Mrs. J. H. Diamond of Portland Way returned Friday from Danville, Ill., accompanied by a large party of relatives who included her mother, three sisters, brother-in-law and children. Mrs. Diamond sets an example which would, if others would follow it, materially increase the population of the valley.

For several days last week trains from the East were all late owing to the high water. All trains are to be operated on the tracks paralleling the Columbia with extreme caution. The tracks of the O. W. R. & N. are considerably lower than those of the North Bank and the high water had some effect in softening the embankments. A new stretch of track about 40 miles east of The Dalles had never been reached by high water before and hence it was more liable to damage.
