

EARTH WEEK

HOOD RIVER celebrates the Spirit and Diversity of the PLANET

More than 100 people turned out Saturday for the Procession of the Species Parade and a cleanup of the Hood River waterfront. These are just a few scenes from a busy culmination of Earth Week observances in Hood River County. (See more photos on B10)

1. KALAMA REUTER of the Gorge Climate Action Network guides a circle of 50 or so at Waterfront Park in a dance of universal peace

2. EILEEN WENDELL, 12, registers some disgust at litter she picked up on the banks of the Hood River in Columbia Riverkeeper's 12th annual cleanup.

3. LYRA PENNINGTON-DAVIS, 10, left, and, Wendell, both of White Salmon, collect trash.

4. SID ENGBRETSON of Hood River Cub Scouts collects trash along I-84 next to the port property. The 80 volunteers made it the largest effort yet.

5. PARTICIPANTS paid tribute to fish and wildlife in the annual Earth Day parade sponsored by Columbia Gorge Climate Action Network and HRVHS Climate Action Club.

6. HANDS CONNECT in a circle and Gail Arnold of CGCAN leads singing before the Procession of the Species.

7. NORA HART, 1, joins the fun at Procession of the Species, with her mother, Kate.

8. ZAN LAPP, right, and friend walk in the Procession.

9. HRVHS Climate Action Club members Bianca Maciel, left, Maddi Carr, and Charley Boonstra pick up trash along the waterfront.

10. EARTH DAY participant carries banner before a Columbia Gorge backdrop.

Procession photos by Patrick Mulvihill
Clean-up photos by LisaAnn Kawachi