THE FREE, five-class "Seed to Supper" series begins Monday, April 13 at FISH Food Bank.

Seed to Supper is a free series of five classes where participants will learn the process of turning seeds into supper.

Topics that will be covered include ways to build healthy soil, how to make a plan for the growing space, planting and caring for your garden and harvesting vegetables in order to prepare healthy and economical meals.

Participants will receive a free gardening book to accompany Seed to Supper classes, to be held on Mondays, April 13 through May 11 from 6-8 p.m. at FISH Food Bank, 1130 Tucker Road, Hood River.

Classes are taught by OSU Hood River County Extension Central Gorge Master Gardeners and is open to all adults who wish to learn how to grow a garden.

Registration for Seed to Supper is required by contacting the OSU Hood River County Extension Service at 541-386-3343 or email to megan.wickersham@oregonstate.edu.
