SERIFF'S SALE.

In the circuit court of the state of Oregon for the county of Multnomah. Charles E. Wise, plaintiff vs. Elizabeth Wise, defendant.

By virtue of an execution duly issued out of and under the seal of the above entitled court, in the above entitled cause, to me duly directed and dated the 13th day of May, 1902, upon a judgment rendered and entered in the justice court, East Portland district, of the state of Oregon, for the county of Multnomah, on the 16th day of March, 1895, in favor of Charles E. Wise, plaintiff, and against Elizabeth Wise, defendant, for the sum of $111.52 with interest thereon at the rate of 8 per cent per annum from the 16th day of March, 1895, and the further sum of $6.60 costs and disbursements and accrued costs, and also the costs of and upon this writ, I did on the 14th day of May, 1902, duly levy upon the following described real property, situate, lying and being within Multnomah county, state of Oregon, to-wit: Lot 11 in block 4; lot 17 in block 5; lots 13 and 14 in block 14, Columbia Heights; also lot 7 in block 3, Piedmont park.

Now, therefore, by virtue of said execution, I will, on Tuesday, the 17th day of June, 1902, at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M., at the front door of the county court house, in the city of Portland, said county and state, sell at public auction, subject to redemption, to the highest bidder, for U. S. gold coin, cash in hand, all the right, title and interest of the within named defendant, in and to the above described real property or any part thereof, to satisfy said execution, interest, costs and all accruing costs.

Dated Portland, Oregon, May 14, 1902.
WILLIAM FRAZIER,
Sheriff of Multnomah County, Oregon.

SHERIFF SALE.

In the circuit court of the state of Oregon, for the county of Multnomah. P. Basche, administrator of the partnership estate of Basche & Company, which consisted of P. Basche and James P. Fauli, who were doing business under the firm name of P. Basche & Co., plaintiff vs. N. S. Wright, George Walker, David Ogilvy, Sidney Walker, G. Kutzschan and Joe Waddell, defendants.

By virtue of an execution duly issued out of and under the seal of the above entitled court, in the above entitled cause, to me duly directed and dated the 17th day of April, 1902, upon a judgment rendered and entered in said court on the 10th day of March, 1894, in favor of P. Basche, administrator of the partnership estate of Basche & Company, which consisted of P. Basche and James P. Fauli, who were doing business under the firm name of P. Basche & Co., plaintiff, and against G. Kutzschan, Sidney Walker, George Walker and David Ogilvy, defendants, for the sum of $1,457.45 with interest thereon at the rate of 8 per cent per annum from the 10th day of March, 1894, and the further sum of $75 with interest thereon at the rate of 8 per cent per annum from the 10th day of March, 1894, and the further sum of $74.45 costs and disbursements, and the costs of and upon this writ, I did on the 22d day of April, 1902, duly levy upon the following described real property, to-wit:

Commencing at a stake standing in the south line of Clay Street 52 feet west on said south line of Clay street from the center line of 13th Street extended; thence west on said south line of Clay Street, 25 feet; thence south parallel with said 13th Street extended, 100 feet; thence east and parallel with said Clay Street 25 feet; thence north and parallel with said 13th Street extended, 100 feet to the place of beginning, in the City of Portland, County of Multnomah and State of Oregon. Said 13th street being the old name of said street; it now being known as 16th street.

Now, therefore, by virtue of said execution, I will on Tuesday the 10th day of June, 1902, at the hour of ten o'clock A. M. at the front door of the county court house, in the City of Portland, said county and state, sell at public auction, subject to redemption, to the highest bidder, for U. S. gold coin, cash in hand, all the right, title and interest which the within named defendants or either of them had on the date of the judgment herein (the 10th day of March, 1894) or since had, in and to the above described real property or any part thereof, to satisfy said execution, interest, costs and all accruing costs.

Dated Portland, Oregon, May 8th, 1902.
WILLIAM FRAZIER,
Sheriff of Multnomah County, Oregon.

Fishing for Muskrats.

