STRAWBERRIES FERTILIZED

Demonstration Proves Effect of New Preparation in Making Fruit

C. C. Cate, who is in charge of the experimental work in fertilization for the Union Meat Company of Portland, was here Monday inspecting the result of an experiment on the ranch of Edwin R. Winter south of town, where a half acre of strawberries were treated a month ago with a fertilizer manufactured from the by-products of the packing plant. Mr. Cate and Mr. Winter both testified to the marked results secured. Comparison between the fertilized and non-fertilized berries, showed the former to be larger, better colored and more uniform in shape. The fertilizer includes animal ammonia, phosphoric acid and potash and Mr. Cate believes it to be especially adapted for strawberries in this valley. It is known as the Beaver Brand D and will be handled by the Apple Growers' Association.
