Frog Showers in Arizona.

Every once in a while stories are brought out about extraordinary showers of fish, of bloody snow, etc., the latest being of a ship captain far out on the Atlantic who ran into a dust shower so heavy he had to set his crew shoveling the dust from the decks when the weight began to get dangerous. To this be there added a tale: "It rains frogs in Arizona. The old timers believe there is no doubt of it, though they can not explain from whence the frogs were originally 'lifted.' But this much is straight—let there be a summer rain along the line of the Southern Pacific in southwestern Arizona, and behold, the next morning every little pool has a myriad of little green frogs, with marvelous croaking powers. They don't wait for nightfall like their more civilized brethren elsewhere, but keep up the music by day as by night. They live where water comes only about once a year.

"They can't live over the interim under the sun-baked rocks; they assuredly haven't hopped from the Colorado River, and they are all of a size, to boot. If they didn't come from the ground or from the river, they must have come from the skies. And that's what the Hassayampers firmly believe."—Arizona Graphic.

SUMMONS.

In the Circuit Court of the state of Oregon, for the County of Multnomah. James R. Conroy, plaintiff, vs. Lizzie Conroy, defendant.

To the above named defendant, Lizzie Conroy:

In the name of the state of Oregon, you are hereby required to appear and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled suit on or before the expiration of six weeks from the date of the first publication hereof, being the time prescribed in the order of publication of the summons; and if you fail to so appear and answer said complaint, the plaintiff will apply to the above entitled court for the relief therein prayed for to-wit: A decree of divorce from bonds of matrimony now existing between you and the plaintiff and that said bonds be absolutely and forever dissolved.

This summons is published by order of the above entitled court, made and entered this 6th day of July, 1900, and the date of the first publication is July 7th, 1900, and said publication is to be made for six successive weeks from said date.

AMERICAN SAYINGS.

Phrases Originated in This Country Which Will Live.

"Don't swear; fight!" The phrase has the ring of sound metal. The American army of invasion advancing upon Santiago de Cuba was preceded by a body of rough riders. Suddenly the Spaniards, who were lying in ambush, fired a deadly volley, and the startled rough riders replied with an outburst of curses. "Don't swear; fight!" called Col. Wood. The phrase still lives.

America is a big country; it is destined to become a great country, for there is manliness and vigor in the memorable phrases coined by celebrated Americans. It was Stephen Decatur who originated the toast, "Our country, right or wrong." Henry Clay said, "Sir, I would prefer to be right than be President." The last words of Nathan Hale were, "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country." William Penn coined the phrase, "I prefer the honestly simple to the ingenuously wicked." And it was Henry Ward Beecher who uttered the words, "The mother's heart is the child's school room."

When nations become artificially refined the phrases which their great men coin are generally either cynical or diplomat. Thus to Talleyrand is attributed the phrase, "Mistrust first impressions, they are always good." Voltaire declared that "Ideas are like beards; children and women never wear them." To which might be added, "except when they are monstrously." Antoine Rivarole said, "It is an immense advantage to have done nothing, but one should not abuse it." Samuel Rogers said, "When I was young I said good-natured things and nobody listened to me; now that I am old I say ill-natured things, and everybody listens to me." To Sidney Smith we are indebted for the following ungracious description of a fashionable woman: "Do not mind the caprices of fashionable women. They are as gross as poodles fed on milk and muffins."

Whether Col. Wood uttered them or not, the words, "Don't swear; but fight!" will ring for long in the memories of many generations.—London Truth.

Highest Temperatures.

It is very curious that the great obstacle encountered in tunneling under the snow-covered Alps is the excessively high temperature. In the construction of the Mont Cenis tunnel the highest temperature recorded was 86 degrees Fahrenheit, which was reached at a point near the center of the tunnel. The St. Gothard was still hotter, a temperature of 95 degrees having been observed in the center for several days. Such a heat, in a moisture-laden and impure atmosphere, could be endured but five hours a day for two days in three; and so prostrating was the labor at Mont Cenis and St. Gothard that the physician who attended the workmen ten years reports the number of invalids to have been as great as sixty to the one hundred. Stranger still was the appearance of a tropical disease—due to intestinal parasites—that is known only in the hottest regions of the earth. Even greater rock temperatures are expected in the great tunnels projected in recent years—those of the Simplon, St. Bernard and Mont Blanc—experienced engineers predicting that under Mont Blanc a heat considerably greater than 100 degrees—possibly above 125 degrees—will be reached. Improved methods of ventilating, cooling and working will all contribute, however, toward overcoming the difficulties of working.

Hook and Ladder Episode.

The new motorman was strong and willing, but he hadn't been in a city very much. He had done farm work up in northern Astorook.

The other motorman was instructing him.

"If a fire alarm rings in," said the old hand, "remember that the department, the fire engine and the rest have the right of way. Hold right up and let 'em past. If you don't they'll run you down."

