PRETTY NEW WAISTS

THEY ARE SEPARATE, AND OF CLOTH, SILK OR VELVET.

Changeable and Chameleon Effects in Silks Are Fashionable—Silks Come in Checks, Flowered Patterns, Appliqued and Dotted, Figured and Striped.

New York correspondence:

HEREVER the shopper goes, she's confronted with very attractive separate waists of cloth, silk or velvet. These waists may be found in all the soft cloths, very freely trimmed with tucking, box-pleats, side pleats, passementeries, laces, braid and buttons. Red is a stylish shade, and blues and greens are greatly favored. Then several brown tints are used for such bodies and are pretty when trimmed with gilt or oriental passementeries. These trimmings show up nicely on white, too, and this combination is made in many dressy waists. One of them was sketched for this illustration, a white Henrietta cloth banded with Persian embroidery and having a tiny shield of tucked white satin.

NEW STANDARD IN EMBELLISHMENT.

The silks employed for separate bodies are rich and expensive. They come in checks, flowered patterns, appliqued silks, and dotted, figured and striped weaves. Solid colored silks are used, but not often. Many white waists are included in the showing, and are noticeable for the brightness of their trimmings. An example in the next illustration was white crepe de chine, with yoke of pale blue velvet. Changeable and chameleon effects in silk are very fashionable for waists. Some of them are finished with embroidered dots or woven flecks of white and black. These are very fine. Velvet broodery and much fancy stitching. New rough-faced woollens are handsome and costly. Old-time covert cloths and hair line worsted materials have returned. Rain-proof coverts are splendid for rough wear. Porcupine cloth, a new material, is very rough, hairy and of heavy weight, but makes up splendidly with passementerie or braid trimming. Crepe cheviot is another pretty new fabric for waists and skirts. Camel's hair weaves are standard, the hair a bit longer and the texture a bit heavier than in recent years. These goods are made up simply, or with rich trimming, as suits the wearer. A strict dress of this stuff is shown at the right in the next illustration. It was sage green, with cream lace, cut steel buttons and green velvet for embellishment. Dotted camel's hair, because of its softness, is voted especially swaggy. Long, short and three-quarter coats are made in silks and velvets and in cloths of all shades and weights. They are beautifully trimmed with embroideries, passementeries or laces, or else are completely plain, a few rows of stitching or braid serving as finish. Many show shawl or cape collars, while others have tiny turn-over collars and long stole ends of handsome embroidery or silk. They or silk. They are loose all around and hang very full at the bottom. Some are pleated from a deep yoke of lace or embroidered material. Triple and double coats are shown, as well as many made with capes coming below the waist line. A sample of the simpler coats appears in today's pictures. It was oyster colored melton and fine brown silk braid.

WALLA WALLA NEWS

WALDO BOGLE, Correspondent.

Walla Walla, Wash., Oct. 2, '02. Mr. Chas. Birch, who has been quite ill, is much improved.

Mrs. Ella Davis has moved to her home at 420 Ninth street.

We hear rumors of several weddings to take place in the near future.

Miss Lulu McKee, of Dayton, is visiting at the residence of Mrs. Richard Bogle.

Well, the Fruit Fair is over and once more the people can resume the every day life and evenings at home.

The Misses Anna and Maud Arnold, of Watsburg, are in the city visiting their brother in Boyer Avenue.

Mr. Henry Blackman, stage carpenter at the Second Avenue theatre, has just returned from a month's business trip to Chicago.

Mr. A. D. Griffin, editor of The New Age, and Mr. C. A. Lucas, one of Portland's leading attorneys, were visitors to the Garden City Monday.

John Steinberger has returned from a week's visit to Spokane. He reports great preparations being made for the Masonic fair to be held at Spokane.

Fort Walla Walla is preparing to receive four companies of the Ninth Cavalry which is en route to the United States. They are expected about the first of November.

It was remarked by more than one visitor in Walla Walla the past week that this is a city of homes. What could make a place more substantial? When a man decides to make a place his home he means he intends to stay, to educate his children and to bring them up to be a part of the community in which they were raised. And for a city of homes there could be no more ideal spot. Walla Walla is situated in one of the best valleys of the West. It is a city of good educational institutions, good churches and good people. Certainly it is a city of homes.