An old trapper whose stamping ground has for many years been the Basher's kill in Sullivan county, discovered a new method of taking muskrats. He found that there were almost limitless numbers of the rats in a large marsh on the kill where the water was not deep enough for the animals to drown when taken in steel traps. He thought the matter over for a long time and then soaked some kernels of corn until they were soft, took several fish hooks and short lines, baited the hooks with the corn, tied the lines to bushes or trees and left the rest to the rats. He found that the animals took the corn readily enough and were properly hooked. A large percentage had, however, escaped by biting off the line.

The hunter then happened to think that the same thing might be worked on wild ducks, says the New York Times. He chose a place where ducks congregated on shore to plume themselves and pick for food among the pebbles. Next day he had six ducks. He was thoughtless enough to tell of the matter in the village and now he is trembling over the threatened coming of the game constable to arrest him for taking ducks illegally.

DETECTIVE PHOTOGRAPHY.

Cases in Which the Camera Has Come to the Aid of Justice.

Photography is every year proving its usefulness as a friend of justice and enemy of crime. A writer in Tit-Bits describes a case of diamond theft in Calcutta, in which no evidence against the arrested person could be found. A policeman familiar with the artifices of the native criminals suggested that an X-ray photograph be taken of the man's throat. The test revealed the hidden diamond. By a trick which Hindu jewel thieves learn after severe practice, the fellow had "side-swallowed" the stone.

A little more than a year ago some evidence that smugglers in Buenos Ayres were receiving gems through the mails put the authorities on the watch. Postal matter in transit could not be legally opened, but on suspicion sixty-six registered letters and parcels were examined by the X-ray, and found to contain twenty thousand dollars' worth of precious stones. The dishonest traffic was stopped, and a large sum was saved to the customs revenue.

A person taking long-distance views from one of the upper windows of a tall building in Rochester, N. Y., caught the picture of a passing market-wagon with a man behind in the act of lifting a tub of butter from the load. The thief got away with his booty unnoticed by the driver or any one on the street, but the photograph, when sufficiently enlarged, identified and convicted him.

A marine view taken by a passenger on a foreign steamer in the harbor of Rio de Janeiro included a small yacht. Two men, Grayson and Linares, had gone out in the yacht that morning. Only Grayson returned alive. He said his companion had fallen from the mast and been killed; but his story was not believed, and he was tried and sentenced as a murderer. The trial had been pretty fully reported in the papers, and one day it occurred to the photographer to apply a powerful glass to his picture, in order to discover the character of a small dark mark on the sail. Under the magnifier the spot on the sail proved to be the figure of a falling man. He reported his discovery, and as soon as it had been officially verified Grayson was released.

A similar timely discovery was made after the village tragedy known as "The Cooper Murder," in Lancashire, England. Cooper, apprentice to McKenna, a blacksmith, was found dead on the floor of the latter's shop, and the coroner's jury brought in a verdict of suicide. An amateur photographer who had been through the village taking "snap-shots" on the day of Cooper's death, developed his films, and one of them showed the smithy with a partial view of the interior through the open door, revealing evidence which caused McKenna's arrest—and his final confession of the murder.

Complaints are heard against the camera as a nuisance, and undoubtedly the owners sometimes abuse their privilege. But cases multiply in which its use is beneficent, and even its accidental work proves valuable.

Dogs are to be used as river police on the Seine in Paris. Twenty Newfoundlanders, warranted to save the apparently drowning, are allotted to as many gendarmes, and it is hoped that in consequence the rate of suicide will decrease in the French capital.

Giraffes in zoological gardens seem to be aware of their peculiar value and ready to take advantage of it. Falling their natural diet of leaves, which they strip from the trees with their long, black prehensile tongues, they eat only the finest clover hay. Moreover, they are lazy, wasteful brutes, spilling the hay on the floor of their paddock and rarely troubling to recover it. For this reluctance, however, their proverbial fastidiousness may be partly responsible. Only an occasional onion, apple or lump of sugar pleases them apart from their hay and there is even a belief that, fond as a giraffe is of a whole apple, nothing will induce it to eat one from which its keeper first takes a bite.

