SONG BY GOETHE.

What a pretty song is this of Gorthe's, tra ted by Mr. Bangroft !

A violet blomomed on the green, With lowly stem and bloom unseen, It was a sweet was flower. A shepherd maiden came that way, With lightsome step and aspect gay; Came near, came near, Came o'er the green with song.

Ah! thought the violet, might I be The fairest flower on all the lea-Ah! but for one brief hour ! And might be plucked by that dear maid And gently on her bosom laid, Ah! but, Ah! but A few dear moments long. Alas! the maiden, as she possed,

No eye mon the violet cast, She crushed the poor wee flower. It sank, and dying, heaved a sigh: And if I die, at least I die By her, by her, Beneath her feet I die!

A Lover Still.

"No longer a lover!" exclaimed an aged patriarch; "Ah! you mistake me, if you think age has blotted out my heart,-Though silver hair fall over a brow all wrinkled, and a cheek all farrowed, yet I am a lover still. I love the beauty of the maiden's blush, the soft tint of flowers, the singing of birds, and above all, the silvery laugh of a child. I love the starlike meadows where butter-cups grow, with almost the same enthusiaem as when, with my ringlets flying loose in the wind, and my cap Her face is carewort, but it has ever held a smile for me. Often have I shared the bitlike the faded rose, the perfume of her love placed flowers in the casements, and in the folded hand of the dead; together wept over little graves. Through storm and sunshine we have clung together; and now she sits with her knitting, her cap quaintly frilled, the old-styled 'kerchief crossed white and and truly for me, the dim blue eye that private property. shrinkingly fronts the glad day, the sunlight throwing her a parting farewell, kisses her brow, and leaves upon its faint tracery of wrinkles angelic radiance. I see, though no one else can, the bright glad young face that won me first, shine through those withered features, and the glowing love of forty years thrills my heart till the tears come .-Say not again I can no longer be a lover. Though this form be bowed, God has implanted eternal love within. Let the ear be deaf, the eye blind, the hands palsied, the limbs withered, the brain clouded, yet the heart, the true heart, may hold such wealth of love, that all the power of death and the victorious grave shall not be able to put out its quenchless flame."
