For the Argus.

Chance for Contesting an Election. Ma. Epiron-Dear Sir : I see, by a hasty scanning of the vote cast in Yamhill county, that the entire Democratic ticket is elected. It might be well enough to state to you for the information of the people and the parties concerned, how, to ters, living in Washington county, men induced (some, perhaps, because it was more convenient and others because they wished to carry the county) to go to Yamhill county and vote. The one who was most active in "establishing the county line" (just before the election) by running away to be elected to the office of County Surveyor. He has been particularly desirous of enlarging Yamhill county for the last two or three years. That and getting a new county has been a learned whether they did so vote or not. The poll books would tell if examined. That is an advantage in the vira voce system of voting.

Mr. Shuck, I understand, too, took upon himself Legislative Assembly; because it took a small slice from Yambill county, in which part are included some eighteen or twenty voters. I give these hints to the parties interested that they may know, in part, to what the result is attributable. The county line is very indefinite between these two counties and designing persons can impose upon the voters very much when they are disposed to do so. There are many difficulties arising from this state of uncertainty. Some persons escape paying taxes by declaring themselves residents of both counties. and some, too, escape justice on the same plea.

The prayer of the people, that is the mass of them has been that that line might be established, and temp'ed last winter, it is said, but the new line has been pullified. I was not aware that anything of the kind could be done during the interregnum of the Legislature. RADIUS. Near Linn City, June 18, 1855.

For the Argue.

Mr. "Standard," you will pardon us for regarding your dunning as mere buncombe--joking, since we are compelled to so regard it, in consequence of your course toward 'Reformer's' temperance article and toward us generally as Temperance men. Why promise us-both publicly and privately-that your columns should be open to the advocacy of Temperance principles, when, probably, as it now appears, you did not so intend? Did you design your promise a mere trap to catch a few Temperance subserbers? Candidly, Sir, do you mean by saying "shall appear", that it shall not appear?-When you said "my Paper is open to Temperance discussion "did you mean that it was not so open ? So, when you ask your delinquent subscribers to " pay up " you mean, -of course-that they need not pay! Ahem!-accordingly;-yes, we understand you-" all right "-" drive on !" -Since so promising, has some "a greater than I" entered your sanctum with the interdicting edict," thus far shalt thou go and no farther "? Is this the fiat of him "the latchet of whose shoes," etc. ? "Crowded out?"- pish ! fudge! Are we to regard the Standard's language as more persiftage? Does the Oregon Press intend to reject from its columns, every thing calculated to ameliorate the moral contion, in the complement, - as all those, who have read the best,-though youngest, know! Some wish that the Press would become more friendly toward the Temperance Cause. Reject morality, and what is our destiny? The "offense is rank, It smells to Heaven!" " O the Times!" SO SO.

We have witnessed many a conflict, between the opposing hosts of truth and error, of morality and vice, of the friends of the only true God, and the worshipers of mammon, and we have just as often seen when the conflict waxed warm, and the hosts that rallied under the white banner of truth, have discovered that they fought against a dreadful odds, there has always been a Judas, an Arnold, or a Gorgey, ready to barter away their principles and their friends, besides multitudes of the common soldiery, who through fear of conquest, a love for a huge and imposing army, or from motives of worldly ease, and popular fame, or perhaps, from the influence of all these motives put together, with a thousand and one other small, secret, active influences, which the arch enemy to truth knows full well how to make most efficacious in multiplying deserters, who have been ready to go er to the enem arrows right through the warm palpitating hearts of their brethren and dearest earthly friends. Such a spectacle is not only humiliating, but painful to an excruciating degree to the man who has a keen perception of right, a proper appreciation of the manliness and God-like dignity of the true hero, who never wavers or falters, but who in the strong conviction of the correctness of his Mr. Editor-I am a working man, by position, like Homer's heroes, fights on "covered with sweat and honorable dust," sentences for you to print, but I am deeply and who, when pierced with the barbed interested in the subject of Temperance, arrow of perhaps a former companion in and there are a few others, and but a few, arms, exclaimes like the immortal Wolfe. who are as deeply interested in it as I am. upon the hights of Quebec, when his It is for their benefit as well as my own that dying ears are saluted by the shout "they I want to state certain facts to you, and ask fly, they fly," (the French) "Then I die in peace.

THE JOLLY SONS OF RUM.

Hurra for Rum and Ignorance, Hurra for jolly times, Hurra for good whole-hearted men Who spend their jolly dimes, And drink a cheerful, smoking glass, And as they pour it down, Say they have floored the Temperance me And done the thing up brown.

Yes, Temperance is buried, boys, And we'll drink a jolly glass To the men of Marion County Who brought the thing to pass : Here 's to the jolly preachers Who helped us in the fray. Who preached so well for Temperance And worked the other way.

Three cheers for gallant Heee ! First name upon our rolls, Who railied all the Jews in town. And led them to the polls; He heads the gallant legion, He led up to the breach, He voted all our men but Seese And hurried off to teach.

Whilst he and Bosses teach our youth

No danger can come n'gh The jolly friends of alcohol Or cause their hearts to sigh; Just let the boys, to manhood grown, But vote as well as they, And farther from our land is flown The hope of Temperance' sway. Hurra for brother Posses, Who voted for the whole Intrepid band that cherish A love for Rum's control. We laughed to see him vote so loud, And it tickled us to know So many of our clergymen For jolly Rum would go.

They say he wrote a letter once From Orford's glittering mine, Enticing many a foolish dunce To seek a goldless shrine ; But this I know full well, my boys, And proud I am to say, He does not vote or write, my boys, But that he makes it pay.

The trump card of the pack. The most sincerely pious man Upon the liquor track. Hurra for brother P A mile or so from town, He is the man will dare to face The Temperance movement down.

They acted for a precious right, The right of all to drink . They helped the cause with all their might, And never stopped to think. These lead the pious legion, Are men who preach so well, That whilst they talk of Heaven, They aid the cause of Hell.

Their allies are the drunken French, Another legion brave. Men who will never leave the cause, Till leaving for the grave. A third baltalion marches up, With real that never dies, Men whose devotion to the cup Has earned their bloodshot eyes.

The Democrats are pledged to us. And form the fourth array, And surely four more gallant bands Have never faced the fray. Some "steal the livery of Heaven To serve the Devil in. But little care we for the means, So long as Rum can win.

Hurra, then, for our legions, Who 've won the fight to-day, Hurra for Rum and ruin, Let's take a jolly drink all round, And sing this jolly song, And keep this jolly revel up, Till our jolly dimes are gone ! SALEM, June 4, 1855.