An instance of the possibility of living under a snowdrift is recorded during severe storms in England. On Dec. 9 a large flock of sheep belonging to a cattle dealer of Garsdale were out on the open moor. The shepherds with their dogs collected the sheep and drove them to a more sheltered locality, dreading a threatening storm which soon followed: One sheep, however, escaped and made its way back to the pasture, where it was overtaken by the heavy fall of snow and imbedded in it. There it remained until the snow melted, when the shepherds were astonished to find it alive and well. It had stayed under the snow for twenty-two days. On its release it was found perfectly able to walk home, a distance of a mile and a half. It is curious to note that this same animal had undergone a similar burial in November, when it was "snowed up" for ten days.

Defense of Mosquitoes.
A defender of the mosquito says the great majority of mosquitoes never taste either human blood or that of any animal, not having the opportunity. They live upon vegetable juices and decomposing animal and vegetable matter, found in the localities where they are most numerous, and thus perform a valuable service as nature's scavengers.

LITERARY LITTLEBITS

Ellen Thorneycroft Fowler has finished a novel which she entitled "Fuel of Fire."

A biography of Israel Putnam, the famed hero of the revolution, is being issued. The writer is W. Farrand Livingston.

Stevenson's "New Arabian Nights" and Thomas Hardy's "Under the Greenwood Tree" are to appear in pocket volumes.

About 30,000 copies of the new cheap edition of Darwin's "Origin of Species," issued recently by a London firm, have already been sold. This shows the interest which the book still excites.

James Bryce has written again an article which is in effect a study of Gladstone's character and personality. Between Gladstone and Mr. Bryce there was a friendship not confined merely to politics.

Ralph Hall Caine, who has purchased Dickens' old paper, Household Words, is not, as is generally supposed, a brother of the famous novelist, but his son. Ralph Caine is scarcely 18 years of age. Hall Caine is watching the venture with the greatest interest.

The identity of "Linesman," whose book on the Boer war has attracted more attention than any other war book of the year, has been known to a few people for some time. He is Capt. Maurice Grant and one of his earliest admirers was Lord Roberts himself.

One of the correspondents who accompanied the Prince and Princess of Wales in their recent tour round Great Britain's colonies was William Maxwell, who is to publish a book of his impressions and observations during the tour. It will not be a mere itinerary, but an effort to picture, intimately and vividly, what the tour was and meant.

Comment has been made on the small amount—between $30,000 and $35,000—left by Sir Walter Besant. It is said, however, that except Sir Walter Scott no novelist has ever made such sums as would be regarded by men in the money market as wealth. Scott's income averaged for years $50,000. Dickens left $400,000; Thackeray less; Bulwer Lytton, with a very keen eye for the main chance and a considerable but encumbered estate, $400,000.

W. L. Alden suggested some time ago that in view of the enormous amount of writing signed "Andrew Lang," it was only reasonable to suppose that it was the result of a syndicate of authors and that no such man as Andrew Lang existed in the flesh. That is an old story. Mr. Lang's retort is new. He replies that not only is he a real man, but that he wrote all the later works of Ruskin and Tennyson and all of "the humorous essays and correspondence of W. L. Alden."

"His William of exceptions."
"Recently" wrote a Kansas lawyer, "you had an article about the lack of dignity upon the bench. It reminded me of a case in point, the judge being on the bench in southern Kansas in the early '70s. He was noting on his record the filing of a bill of exceptions and this is the way he did it: 'And now comes the attorney for the plaintiff, rasping his william of exceptions.'"

A CARD.
I desire to thank the jurors who by their careful consideration of evidence acquitted me, also the jailor, Mr. Geo. T. Mitchell and family for their kindness during my incarceration and to my friends who have shown much interest and sympathy during my imprisonment and trials.
Gratefully
CHAS. SAVAGE.

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

"TOO RICH TO MARRY."
Seats will soon be placed on sale of "Too Rich to Marry." There will be no more than 10 seats sold to any one person. Those wishing seats will receive numbers on their arrival at opening sale. The box office, the morning of the "First come, first served," the numbers will be called by the ticket seller in rotation. This avoids the crush and enables everyone to receive just treatment.
"Too Rich to Marry" will be at Cordray's Theater all of the week commencing Sunday evening, May 25. Usual Saturday matinee.

