THE PRESIDENT AND THE QUIDNUNCS.

And "the President dined a darty!" And what if the President did? For he is a man, now, hark 'e, And "divil" a bit of a kid.

He's lord of his mansion as much now, As before he was President made, And he cares just as little for the big row And the plots which the quidnuncs have laid—

As the ox for the fly which is playing May chance on his horns once to light, Or leo for the ass' loud braying; Which rends the sweet stillness of night.

After all, what's the gist of the matter Which prejudice silly would scan? The bottom facts causing the clutter? A man has been served as a man!

For the President saw deep reflected In the man he invited to dine, The image of God, and respected True manhood so nearly divine.
—Eva, in the Richmond Planet.

SAME OLD SOUTH.

A Curious Exhibition That Has Provoked Disgust and Amusement North.

Social equality with the Negro means decadence and damnation.—Lieut. Gov. Tillman, of South Carolina.

It will hurt his influence, not only in the South, but will be condemned in the North.—Mayor Pinisey, Augusta, Ga.

No self-respecting Southern man can ally himself with the president after what has occurred.—Gov. Candler of Georgia.

No respectable white man in Alabama would ask Washington to dinner or to go to dinner with him.—Ex-Gov. Oates, Montgomery, Ala.

The president's attempt to make the Negro equal to the white man socially is an insult to Southern people.—Ex-Mayor McCall, Charlotte, N. C.

It is not a precedent that will encourage Southern men to join hands with Mr. Roosevelt.—Josephus Daniels, national democratic committeeman for North Carolina.

I have entertained a high regard for President Roosevelt and Booker Washington, but both have made a serious mistake. Roosevelt in his concession to B. T. Washington has slapped in the face the most enlightened and cultivated sentiment in the South with regard to party.—Mayor Chambless, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Had President Roosevelt made an extra effort to solidify the white vote in the South on the democratic lines, he could have taken no better action than he has done in entertaining Booker T. Washington at his table. The story of Washington at the White House table came as a thunderclap out of the sky to the people of my section.—State Senator Donohoe of Virginia.

It means he (Roosevelt) is to continue trying to put the races on an equal stand, a movement which cannot but fail. As to the effect it will have, politically, it will, I think, make him solid with the Negro voters throughout the country. As to the effect of the dinner, in the South it will stop effectively the movement to hurl it to the republican party. Mr. Roosevelt has injured himself beyond measure.—Senator E. W. Carmack of Tennessee.

If Roosevelt or any other kind of Velt wishes to live with niggers, I can't help it. If he is built that way, he can't help it. But he's got no business, as president, to be guilty of any such criminal folly. It's an outrage on official decency. It's contemptible. If he prefers niggers, nothing I could say would help him. I'm a white man, you know.—Dr. Richard McIlwaine, president of Hampton Sidney College, and a member of the constitutional convention, Richmond, Va.

Looking at it from a partisan standpoint, democrats may take not a little comfort to themselves. Whatever happens, this is not our funeral. Out in the cold as we may be—shivering as we are—and hungry, yea, verily and thirsty—yet as we stand around the White House and look in through the windows and see Teddy and Booker hobnobbing over their possum and potatoes, not one of us is disposed to envy either of them or to exclaim of either: "Wouldn't it be bully to be him." We prefer to take our chances of the future. We had rather wait till our time comes. Somehow, the look ahead does not seem so hopeless, nor the distance so long. For there is here a radical infirmity of judgment, a plain lack of common sense—and, bless the Lord, we are not in it. Indeed, the short-coming implied by it means a great deal to us. Mistakes, like misfortunes, never comes singly. They travel in groups and are cumulous. We democrats have but to get together and to keep our powder dry to carry all before us three years hence, because this young man is a bronco-buster and he is going to raise more of that stuff from the very hot place with the very short name to the square inch than was ever raised before in that particular neck of woods.—Henry Watterson, in Louisville Courier Journal.

A REMARKABLE SALE.

Manager Holt, of the Brownsville Clothing House Makes Unusual Proposition to Business Men.

