OLD FAVORITES

On the Shores of Tennessee.
"Move my armchair, faithful Pompey, In the sunshine, bright and strong, For this world is fading, Pompey— Massa won't be with you long; And I fain would hear the south wind Bring once more the sound to me Of the wavelets softly breaking On the shores of Tennessee."

"Mourful though the ripples murmur As they still the story tell, How no vessels front the banner That I've loved so long and well; I shall listen to their music, Dreaming that again I see Stars and Stripes on sloop and shallop Sailing up the Tennessee."

"And, Pompey, while old massa's waiting For Death's last dispatch to come, If that exiled starry banner Should come proudly sailing home, You shall greet it, slave no longer; Voice and hand shall both be free That shout and point to Union colors On the waves of Tennessee."

"Massa's berry kind to Pompey, But ole darkey's happy here, Where he's tended corn and cotton For dese many a long-gone year. Over yonder missis' sleeping— No one tends her grave like me; Mebbe she would miss the flowers She used to love in Tennessee."

"Pears like she was watching massa; If Pompey should beside him stay Mebbe she'd remember better How for him she used to pray— Telling him that 'way up yonder White as snow his soul would be Ransomed by the Lord of heaven, Out of life in Tennessee."

Silently the tears were rolling Down the poor old dusky face, As he stepped behind his master. In his long-accustomed place, Then a silence fell around them As they gazed on rock and tree, Pictured in the placid waters Of the rolling Tennessee.

Master dreaming of the battle, Where he fought by Marion's side, Where he bid the haughty Tarleton Stoop his lordly crest of pride; Man remembering how 'yon sleeper' Once he held upon his knee, Ere she loved the gallant soldier, Ralph Vervain, of Tennessee.

Still the south wind fondly lingers 'Mid the veteran's silver hair; Still the bondman, close beside him, Stands behind the old armchair; With his dark-hued hand uplifted Shading eyes, he bends to see Where the woodland, boldly jutting Turns aside the Tennessee.

Thus he watches; cloud-born shadows Glide from tree to mountain crest; Softly creeping, eye and ear, To the river's yielding breast. Ha! above the foliage yonder Something flutters wild and free! "Massa! Massa! Hallelujah! The flag's come back to Tennessee!"

"Pompey, hold me on your shoulder, Help me stand on foot once more, That I may salute the colors As they pass my cabin door; Here's the paper signed that frees you— Give a freeman's shout with me! 'God and Union!' be our watchword Evermore in Tennessee!"

Then the trembling voice grew fainter And the limbs refused to stand; One's prayer to Jesus—and the soldier Glided to that better land. When the flag went down the river Man and master both were free, While the ring-dove's note was mingled With the rippling Tennessee. —Ethelinda E. Beers.

All the News in the Head.
"I suppose our western country has furnished more funny things in the epl-taph line than all the rest of the world," remarked ex-Congressman Lafe Pence of Colorado at the Riggs House.

"I remember one that adorned the cemetery at Leadville in the palmy days of that great mining camp. It seems that in the course of a bar-room broil one Jim O'Brien, a well-known character, had his existence terminated prematurely. He was a good fellow in the main and not without friends. One of the dead man's associates, in deep grief over his demise, erected a wooden slab over his grave on which he had written in large letters:

"Jim O'Brien departed for heaven at 9:30 a. m."
"A local humorist happened along soon afterward and appended the following:
"Heaven, 4:20 p. m. O'Brien not yet arrived. Intense excitement. The worst is feared."—Washington Post.

Pet Words in Literature.
There are pet words in literature— words which become the fashion for a time and then take rank again in obscurity. Thus in the eighteenth century we find such words as "vastly," "hugely," "the quality," "genteel," etc. "Elegant" still lingers conspicuously in America and in England at the present time especial favor seems to be shown to "convincing," "weird" and "strenuous."

The Camera in Business.
The camera promises to become as indispensable in business affairs as the typewriter. It is now being used in the reproduction of documents, statistical tables and others papers whose duplication by hand would be laborious and expensive.

It can usually be depended upon that a man who is long on hair is short on something else.