Mr. Levi Ankeny, of Walla Walla, is a candidate for the United States Senate. No man can say anything against his honesty, integrity or his character. He has made a success of his business career and he comes before the people of this State as a candidate for this high office. Being a candidate and having a certain amount of opposition it is anticipated Mr. Ankeny will come in for his share of abuse and misrepresentation. Everything possible will be done by his opponents of a certain class to place his name in an unfavorable light before the State. This is one of the penalties of being a candidate for office. Mr. Ankeny has been subjected to a great deal of this in the past. He is made a target at present and it will continue into the future. Mr. Ankeny is not in the least afraid of his record. He has no fear of it for the future. The best evidence of a man's character can be given by his neighbors, his fellow townsmen and with whom he has business transactions. The members of Mr. Ankeny's party in Walla Walla county in the last county convention unanimously endorsed his candidacy for the United States Senate and pledged him the support of their legislative committee. It rests with the people of Walla Walla county now to add their endorsement and their ratification of the acts of that convention by electing these three Republican candidates for the House of Representatives. By casting a ballot for A. F. Kees, E. M. Denton and J. B. Wilson, the Republican candidates, the voters of Walla Walla county express their approval of Mr. Ankeny's candidacy and the hope of the major portion of the people of Walla Walla county that he will be elected. It means much to Mr. Ankeny and also to Walla Walla. Be loyal to your own candidate and to your home.

Services will be held at Bethel A. M. E. Church, 68 N. Tenth street. Rev. G. W. Tolson, pastor, as follows: Preaching, 11 a. m. and 8 p. m.; Sunday school, 1 p. m.; prayer and class meeting, Wednesday, 8 p. m. Strangers are welcome at all services.

The carnival of song and music given under the leadership of Mrs. Anna Poland, for the benefit of Rev. J. W. Wright and the A. M. E. Zion church, at the G. A. R. hall on September 30th, was a decided success. The spacious hall was comfortably filled and the programme was carried out in a manner to show much painstaking effort. At 10 o'clock, accompanied by martial strains of music, Miss Lottie Boldt, as standard bearer preceded the queen, Miss Marion Lee, who entered royally robed, accompanied by her maids of honor, Miss C. Gray and Miss Hattie Wright, and followed by her court. Mr. Ed. Rutherford, as her consort, was "every inch a king." After the queen, who was radiant in her royal robes, had been duly crowned and conducted to her throne, it was a slight to make us almost regret that we are not used to kings and queens in this country, a fact that each one of the performers proved by turning their backs on the queen whilst entertaining the audience. The programme was as follows: Chorus and concert accompanied by Mr. G. N. White; address, Rev. J. W. Wright; vocal solo, R. B. Hicks; cornet solo, A. Logan; baritone solo, Mr. F. Morelli; duet, the Misses E. and H. Wright; vocal solo, J. W. Payne; cornet solo, G. N. White; quartette, Mrs. Roland, Miss E. Wright, Miss H. Wright and J. W. Payne; anthem, by the entire company. The cornet solo by Mr. G. N. White, the duet by the Misses Wright and the vocal solo of Mr. J. W. Payne deserve special mention. After the programme refreshments were served and the floor cleared and those who desired were given an opportunity to trip the light fantastic toe.

We are informed that the net amount realized from the grab-bag social, given under the supervision of Mrs. Mary Moore for the Bethel Sunday school, was $14, which amount has been expended in bringing the Sunday school library up-to-date.

F. D. Thomas has opened an employment office at 335 Couch street, where he is prepared to furnish work to men, women or children. No charge is made for obtaining positions. Any in search of employment will do well to communicate with him.

If reports are true, it seems that Chicago may claim as a resident the only Afro-American millionaire in this country, Miss Lulu R. Davis, who owns property in Colorado, upon which a gold find has been made, that puts her in the millionaire class. We hope the reports will be fully verified.—The Appeal.

