ATTIRE FOR AUTUMN.
RINGING CHANGES ON BOLERO AND ETON.

Novelty Depends Upon the Garment's Embellishment—Some Up-to-Date Examples—Vogue of Princess and Polonaise Gowns—Gotham Fashions.

New York correspondence:

ING changes on bolero and eton are to continue, and the eton especially is to come in for much fall favor. Suits of black cloth, with jaunty little etons, are to be very popular. The skirts are trimmed with stitched bands of black taffeta, or are applied with bands of the silk. They are made circular and show the Spanish flounce in some form or other. The jackets are cutaway in front, the edges at the sides finished with a band of white cloth or satin embroidered in black or Oriental colors and finished with rows of fancy gilt or cut steel buttons.

Some of the jackets are made to blouse and are finished with a belt of gold passementerie, the bishop sleeves having cuffs of the same. Those trimmed with the Persian embroidery look very fine, their buttons showing the Persian colors.

In dressy get-ups there is little uniformity about boleros. Once a type can be recognized in one of these little jackets or effects, its stylishness lessens much, so great is the demand for originality in them. Nowaday's novelty of the bolero depends chiefly upon its embellishment rather than upon its cut, the latter point having been about exhausted long ago. Nor are many new ways discovered of employing familiar trappings. In consequence the bolero becomes a field for displaying the latest excruciation in trimming, and the fall rule indulges a plenty of it even when its appearance is rather striking. Four up-to-date boleros appear in the first two ental embroideries will be used a great deal as bolero trimming. The abundance of such garments will probably make innocuous the very conspicuous trimmings of this sort that are to be had.

With nearly every change of season comes an attempt to popularize the princess gown. This fall's essay doubtless will have as much success as had the others—it will secure the favorable attention only of those women whose figures are sufficiently shapely to carry off the trying cut successfully. This fall's bid on behalf of the princess gown will be by means of trimming both skirt and bodice portions with bands of black mechin insertion, and by having the deep yoke and sleeves of cream all over lace over white satin or silk, or of smoked and gathered white chiffon. The light shades of broadcloth will be used for these gowns. Handsome two-toned taffeta petticoats, with corsets combined, are worn with them. The petticoat is finished with numerous lace ruffles.

Far more numerous than princess gowns will be polonaise arrangements, which promise to be a striking feature of the fall fashions. As yet they are confined to costly fabrics or elaborate costumes, and women may not indorse them so generally as to bring them into simple rags. Yet the chances are in favor of their multiplying rapidly. One is sketched in the concluding picture. It was of white foulard figured with black, its front of tacked black chiffon over pale yellow. Heved cream and gold lace and black velvet trimmed it. Silks in large figures are used almost exclusively for the polonaise so far, and it is gathered to hang full. This front was an exception to the rule that calls for a white front. Showy fronts will appear in many gowns not made in one. The second dress of this group is an example of this fashion, which verges on the conspicuous only because of the front's striking increase of width at the foot. As it often is of contrasting material, the result not infrequently is staggering. Here the front was accordion-pleated yellow louisine, silk, the dress goods being a light-brown broadcloth.

At least a pretense of lightness and airiness in dressy gowns is to be made till snow falls. Materials will change with the seasons, and the trimmings naturally will be the latest to be put forward, but in the making will be not a suggestion of cold weather. Thus the light and semi-transparent cloths of summer and the many tricks of airy trimming will be prolonged. It will be a fine notion for stylish dressmakers, whose fall output hardly can be used in winter, and she who wants to get more wear out of her summer dress may not find the idea amiss, yet stylish as it is, it is backed only by the basis on which senseless fads are built. Still not a few of the dresses are very pretty. One remains in this picture, a pearl gray etamine applied with cream maltese lace bands.

One of those matter-of-fact persons who apply the rigidly utilitarian test to everything was looking one day at a "puzzle picture" in an illustrated paper, the picture being to "find the man" cunningly hidden by the artist in some unexpected part of the drawing. "I can't see anything worth looking at in this picture," he said. "See it now?" asked a friend, pointing out the concealed figure. "That's the man." "Yes, I see him," he replied, still puzzled. "What of him?" "Cheap Hay in South America. Hollanders had it cheaper to import hay from La Plata than to raise it on their own meadows."

Fine lace effects in silk or lisle still continue the style in hosiery. Glaring figures or striking ideas are abjured.

Tenth Annual Conference.
The tenth annual session of the Puget Sound Conference of the A. M. E. Church met at Tacoma August 29th in the A. M. E. Church. Bishop C. T. Shaffer, D. D., of Topeka, Kansas, presided. The conference elected Rev. J. S. Payne, of Spokane, secretary; Rev. S. J. Collins, of Portland, recording secretary; Rev. Max Scott, of Seattle, statistician; Rev. S. S. Freeman, of Portland, marshal; H. P. Lawhorn, of Tacoma, assistant marshal.

