feather forming becomes a drain on a fowl's vitality where it has not been built up by nutritious food. Before and during molt fowls should be fed plenty of protein and in molt should be protected from rain.

SMALLPOX CHECKED OVER IN UNDERWOOD

Underwood, Wash.—Smallpox, which broke out recently among some of the laborers at the dam, has now been stamped out, so physicians who have been in charge here assert. A few days ago a case was found in Camp B. The man had lived in a separate house with his partner, however, so there was little chance of the disease spreading. They are now so far recovered that the house has been fumigated and the quarantine raised. Another case was found at Camp 2. Two cases were sent across to Hood River before it was known that it was smallpox and these patients are now recovering in the pest house provided by Hood River for these prurient patients.

Last week all persons residing in Underwood were vaccinated.

RECORDS SHOW NO FROST DANGER HERE

California orange growers' recent disastrous experience with a killing frost lend additional interest to the conclusion just reached by Professor Lawrence, based on records for the past 20 years, that frostfighting will never become general in the Hood River Valley.

The Hood River apple grower today would hardly recognize a smudge pot if he saw one, their use here not being esteemed necessary. In only one orchard in the entire valley are heaters used and this is a pear orchard of which the owner is particularly choicé.

In studying weather conditions here for the past 20 years, Professor Lawrence has found complete records and states that during this entire time there have been less than a dozen occasions when the temperature was sufficiently low during the blossoming period to kill the blossoms or injure the fruit.

"In order to further facilitate the investigation which we are now making into local weather conditions," said Professor Lawrence, "We have just secured two wind vane, two recording thermometers and five sling psychrometers. This equipment is in addition to the 10 sets of minimum and maximum self-recording thermometers, 10 rain gauges and recording barograph which have been in use during the past season.

"This additional apparatus makes it possible to take more complete observations and to secure data which will be of great value to this section in case conditions become such that frost fighting is necessary.

"I am now compiling all the available weather data for the past 20 years in order to show past weather conditions as far as one is able to do."

During the past year Professor Lawrence has been assisted in making weather observations by a corps of observers who were supplied with apparatus which was established at 10 different places scattered about the valley.