Mr. Chas. Allen, formerly in the employ of the P. P. C. Co., who has been confined in St. Vincent's hospital since the 19th of last August, died September 29th after undergoing an operation. He has suffered from an abscess for the past ten years. His brother left for Chicago with his remains on Tuesday evening.

The following services will be held at A. M. E. Zion church, Thirteenth and Main streets, Rev. J. W. Wright pastor: Preaching, Sundays, 11 a. m. and 8:30 p. m.; class meeting, 12 m.; Sunday school, 1 p. m.; Christian Endeavor, 7:30 p. m.; Wednesday evening prayer meeting, 8 p. m.; Thursday evening, Paul Lawrence Dunbar literary society, 8 p. m. Strangers welcome at all meetings. Next Sunday evening the services will be under the auspices of the Paul Lawrence Dunbar literary society, with a short sermon by the pastor.

A pleasant surprise party was tendered to Master Mitchell Allen at his residence, 104 N. Tenth street, on last Monday from 4 to 7 o'clock, it being the occasion of his 14th birthday. The hours sped swiftly by, enlivened with games, music and dainty refreshments. Those present were: Misses Kittle Watson, Ella Day, George Edwards, Pearl Miller, Ruby Lancaster, Etta Carr, Albertina Ray, Masters Severn and Archie Gray, Eddie Mitchell and Mitchell Allen; Mrs. Jessie Thompson and Mrs. M. Allen acted as chaperones.

One of the dearest bought experiences of a business man is to learn the folly of endorsing a note for a friend. On a par with this is allowing your name to be used to further or promote any business venture, unless you are to have the power to control said business. Many a man, and woman too, has suffered loss, financial or otherwise, through some misguided care-giving person allowing their name to be connected with schemes that they did not take the trouble to investigate. One of the churches in this city had such an experience this week when they permitted the name of the church to be used by parties entirely out of the control of the authorities of the church and as a consequence an entertainment was given consisting in part of features that were, to say the least not in accord with the discipline of the church and give the worldly people a chance to talk of a church deriving benefit from practices that had been denounced from the pulpit time after time.

COMING ATTRACTIONS.

"Down Mobil" at Cor'ray's Theater is an Exceptionally Good Melodrama.

The beautiful romantic melodrama of the South, "Down Mobil," will begin a week's engagement here at Cor'ray's theater, Sunday evening, October 5. Large audiences attended throughout the circuit, and from the enthusiasm manifested, "Down Mobil" was highly prized. Throughout the play several spectacular features are introduced, the most thrilling of which is the burning of the old cotton mill in the last act. The most enjoyable feature of the whole entertainment, however, is the singing of the "Mobil quartet" Al. E. Holman, Charles J. Ross, George Henry and Charles T. Small. These four, with the assistance of Nellie V. Small as "Aunt Sue" furnish some excellent comedy. The play opens at Sunny-side mansion, the home of "Col. Harper." The whole family are awaiting the arrival of "Harry Edgerly," the adopted son of the colonel. Unknown to them, the ship in which "Harry" sailed has sunk, none escaping but "Jim Blackford," the man with whom "Harry" left home. "Blackford" is suspected of having been a party to a plot to sink the vessel and is therefore wanted by the authorities. "Blackford" returns to his former home disguised as "Harry" and immediately takes his place in the family of "Col. Harper." He falls in love with "Josephine Edgerly," the sister of "Harry," who is already engaged to "Charles Harper." "Blackford" calls to his aid "Mother Cubarre," who in reality is his own mother, and the two plot the ruin of "Josephine." In the second act, which is laid in the Negro quarters, "Josephine" is accused, before the rest of the family, as being the daughter of a colored nurse formerly in the employ of "Col. Harper." Unable to stand the disgrace of such an accusation, she flees to the Dismal Swamp to take refuge with "Mother Cubarre." There she is captured by "Blackford" and taken to an old cotton mill. In the last act, in the face of numerous dangers, she is rescued by her lover and her true identity established. Mr. Robert Leeland, as "Jim Blackford" and "Harry Edgerly," does good work. He is ably sustained, for the whole cast is well taken. There will be the usual Saturday matinee.