TRY BIG BEND FLOUR.

Unquestionably the best grade of family flour on the market today is the product of the Big Bend Milling Co., of Davenport, Wash. Bread made from this flour is pronounced by epicures, chefs and cooks generally to be unsurpassed.

This well-known brand of goods has an increasing sale in Portland and Oregon. The wholesale agents are C. W. Nottingham & Co., foot of Washington street, Portland, Oregon. Ask your dealer for Big Bend and be convinced of its superiority. Both phones 281.

CITY NEWS

Mrs. M. Oliver has been slightly indisposed the past week.

On the 10th inst. Wm. M. Boswell died in this city after a short illness.

Miss Grace Ross leaves this Sunday for a short visit with relatives in California.

Mr. Wm. Washington and family are domiciled at 286 Quincy street, East Side.

Mrs. R. Bernard, who has been quite ill for the past fortnight, is slowly improving.

Messrs. F. D. Thomas and Wm. Mitchell have accepted positions at the new custom house.

Mr. L. A. Goodwin, of the Portland Hotel has been confined to the house for the past week with a severe attack of sickness.

Mrs. Morrison who has lately been stopping with Mr. Henry Thompson, left last Wednesday for Seattle, where her husband has secured employment.

Arrangements have been made to hold memorial services at the A. M. E. Zion church, Thirteenth and Main streets on May 30th in honor of Wm. McKinley.

New Northwest Lodge No. 2551, and Household of Ruth, No. 844, G. U. O. of O. E., are arranging to give in conjunction an out-of-door entertainment at an early date. Full particulars later.

There will be regular services at the A. M. E. church corner of Tenth and Everett streets. Preaching, 11:00 a. m. and 8:30 p. m.; class meeting after 11:00 o'clock sermon; Sabbath school, 1:00 p. m. All are cordially invited.

One of the latest enterprises of Afro-American on this coast is the paper published under the auspices of the A. M. E. Zion California and Oregon conference called the "Western Star of Zion." It is an interesting little publication and deserves a liberal patronage and encouragement.

D. W. Taylor in private life always had a place open for one or more of the Afro-Americans. Is it not likely that if elected he will be apt to continue this policy? Some know us just before election, but the man that is your friend at all times is the one to uphold. Vote for D. W. Taylor for City Engineer.

Among the many candidates for office there is none whom The New Age can recommend to the patrons of this paper better than Mr. D. W. Taylor, the candidate for city engineer on Citizens' ticket. He has proved by his actions in the past what the colored men may expect if he is elected to the position he aspires to.

A man may be forgiven for committing perjury when such an act will save him from punishment, but when committed for the sake of reward pecuniary or otherwise, he is regarded by all good thinking people as deserving of the greatest degree of contempt and censure lower than any other creature, unless it might be the one that may have been the instigator of the act.

Sunday services at the A. M. E. Zion church, corner of Main and Thirteenth streets, will be as follows: Preaching, 11:00 a. m., by the pastor, 8:30 p. m. sermon by Rev. Daniel Drew; Class meeting, 12:00 m.; Sabbath school, 1:00 p. m.; Christian Endeavor, 7:30 p. m. Evening musical program, hymn, "Come Sinner Come," hymn, "All Hail the power of Jesus Name," solo and chorus, "We Will Never Pass This Way," W. A. Aubury; Mrs. D. M. Newman; anthem, "I Heard the Voice."

The mistake made in delivering to an address on North Second street instead of North Seventh street, a pair of ladies' shoes that had been purchased at one of the leading stores of this city, was the occasion of considerable trouble to satisfy one of the ladies in the case that the shoes had not been bought by a gentleman in whom she was interested and intended for the other lady. Messenger boys cannot be too careful in discharging their trusts.

On last Sunday evening the Bethel A. M. E. church presented a gala appearance. It had been newly papered, handsome chandeliers with electric lights had been put in and the church was handsomely decorated with plants and cut flowers. A special program, literary and musical, had been arranged by the mistress of the ceremony, Mrs. R. B. Perry. The church was filled and the audience thoroughly enjoyed the exercises and a liberal collection was given for the benefit of the church.

