A POEM BY FANNY FORRESTER. N. P. Willie, of the Home Journal, in one of his letters from Idlewild, gives us the following before unpublished poem from the gifted and universally beloved "Fanny Forrester," Mrs Judson. It is all sionary to "India's coral stand," the story of whose Henry VIII. were matched by an equally all Christendom :-

I gazed down life's green labyrinth, A wildering maze to see, Crossed o'er by many a tangled clue; An wild as wild could be ; And as I gazed in doubt and dread, An angel came to me.

I knew him for a heavenly guide, I knew him even then, The meekly as a child he stood Among the sons of men .--By his deep spirit-leveliness, I knew him even then.

And as I leaned my weary head Upon his proffered breast, And scanned the peril haunted wild From out my place of rest, I wondered if the shining oces Of Eden were more blessed.

For there was light within my soul, Light on my peaceful way, And all around the blue above The clustering startight lay And easterly I saw unreasted The pearly gates of day.

So hand in hand, we tred the wild, My angel love and I-His lifted wings all quivering With tokens from the sky. Strange my dull thought could not divine "I was lifted but to fly.

Again down life's dim labyrinth I grope my way alone, While wildly thro' the milnight sky Black, horrying clouds are blown, And thickly, in my tangled path, The sharp, bare thorns are sown

Yet firm my foot, for well I knew The goal cannot be far, And ever, thro'the rifted clouds, Shines out one steady star .-For when my guide went up, he left The pearly gates ajar.

Hanging in Old Times.
