

LINCOLN.

The hour was on us; where the man?
The fateful sands unflinching ran,
And up the way of years,
He came into the years.

ABE LINCOLN IN HIS HOME.

One of His First Servants Tells Some Nice Things About Him.
In a modest Chicago cottage lives Mrs. Mary Gaughan, a washerwoman, who is proud of the fact that she was a domestic in the Lincoln household while the martyr President was yet a struggling lawyer at Springfield.

LOTTIE'S INVESTMENT

Lottie wished so much to do something to help the little boy across the way who had been ill all the winter. As soon as he was able to sit up he had been put in a large chair with pillows all around him and drawn up in front of the window.

REMEMBERED BY ST. VALENTINE.

play out-of-doors; then she would hold her pet pigeon in the glass where the little boy could see it. She wished many times she knew that little boy and her mamma knew his mamma; she would like to lend him her picture books.

paragraphed in this wise: "Do not worry. "Eat three square meals a day." "Say your prayers." "Think of your wife." "Be courteous to your creditors." "Keep your digestion good." "Steer clear of billiouness." "Exercise." "Go slow and easy." "Maybe there are other things that your special case requires to make you happy, but my friend, these, I reckon, will give you a good lift."—New York Times.

Late Story of Lincoln.

Among the reminiscences of the Lincoln-Douglas debates is one by Gen. Clark E. Carr, formerly minister to Denmark. It emphasizes the wonderful tact of Mr. Lincoln. Gen. Carr said: "Mr. Douglas had the opening and conclusion, and he got in one shot on Mr. Lincoln that was so pat that even the adherents of that gentleman had to join in the laughter. Mr. Lincoln, in the course of his remarks, twitted his opponent with making only one speech; a set oration which he delivered to each new audience, the suggestion being that he was incapable of changing his stock address. In reply Mr. Douglas said that he admitted the charge, and conceded that his rival knew in advance what he was going to say. He wished that he could foretell with the same exactness what Mr. Lincoln was going to say, but alas! that was impossible, since he changed his argument to suit his audiences, making a fierce abolition talk in communities where that sentiment was strongly entertained, as at Galesburg, but in southern Illinois ignoring abolition and standing up squarely as an old-time Whig."

A Bachelor's Valentine.

If I were younger, Mary Jane
I'd be lots of fun for him and lots of fun for me. I'll tell him this one," Lottie said, as she counted out all her money. She skipped and hopped along the street on her homeward way as happy children often do. But when she reached home she remembered that she did not even know the little boy's name. How should she address it? Somehow where there is a will there is always a way. When she talked the matter over with mamma, she told her to address it in these words: "For the boy who is ill," and take it over after dark the night before St. Valentine's Day, ring the bell, and leave it right on the mat before the door. This Lottie did, running down the steps as fast as she could after pulling the bell.

No Funds.

"You promised to be my valentine, you know."
"Yes, but your valentine came with a 'postage due' stamp."