On Wednesday of this week Mr. J. C. Logan, the popular head waiter of the Hotel Portland, met with an accident which might have been fraught with serious consequences whilst driving up Third street in the vicinity of Ankeny, in company with his brother-in-law, the horses shied at a passing car, breaking part of the harness. They then became unmanageable and dragging Mr. Logan over the dashboard into the street dragged him considerable distance ere they could be stopped. He pluckily held to the reins all the time. He fortunately escaped with a few bruises.

The Quarterly of the Oregon Historical Society for March 1902, has been received. Its contents are as follows: "The Social Evolution of Oregon," by Prof. J. R. Robertson, of the Chair of History, Pacific University, Forest Grove; "Political History of Oregon from 1865 to 1876," by Hon. W. D. Fenton, Portland; "History of the Barlow Road," by Miss Mary S. Barlow, a grand daughter of Samuel Kimbrough Barlow, the builder; "Across the Continent Seventy years Ago," compiled from the papers of John Ball by his daughter, Mrs. Kate N. B. Powers. John Ball taught a school at Vancouver in November, 1832, and was the first school teacher on the Pacific coast. All these articles are vitally important as relative to the history of Oregon.

A letter was read from Mrs. Collis P. Huntington, of New York, stating that Mrs. Huntington desired to give a contribution to erect a substantial brick building for the use of the academic department of Tuskegee Institute. This building Mrs. Huntington will give in memory of her late husband, the president of the Southern Pacific railroad, and it is to be known as the Collis P. Huntington memorial building. Two years ago Mrs. Huntington gave the money to build the Huntington Hall, the best dormitory for girls which the school has, and not long before his death Mr. Huntington gave $50,000 toward the school's endowment fund.

Shelbyville, Ind., is the only little city in the state of 8000 inhabitants that has a colored fire department. Nothing has ever been said about it, but the city "dads" have the highest praise to say of their worthiness. The company was organized in 1884 with the following members: Frank Allen, captain; D. D. Hunter, president and second captain; Albert Johnson, Joshua and Joseph Hill; Manuel Montgomery, Lon Dennis, Samuel and Joseph Robinson.

Another act in the trial of Chas. Savage, charged with the larceny of $10,000 worth of diamonds from the Hotel Portland was closed last Saturday afternoon when the jury, after a deliberation of two hours returned a verdict of not guilty. The trial was one noted for several reasons. There was a determined effort made to send the accused to the penitentiary guilty or not. Any amount of false testimony was introduced to further that end, but the jury composed of honorable men, heavy taxpayers and representatives of all the different political parties, found little trouble in seeing through the matter and rendering a verdict in accord to the facts in the case, notwithstanding the implied slur cast on the jury by the deputy prosecuting attorney. No one who looks over the list of names on both the juries that tried the case can fail to be impressed with the fact that for prominence and wealth they were far in the lead of the average jury obtained in courts of justice. Men in prominent positions generally feel that they cannot lose the time necessary to sit and hear the testimony and arguments in such cases, but as the case was so noted they were willing to sacrifice a little of their valuable time and use their best judgment in arriving at a decision. It is stated that the prosecuting attorney intends to try the case against Frankie Thomas on the 18th of June, but why should such a waste of the taxpayers money be allowed when the facts presented at the other trial would seem to be enough to force the prosecuting attorney to dismiss this case. Is it a case of persecution instead of prosecution is the question asked by distinguished parties. In this connection let us not forget to give due credit to Wilson T. Hume, the able attorney, who so earnestly defended the case and prevented a man being sent to the penitentiary through a mass of perjured testimony. He has shown himself in this matter to be a man without prejudice to the color of his skin or the quality of his hair.

Exploring in Palestine.
The Palestine exploration fund has been for the last two years carrying on excavations in western Judea. Remains extending in time over fifteen centuries have been unearthed, covering two well-defined pre-Israelite periods and also the Jewish Seleucid and Roman periods.