Rev. Max Scott, of Seattle, preached the opening sermon. The conference held two sessions each day. Strong resolutions were adopted denouncing the lynching craze that existed in certain sections of the country. The closing day of the conference was made interesting by the appearance of the juvenile choir from Seattle, who came with an excursion of about 200 people from Seattle. A reception committee met the excursion at the wharf and escorted them to the church, corner of Fourteenth and G streets, where Bishop C. T. Shaffer preached the ordination sermon. The following were the appointments made for the year: G. A. Bailey, presiding elder; S. S. Freeman, Roslyn; N. D. Hartsfield, Newcastle Circuit; J. S. Payne, Spokane; M. Scott, Seattle; S. J. Collins, Tacoma; Mesdames A. Collins and M. J. Payne, missionaries; Mrs. M. A. Fullilove, evangelist.

Portland, Oregon, was chosen as the place of holding the annual conference next August. Rev. G. A. Bailey, presiding elder, will fill the charge at Portland until another minister should be transferred to this field.

Wedding Bells.

The principal social event of the past week was the marriage of Mr. G. Freeman and Miss Ida Haskins, which took place at the residence of the bride's parents, Tenth and Flanders streets, at 9 P. M. Wednesday, August 4th, in the presence of the relatives of the contracting parties and a few invited guests of the family. The bride was attired in steel gray broadcloth silk trimmed with pearls and point lace, and carried a large bouquet of bride's roses.

She was attended by Miss Grace Ross, who was attired in white swiss, trimmed with old valenciennes lace, and her bouquet consisted of white carnations. The groom and his best man, Mr. T. Payne, were dressed in conventional black. Rev. Wright, of the A. M. E. Zion church, performed the ceremony, after which the newly wedded couple had a reception at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Thomas, No. 33 North Seventh street, where they will make their future home. The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Haskins, the parents of the bride, was tastefully decorated with ferns and ivy, while the spacious parlors of their new home were richly decorated with flower ferns and palms. The large number thronging the house amply testified to the popularity of the bride and groom. Refreshments were served to all comers and under many a pillow was placed a piece of the wedding cake, warranted to produce dreams revealing the future. The bride's bouquet fell to Miss Blanche, whose future will be watched by her various young friends.

Among the old time residents that we have met on the streets the past week are Mr. R. T. Taylor, formerly of the Hotel Portland, Mr. S. Jackson, the tonsorial artist, and Mr. Fowler, formerly employed in the Hotel Portland.

On Thursday, August 29th Mr. Thos. Clark and Miss Stella Fisher, of Hannibal, Mo., were united in the holy bonds of matrimony in the presence of a large number of the friends of both parties. Rev. J. W. Wright officiated. The young couple start life with the best wishes of a host of friends.

The colored crew employed at the Breakers Hotel have returned home well pleased with the season's work. The Willing Workers Society, connected with the A. M. E. Zion church, which has lain dormant for quite a while, held a meeting Thursday evening and determined to resume activities. Quite a number attended and the election of new officers will be held in the near future.

On last Thursday evening a number of our young people tendered a surprise to Miss Katie Payne of Oakland, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Freeman, 35 North Seventh street. An enjoyable evening was spent enlivened with music, songs and dancing. The merry company furnished refreshments in abundance and it was a merry company that separated in the wee small hours.

From the figures at hand it seems probable that the Negro population of the United States in nineteen hundred was between 9,000,000 and 9,500,000. The ratio that the Negro bears to the total in the States already counted, if applied to the whole country, would give 9,025,000, excluding Indian Territory, where perhaps there are 15,000 more. If that estimate be considered as valid, it will make the Negro constitute eleven and eight-tenths per cent of the total population of the country.

"Aunt" Clara Wilson died in Maryland a few days ago, aged 93. She lived with her former owners all her life, and died with them. They tenderly cared for her while she was feeble and in ill health, and buried her when she died. The funeral took place from the home of her former mistress, and the white minister spoke over her remains. He took for his text the words: "Well done, good and faithful servant." The pall-bearers were all white. "Aunt" Clara had saved up about $6,000, which she left to her young "mistress," Clara Vannort. No wonder she was well taken care of in Maryland.

Time and again it comes to our notice that there are in our community people who take a delight in storing in their minds every little disagreeable occurrence or piece of scandal, true or false, and spreading them all before every stranger who may come in reach of their venom-laden tongues. An instance of this sort reached our ears this week, where such action deprived the parties concerned as well as others of an expected pleasure. While it ought to be a lesson to those implicated in it to be feared that their sense of right and wrong is so blunted as to be unable to arouse any sense of shame in them. The only thing to do is to ignore their attacks and trust that the species will at some time die out and become extinct.

The last meeting of the Paul Lawrence Dunbar Literary Society, which was well attended, proved to be one of the most interesting for many a day. The programme presented was amusing, instructive and entertaining. The duet by the Misses Wright with Miss Norma Duval as accompanist, was a rare treat.

Mr. Joseph Lee's recitation on Mrs. Nation, and one by Miss Pearl Miller on the Doctrine of Baptism were humorous in the extreme. Miss Edna Duncan's recitation was excellent, whilst Mr. J. N. Fullilove's narration of a few of the interesting things that came under his observation during his trip east was interesting and instructive. It was an encouraging sign to see so many of the young people taking an active part in the work.