The extraordinary sale of men's clothing 'ust inaugurated by Mr. Holt, of the Brownsville Clothing House, at 233 Washington street, between First and Second, has attracted the attention of business men from every part of the city. The idea of obtaining such quantities as the Brownsville Clothing House handles at 65 cents on the dollar is a great card, and at once interests men, young and old, who need good business suits, dress suits or work-a-day attire. For instance, you can get a $10.00 suit for $6.50, and an elegant $20.00 suit for $13.50. In hats, shirts, collars and other furnishings similar prices prevail. It is the great opportunity of the season that is now offered by the Brownsville Clothing House, and Manager Holt is to be congratulated on the plan suggested in his big advertisements. It is crowding his extensive establishment with purchasers. Manager Holt is a very pleasant man to deal with, and is doing an excellent business. He has an immense stock to select from, and this sale will continue during the entire season.

Mrs. L. Gatewood resigned her position as cook at the county jail last week. In this connection it is noteworthy that this is the fourth resignation to be tendered in a short time. We learn that it is not on account of the inefficiency of the incumbents, but on account of the boorishness of some one of the minor officials connected with the jail.

The following services will be held at the A. M. E. Zion church, Thirteenth and Main streets, next Sunday: Sermon 1: A. M., subject, "Real Christ." Evening service at 8:30, theme, "Timely Alarm." The juvenile choir will furnish music for the evening service. Sabbath school at 1 P. M. All are cordially invited to attend. J. W. Wright, pastor.

The pastor, trustees and members of the A. M. E. Zion church wish to tender their sincere thanks to the committees and friends who so willingly assisted them to make a success of the Harvest Home entertainment; and to the public for their generous patronage of the same, whereby they were enabled to clear the sum of $20, which was turned over to the trustees of the church.

Mr. Thos. Davis, in the employ of the surveying department of the O. R. & N. Co., had the misfortune to be caught in a wreck. He had a very narrow escape from death, as the car he was in was completely demolished, and he escaped with only his night clothes on, all the rest of his wardrobe being burned, together with all of his baggage, etc. The wreck was caused by a rear end collision of a freight train and the special train of the surveying party. Mr. Davis came to the city to secure a new outfit and restock a car. He expects to leave in a few days.

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

A SPLENDID ATTRACTION.

The Big Comedy Success "Hunting for Hawkins" Coming to Cordray's Theater.

One of the principal amusement events of the season will be the first presentation here of Guy F. Steely's newest farce-comedy, "Hunting for Hawkins," which will be the attraction at Cordray's theater all next week, commencing Sunday, Nov. 3. Judging by the praise that has been bestowed upon this new play by newspaper critics in the various cities the company has recently appeared in, "Hunting for Hawkins" may be considered foremost among the big attractions that will be seen in the West this season.

It was produced for the first time on any stage at Milwaukee, Wis., the first week in September, and scored the most emphatic success that has been made by any new play during recent years. Differing from the majority of farce-comedies, which are usually clumsily thrown together affairs, so nearly plotless that they are silly and absurd, "Hunting for Hawkins" is based on a reasonable, well defined and interesting plot, it is said, that is sustained throughout the play, although it does not contain one really serious line. The dialogue is said to be bright and humorous, and the situations laughable in the extreme.

The company is a large one, and all the principal parts are played by artists who have made hits in similar leading roles with other well known farce-comedy productions during previous seasons.

Bright and catchy music is introduced during the performance, as well as many new popular songs, clever dances, and other attractive and novel acts, which are especially enjoyable to the majority of amusement lovers.

"Hunting for Hawkins" seems to have more genuine merit to commend it to the play-going public than any other attraction that has been offered for some time, and as its merit is well known, a warm welcome will be given the company.

The advance sale of seats has already started with a rush, so those who wish choice ones will do well to have them reserved at once.

A Big Show Coming.

One of the largest as well as one of the strongest minstrel attractions of the times is Hi Henry's Big City Minstrel Aggregation and Vaudeville Congress, which appears at the Metropolitan theater week beginning Sunday afternoon, Nov. 3. Their program embraces eight star comedians, Billy Clark, Lou Haney, Corrigan & Dove, Cook & Hall and Lou Stevens. Their olio embraces the wonderful imitator of song birds, J. Probat. The cracker jack buck and wing dancers, Corrigan and Dove. The singing comedians, Haney and Cooley.

Beautiful dissolving views of the American Exposition. The world famous acrobats, the Brothers Bard. Billy Clarke in Monologue. Hi Henry in cornet solos. The star of all ingenues and premier danseuse, Little Viola Abt. The unique star saxophone quartet. The Columbia quartet and Amphion Glee Club. This long list of vaudeville stars speaks for itself. The house should be crowded. Seats are now on sale.
