A narrow margin of triumph was gained in this election, the Democrats receiving more than 1,500 votes more than their opponents. The city, with a population of 16,000, cast 9,235 ballots. Democratic return 4,556; Republican 4,681; Independent 118.

The county at large has now secured its place in the Democratic column, with the following returns: Democratic 12,700; Republican 12,200; Independent 500.

The town of Battle Creek, with a population of 2,500, voted 900 for the Democrats, 800 for the Republicans, and 100 for the Independents.

The town of Muskegon, with a population of 7,000, voted 4,000 for the Democrats, 3,000 for the Republicans, and 500 for the Independents.

The town of Grand Rapids, with a population of 10,000, voted 5,000 for the Democrats, 4,000 for the Republicans, and 1,000 for the Independents.

The town of Detroit, with a population of 50,000, voted 20,000 for the Democrats, 15,000 for the Republicans, and 5,000 for the Independents.

The town of Lansing, with a population of 3,000, voted 1,200 for the Democrats, 1,000 for the Republicans, and 300 for the Independents.

The town of Benton Harbor, with a population of 1,500, voted 700 for the Democrats, 600 for the Republicans, and 100 for the Independents.

The town of Kalamazoo, with a population of 2,000, voted 1,300 for the Democrats, 1,200 for the Republicans, and 100 for the Independents.

The town of Battle Creek, with a population of 2,500, voted 900 for the Democrats, 800 for the Republicans, and 100 for the Independents.

The town of Muskegon, with a population of 7,000, voted 4,000 for the Democrats, 3,000 for the Republicans, and 500 for the Independents.

The town of Grand Rapids, with a population of 10,000, voted 5,000 for the Democrats, 4,000 for the Republicans, and 1,000 for the Independents.

The town of Detroit, with a population of 50,000, voted 20,000 for the Democrats, 15,000 for the Republicans, and 5,000 for the Independents.

The town of Lansing, with a population of 3,000, voted 1,200 for the Democrats, 1,000 for the Republicans, and 300 for the Independents.

The town of Benton Harbor, with a population of 1,500, voted 700 for the Democrats, 600 for the Republicans, and 100 for the Independents.

The town of Kalamazoo, with a population of 2,000, voted 1,300 for the Democrats, 1,200 for the Republicans, and 100 for the Independents.

The town of Battle Creek, with a population of 2,500, voted 900 for the Democrats, 800 for the Republicans, and 100 for the Independents.

The town of Muskegon, with a population of 7,000, voted 4,000 for the Democrats, 3,000 for the Republicans, and 500 for the Independents.

The town of Grand Rapids, with a population of 10,000, voted 5,000 for the Democrats, 4,000 for the Republicans, and 1,000 for the Independents.

The town of Detroit, with a population of 50,000, voted 20,000 for the Democrats, 15,000 for the Republicans, and 5,000 for the Independents.

The town of Lansing, with a population of 3,000, voted 1,200 for the Democrats, 1,000 for the Republicans, and 300 for the Independents.

The town of Benton Harbor, with a population of 1,500, voted 700 for the Democrats, 600 for the Republicans, and 100 for the Independents.

The town of Kalamazoo, with a population of 2,000, voted 1,300 for the Democrats, 1,200 for the Republicans, and 100 for the Independents.

The town of Battle Creek, with a population of 2,500, voted 900 for the Democrats, 800 for the Republicans, and 100 for the Independents.

The town of Muskegon, with a population of 7,000, voted 4,000 for the Democrats, 3,000 for the Republicans, and 500 for the Independents.