

GATHERINGS

HALF SHELL AND A FULL HOUSE

Photos by Kirby Neumann-Rea

Dwight Moe, Odell assistant chief, hands over a freshly-shucked Pacific oyster to diner during Saturday's third annual all-you-can-eat crab and oyster feed at the Odell Fire Department. Nearly 360 people filled long tables in the fire hall engine bay, as 50 or so volunteers ran fresh crab and steamed oysters to the tables and cleared away the spent shells. Wy'east Fire District chief Greg Borton said the event was a success, and will return next year to the fire hall, though continued growth may require finding a new location. Proceeds are used for community project and equipment purchases by the volunteer associations of Pine Grove and Odell fire departments, which make up Wy'east District.

GREEN DRINKS AT VOLCANIC

The Jan. 15 GO! Network "Green Drinks" event filled Volcanic Bottle Shop. Featured pour at the event was the Seizoen Bretta, the flagship ale of Logsdon Farmhouse Ales, which brews Belgian-styles near Odell. Green Drinks was catered by Marley's Corner pub. Also speaking were Amanda Goeke, who with her husband, Abe, owns Volcanic, and Becky Brun of the GO! Network, along with (above) David Logsdon and his wife, Judith Bams, a native of Belgium. Logsdon said local breweries "brew and learn together," and Goeke stressed the need for businesses to support each other; Logsdon announced the brewery's satellite taproom will open Feb. 14-15 for the Zwickelmania, a statewide brewery open house.
