At the bar, at the bar, At the bar thundered, Thundered with fiercest din Topers one hundred.

There stood those thirsty men, Thirsty one hundred ; Calling for drink in vain, The bar-keepers slumbered ; Hark, there's a sound from one ! List how the curies come From each and every one! Of that dry one hundred.

Into the bar they pitch, Noble old topers, For up came an order which Pleased these old soakers, "Forward the Tight Brigade! Take the bar," Muggins said ! Into it undismayed, Pitched now each drunken blade-Pitched the out hundred.

"Forward the Tight Brigade!" Gods, what a charge they made! No man was there afraid, No person blundered. Theirs but to drink their fill. Theirs but to have a swill, Ala yes, they knew it well!

Knowing one hundred. Bottles to right of them, Bottles to left of them, Bottles in front of them, Labeled and numbered: Nobly they fought, and well, There many a hero fell, Covered with blood and beer, Beer that they loved so well, Gallant one hundred.

Raised now each nose in air. See what is under there. Mugs charged with lager beer-All the world wondered! Fercer the revel grows, Redder each blazing nose, Paster the liquor flows, Under the table goes Half of the hundred.

Bottles to the right of them, Bottles to the left of them, Bottles all round them, Emptied and sundered; Out from that dreadful room, Out from that dark saloon, Came forth a beery fume, Came forth a dismal moan, But none of the hundred.

When they awoke again, Oh, how their heads did pain; No person wondered. Honor the Tight Brigade! Honor the charge they made, Thirsty one hundred.
