LATE FROM EUROPE

No News from the Seat of War. SEBASTOPOL NOT TAKEN.

Sweaborg Not Destroyed.

We have news from Europe to the 8th of Sept. From the war there is nothing of importance. No further fighting has taken place at Sebastopol. The allied parallels before the south side were completed on the 18th Aug., but no bombardment has yet taken place. It is stated that Gen. Todtleben, who is still alive, has just completed a work called the Fort of the Holy Cross, armed with guns of the heaviest caliber, portance, and how best secured: S. Ells- which completely commands the Malakoff.

The Turkish Quartermaster General, who was with Omer Pasha in the Crimen, speaks in the highest terms of the new system of fortification in roduced by the Russians .-Gen. Melnikoff has fortified the space between the first and second lines of defense by means of mines, trenches, covered ways, fortified passes to the steep plateau, where palisades, and small redoubts. Between Pt. Paul and Bastion I. he has constructed works which so command the Malakoff tower and Korniloff bastion that the Allies would not be able to maintain them even if they obtained possession of them. In consequence of the improvements made by the Moral qualification of Teachers : Mrs. Russians in their fortifications, Gen. Pelissier has been obliged to make some alteration in his plan of operation.

The losses on both sides are enormousthe English losing 60 men a night, and the French 100 men a night, in keeping their position. English accounts represent the Russians as suffering severely for want of provisions, but this is very doubtful.

The news of the destruction of Sweaborg, brought by the last steamer, turns out to be untrue. It seems that nothing was effected not properly constructed; the burning of some buildings and the destruction of a considerable amount of property; and that the forts and other works of defense are in as will open when the time comes will be ungood, or nearly as good, condition, as when the Allies began the bombardment. The Russians did not anticipate an attack from gun boats, and hence left some points un- April was surpassed by the two days which guarded, trusting to the shallowness of the preceded the capture of the Mamelon; but water. He was for took them in the flank, and the rifles of the Zouaves did the most murderous execution, and they were obliged to yield. The same absence of generalship, and of all maneuvers calculated to facilitate the struggle and assure the desired victory was conspicious here as at Inkermann. The men fought bravely but the ineapacity of their commanders ren lered their courage vain. Indeed, while we incline to agree with an opinion which a has experienced considerable losses. Brussel journal attributes to Omer Pasha, we must extend its application. According to this authority "Omer Pasha freely expressed himself at Constantinople that the allie | commanders-especially Gen. Pelissier-were humbugs, and that he should twice have lost his army if he had followed their advice." This is very probably true, but the Russian generals are quite as much humbugs as their opponents.

Omer, by the way, is going with his army to Asia, to fight there against the Russians, now under Muravieff besieging Kars.

The Slege. The bloody episode of the fight of Traktir seems likely to have little effect on the course of events in the Crimea. The Russians have retired up their narrow and wellaccording to Gen. Simpson's latest report they are once more prepared for offensive movement. Attention is, therefore, again turned to the siege of Sebastopol. Little on which a judgment may be founded can be learned either from the despatches of the generals or from the correspondence of let ter writers before the city. To our previous knowledge that the besiegers' sap had approached very near to the Russian defenses. we now learn that the foremost parallel which has been begun at the two ends, was completed and united in the middle, on the 18th of August. Since then a fortnight has passed without much incident. Gen. Simpson mentions a small sortie in which the Russians succeeded in destroying some gabions. For the rest-the daily life of the camp, its hardships and amusements, the seyond the blowing up of some magazines, death or leave of individual officers, fill both public and private letters. On the great preparations of the last ten weeks the hopes of the besiegers are fixed, and the fire that exampled in the history of warfare.

importance by the same medium. In the former affair the Russians were certainly repelled, and with loss, but not disasterously, as this Government pretends. And as for the bombardment, all now admit (but privately, of course) its real and sinister significance as a failure to effect the hopedfor breach, and serve as a prelude to another grand attack on Malakoff. That attack seems now indefinitely postponed. It is the conviction that, during the last ten days, the electric telegraph, the Moniteur, and even the imperial pen itself, in the letter to Gen. Pelissier, have been conspiring to prevent a cloud from darkening the foreground while Queen Victoria was in France that has caused the painful depression and misgiving that are now observable on the public mind.
