EDITH HELENA. eclipsed them all

With all this remarkable range, Miss Helena's voice is peculiarly pure and bell-like in quality. She can imitate the tones of a violin and its highest notes with ease. She comes on the stage with a violin. The audience sees her go through the motions of playing the intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana" upon a violin. She draws the bow with no uncertain stroke across the strings and fingers them correctly. The audience hears what sounds like a violin of fine tone well played. In reality no sound comes from the strings-they and the bow have been well soaped and are noiseless. The music has been made by the delicate strings in the throat of the singer, who keeps her lips nearly closed

Printer's Ink. An increasing unmber of establishments, says the Philadelphia Record, have adopted a rule of making special efforts to stimulate trade in the duller seasons of the year. One adver-IN THE NEW TWO-STORY BRICK tiser said he could count on all the business he could do at the holiday time, but what he wanted was to induce people to buy at other times. He found it profitable to pay unusual attention to his newspaper advertising in the summer months. A newspaper whose columns over flow with advertisements of business men has more influence in attracting attention to build up a town than any other agency that can be employed. People go where there is business. Capital and labor go where there is an enterprising community. No power on earth is so strong to build up a town so well as a paper well patronized, and its power Empire Livery, Feed and should be appreciated. The man who overlooks his town paper injures himself by injuring his town and townsmen.—Wanamaker. The first few advertisements may not bring many inquiries, but like the foundations of a building, they are fulfilling their purposes, even if they don't make much of a showing. Keep right on building, and you will have an edifice of more or less value, according to the building done. Keep right on advertising. Don't be discouraged because the foundation doesn't show up very much compared with what you expect the ultimate result to be. If the advertising is well done, and in the right medium, you are just as sure of having a well built business as the builder is sure of having his house completed when the necessary expense and work are put into it.

FIRST CUBAN MINISTER.

Senor Quesada Represents New Republic at Washington. Senor Gonzalo de y Quesada is the official representative of the Cuban re public at Washington.

Senor Quesada. who was the first m i ni s ter appointed by the new government, is well known at the national capital. During the days before 1898 he was the secretary of the unrecognized legation from the then struggling island, and at that time was SENOR QUESADA. made much of by society at the capital. Senor Quesada is descended from an old Spanish family. One of his ancestors, Gonzales Quesada, was governor of Porto Rico. The Quesadas held large estates in Cuba and before the uprising were among the rich families of the island. His parents were suspected of disloyalty to Spain and were expelled from the island.

Young Quesada, who is about thirtyfive years of age, was educated in New York City and is a graduate of the College of the City of New York.