The second day an alarm of fire was rung in. The car was near a cross street where the department must pass.

"Hold up," said the instructor. Over the electric track tore the hose teams, then the fire engine spouting flame and smoke. The new hand cast a look up the street and then spun his controller lever. The car started.

"You infernal fool, what are you doing?" howled the old hand. He jumped and the new man jumped and the hook and ladder truck tore the front platform off the car and disappeared in a cloud of dust and with its men yelling like fiends.

"Why didn't you wait?" howled the instructor.

"Ba gar," replied his pupil, white and gasping, "I no tink we have to bodder for dat gang of drunk house painters." —Lewiston Journal.

The Finest Diamond.

Mrs. William Astor has a collection of diamonds worth a fortune. But the finest diamond in the world belongs, it is said, to Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt. It is a tiny affair, weighing one karat, yet it cost her husband $5,000. As the value of the diamond increases in an increasing ratio with its weight, up to a moderate size, this Vanderbilt brilliant, if as large as the Koh-i-Noor (102 1/2 karats) would be worth about $3,800,000. Mrs. Vanderbilt's marvelous gem came from Sumbulpoor or Golconda.

Mormon.

At a recent conference of the Mormon church, George Q. Cannon complained that there never was in the history of the church such an absence of respect for its authority as now.

CITY NEWS.

Mrs. L. B. Lejonne is again able to be around after a brief illness.

Dr. P. J. Cromwell has changed his residence to 335 Hall street, corner Second.

Mrs. C. K. Besselen, of Clackamas, spent the Fourth in this city, the guest of Mrs. Geo. H. Williams.

We expect next week to be able to give a formal announcement of the wedding that we hinted at some weeks ago.

Messrs. Rodgers and Slyke called at The New Age office this week and had a long business interview with the manager.

Miss Mildred Van Potter, the well-known art worker of Sacramento, is visiting Mrs. Ross, of 104 1/2 N. Seventh street.

Do not forget the interesting programme at the William Lawrence Dunbar Literary Society next Thursday evening, July 12.

Mr. Joe Grambu entertained a few friends last Sunday. He is the guest of Mr. Hooper. He announces that he may decide to try his fortune at Cape Nome.

Mrs. Hattie Sykes, accompanied by her son, passed through the city last Saturday, bound for Fresno, Cal., where her mother lies at the point of death.

Mr. Chas. Besselen, formerly of this city, but now one of the leading citizens of Clackamas county, met with quite a severe accident last week while trying to lead some young calves.

We were glad to notice the presence of some of our young Afro-Americans in the parade on the Fourth, not as a separate body, but as it should be, intermingling with the rest of the citizens of this great republic.

Mr. Harry Woodson, formerly connected with the Hotel Portland of this city, writes from Atlanta, Ga., that he is prepared to accept the congratulations of his friends as a lady has consented to bear his name in the future. He also states that he may return to our city ere long.

At a meeting of the General Federation of Women's Clubs at Milwaukee, the business was entirely suspended and the society nearly disrupted because one of the clubs from Boston, Mass., sent as a delegate a woman who although refined and cultured, was identified with the Afro-American race. To the credit of the Northern states, it is stated that almost to a man, they stood up for the rights of the colored delegate as against the unreasonable prejudice of the Southern delegates.

The following piece of poetry written in 1837 by the Rev. Pierpont might have been written in 1900, as it expresses the sentiments of many of today:

Our tobacco they plant and our cotton they pick,
And our rice they can harvest and thrash,
They feed us in health and they nurse us when sick,
And they earn while we pocket the cash.
They lead us when young and help us when old,
And their toils load our tables and shelves,
But they are Niggers and therefore (the truth must be told),
They cannot take care of themselves.

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

To all whom it may concern: Notice is hereby given that I have been appointed by the honorable county court of the state of Oregon, for the county of Multnomah, administrator de bonis non cum testamento annexo of the estate of Oliver Van Duzer, deceased, and all persons having claims against said estate, are hereby required to present the same with proper vouchers, within six months from this date, to me, at my office, No. 545 Worcester block Portland, Oregon.

DAVID M. DUNNE,
Administrator.
Dated at Portland, Oregon, July 5, 1900.

Portland-Seaside Special.

Beginning Saturday, June 30th, and every Saturday thereafter, the Astoria & Columbia River Railroad Co. will run Portland-Seaside special to leave Portland 2:30 P. M., and through direct without transfer, arriving at Seaside at 8:50 P. M., and returning leave Seaside, Sunday at 5:00 P. M., and arrive at Portland at 9:40 P. M.

We Are Doing Business.

We came early and are here to stay. The secret of our success lies in the fact that we do business strictly on business principles. We buy only the best of woolsens and pay cash for them. We employ one of the best cutters in the city. Our object is to please our customers and establish our reputation more firmly. See us before placing your order for a summer suit. Unique Tailoring Co., 347 Washington street, opposite Cordray's.
