

Marbach, Cook partner with Columbia Gorge Press on new Gorge Scenic Area book

The Columbia Gorge Press has ventured in to the book publishing arena with a stunning new photo essay project with Peter Marbach and Janet Cook. "Columbia River Gorge National Scenic Area" reunites acclaimed Hood River photographer Peter Marbach with The Gorge magazine editor Janet Cook for their fourth book project together. "We are grateful to Peter for the opportunity to show the high end production values of the Columbia Gorge Press," said Tony Methvin, General Manager. Peter and Janet collaborated in 2011 on a special commemorative book on the 25th anniversary of the legislation that created the national scenic area. The book sold out in its first year and when the previous publisher went out of business, Peter began a search for a new publisher. "It is wonderful to be working on a product that is truly 100 percent Made in the Gorge," said Marbach. "Partnering with the Columbia Gorge Press has been a blessing and Janet and I are thrilled to keep the legacy going of our work to celebrate and honor the gifts of the Gorge." (The book was originally slated for release in April.) A book signing and lecture, "Wild at Heart in the Columbia River Gorge," happens on May 27 at Columbia Center for the Arts in Hood River. Signing at 6:30 p.m. followed by program at 7. Marbach will share stories about images that reflect the value of wildness in everyday life.

USPS crash effects delivery

A serious traffic accident occurred in Portland late Wednesday night involving a tractor-trailer operated by a contractor for the U.S. Postal Service and a private vehicle. About 1,500 packages were inside the trailer, and the vast majority were severely damaged or destroyed. The Postal Service is retrieving all items and will notify any senders whose addresses are identifiable with instructions on how to file a claim for any loss that may have resulted in this incident. However, many packages no longer have identifiable addresses. Packages mailed from the Hood River Post Office on May 20 may have been transported in this shipment. Contact the Postal Service's Marketing Department at 503-294-2305, between 8-5 p.m. Info is also available at the Postal Service's website: www.usps.com/help/claims.htm.

and in the district, and I've done work on the committee scale with the Department of Oregon." He's served as the post's commander "nine or 10 times," as vice commander "seven, eight or nine times," on the board of directors, as the chaplain — both post and district — and was even the district vice commander "a couple of times," with a service area that goes from Cascade Locks to La Pine. Not a bad record for 36 years. "They was pushing me hard, trust me," he said. Leonard has helped plan the annual Idlewild Cemetery Memorial Day service for nearly as many years as he's been with the American Legion. "One goes into the other after a while," he said.

There used to be more than one veteran's organization in the valley, and all would help with the service. "Now we're just down to us, basically. We just inherited this stuff over a period of time," he said. On Thursday morning under threatening skies, Leonard and Idlewild Sexton Bob Huskey were part of a small crew placing flags on the graves of veterans and getting the grounds ready for the weekend's expected heavy traffic. By Sunday evening, Leonard said, the grounds will be completely ready for Monday's 11 a.m. ceremony start. This year's theme is "Honoring Those Who Have Served," and as such, a new, 6-foot illuminated floral wreath will be dedicated to all veterans buried in Hood River County. Other highlights will include twenty-two veterans' names added to the Walk of Honor, a fly-over by WAAAM pilots, music by the Hood River Valley High School band, a musical tribute sung by Andy Streich, and a three cannon salute after "Taps." It's the support of the community, year after year, that makes the ceremony happen, Leonard said, whether they're working behind the scenes to get the cemetery ready for visitors, or in the ceremony itself. And that includes his daughters, Shelley Leonard and Tammy Long. Leonard served in the Vietnam War from June 1967 to June 1968 in the Ninth Infantry Division, Task Force 117, Mobile Riverine Force. His Army unit was the only one since the Civil War that has held continuous operations with the US Navy, a fact he's proud of. "We were in a lot of combat," he said. "Our unit was about three years in the Delta before things starting going the other way. We had 2,644 KIA (kill in action) and 18,831 wounded. We were there during the Tet Offensive, and they came through the south and went back down through the south." He was one of the wounded. He understands why some vets don't like to talk about their war experiences. "It's not a pleasant subject," he said. "A lot of people don't understand the concept. It's not like the movies, it's organized chaos. Once the first bullet comes whizzing through the air, everything goes south." teachers. Teacher grants are one of the three major activities of HRCEF, along with post-secondary scholarships and projects to support students. Steighner has assembled more than 80 graduates of his program for the concert, similar to one he did five years ago. Expect music from the reunion choir, some solos, a mini-reunion performance by Aurora, and some anecdotes and testimonials, according to Steighner. Steighner will retire this June after 36 years in the Hood River County School District. However, he is already busy with future projects including the musical "Next to Normal" at CAST this summer, and a "musical murder mystery" he is writing for Hood River Middle School drama department in 2015-16.
